THE FRIEND FOR ME.

When you find a faithful friend, keep him, trust him to the end, for the world contains not one so true, steady, honest, firm and true. Such ones are only friends to me, with affection strong and true. Such ones I would gladly see, they are the friends for me.

middle of February in the Northern and Middle States. When the wind is wanted for making cuttings, the vines should be pruned as soon as possible, the wood made into cuttings, and then tied in bundles and packed away in sand or moss in a cellar, or buried out of doors until Spring.

Effects of Cold on Milk Cows.

The extreme sensitiveness of the mammary function in cows to the influences of cold, fatigue, excitement, unpleasant odors, etc., is indeed surprising. We have been greatly interested in observing the effects of cold upon the milk secretion as seen in the herd of cows upon the farm at Lake Side.

During the past summer, in the hot days in July and August, the animals resorted to the lake to drink, and after slaking their thirst, they would wade into the water, and sometimes immerse their heads in it. This habit was found invariably diminished the flow of milk and in order to learn the extent of the diminution careful observations were made. It was ascertained that standing in the water an hour diminished the flow to the amount of eight or ten quarts in a herd of thirteen cows. The loss was so great that whenever they resorted to the water they were driven away to the pasture again at once. We have learned that from simply turning the herd into the yard upon a cold day in winter, and allowing them to remain fifteen minutes, the flow of milk was diminished to a serious extent, and consequently the animals are not allowed to leave the warm stable during the entire winter, except for a brief period upon warm, sunny days. Water is brought directly from a well into the barn, and the drinking vessels are arranged so that the animals have to move but a step or two to supply their wants. The nature of the water supply, and conveniences of access, are most important in the management of milk cows. A draught of ice water, taken by a cow in the winter, cuts short the milk yield for the day from one to two pints. Well water drawn into vessels, and allowed to stand a few hours covered in the warm barn, has its temperature raised several degrees, and this practice should be adopted by all thrifty farmers. It would undoubtedly pay well to slightly warm the water, but this is attended with considerable inconvenience where large herds are kept, unless steam apparatus is used. The influence of a current of air, and cold drinking water, upon cows in winter is not of a transient nature; it extends for a longer period than a day or a week. Many fine animals are ruined by careless exposures every year, and self-inflicted and feelings of humanity should prompt all cow owners to keep diligent watch over their welfare and comfort.

Cows in milk are often injured by rapid driving from pasture by heedless boys and unthinking men. They should never be urged faster than a walk. Gentleness and kindness of conduct toward cows have a wonderful influence upon the milk pail, and also upon the progeny of the animals. A half-tamed, fractious man ought never to be allowed in a stable. A man who will kick a cow is a passion, ought himself to be kicked into the baryard, and forever prohibited from again coming in contact with the noble animal. The right person placed in charge of a herd of twenty cows which have been badly managed, will in one month raise the lactal products so that the increased cash receipts will pay his wages. This is a statement which has been verified more than once.—Boston Journal of Chemistry.

The Partridge or Quail.

At a meeting of horticulturists in Illinois, strong ground was taken against the destruction of these birds. To show how useful this bird is, it was stated that a flock of partridges were seen running along the roots of corn just sprouting, and feeding them engaged in something which was believed to be pulling up the young plants, one of them was killed and its "crop" examined, which was found to contain one cutworm, twenty-one striped bugs, and over one hundred chinch bugs. Another member related that he had adopted measures to protect the birds, and that they had become so numerous and so tame, that hundreds of them, after snow falls, could be seen in his barn yard with the fowls, where they were fed. As a result of their presence upon his premises, his wheat crops were unusually abundant, while in many other places not far off, the chinch bug and other insects had destroyed half the crop.

Gigantic Roots.

Mr. Finlayson, a botanist attached to an embassy from the Governor General of India to the Court of Siam, visited some of the Siam Islands, on the coast of Cochinchina. On one of them he discovered a species of menispermum, that puts all potatoes of boots into the shade on this side of the globe. One root weighed 150 lbs.; a second 350, and a third 475 lbs. The last measured nine feet and a half in circumference.

The stalk, communicating with light and air, was only about half an inch thick. Two thirds of those monster roots were out of the ground. They were elephantine in form, of a firmness of character, slightly bitter but tolerable food rightly prepared. Several specimens were carried to the botanical garden in Calcutta. The native name is paun chag.

The last quarterly meeting of Bucks county Agricultural Society was well attended by both members and ladies. Opinions were offered about the value of middle men—in the sale of machinery, and an entertaining essay read by Mrs. Watson. Captain Wynkoop read a paper embracing important information upon the sowing of foreign seed for the oats crop which induced considerable debate. The value of cut fodder and cooked feed for stock was fully discussed; and it was voted as the sense of the Society that it was unprofitable to cut hay, straw, &c. for cattle, but that it answered very well for horse feed if alternated with good fodder. At the next meeting in May will come up for consideration the best mode of cultivating or growing a large crop of corn.

In the Maryland Legislature on the 14th, the report of the joint committee appointed to settle the claims of the State against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was presented. It is in effect that the Company should pay immediately to the State the amount adjudged by the Superior Court to be due on account of the capitation tax on passenger travel over the Washington Branch, and also the sum due on the same account from January, 1870, to January, 1872, the amount of which shall be fixed by the Governor, Comptroller and Treasurer; and that in consideration of such settlement the Company should be released from all other taxation upon the Washington Branch in future if it will agree to pay the State in perpetuity $25,000 per annum.

England is now authoritatively informed of the position of our Government with respect to Alabama claims, and the Geneva Arbitration. Secretary Fish's note of reply to Lord Granville's protest against the American demands for consequential damages has reached London, and Mr. Gladstone has announced in the House of Commons that though friendly to a firm and unyielding, and calls upon England to submit to the Geneva Tribunal of Arbitration the question whether the claims for consequential damages shall be admitted and discussed by that Board. There was a meeting of the English Cabinet on the 10th, when the reply was considered.

The Revolutionists of Mexico have received a decided check. Zacatecas was recaptured by government troops, under General Rocho, on the 6th, after the signal success of the operations, commanded by General Trevino, Guerrero and Marquez, who had consolidated their forces. Rocho claims to have captured all their infantry, artillery and munitions, the leaders only escaping with a few of their cavalry. The army in the City of Mexico out of danger, and at once directed to use his forces in other parts of the Republic. From present appearances it is not probable that the Revolutionists will be able to do anything for some time to come at least.
