TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE, IN BACHMAN'S VALLEY, CARROLL CO., MD.

BY virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Carroll county, sitting as a Court of Equity, passed in a cause wherein Andrew Sussel and others are complainants, and Ann Maria Smeach and others are defendants, the undersigned, appointed Trustee by said decree, will offer at Public Sale, on the premises situated in Bachman's Valley, about one mile north of Bachman's Mill, on the public road leading from said Mill to the Hanover road, on Saturday, 6th day of September, A. D. 1879, at 1 o'clock, P. M., the following Valuable Real Estate, to wit: The Home Farm containing 175 Acres, 2 Rods & 20 Perches of land, more or less, of which about 40 Acres are in Timber. The improvements consist of a good Dwelling House, large Steeper Barn and other necessary outbuildings usually found on a first-class farm. There is an abundance of fruit of the choicest varieties, the land is enclosed with good fencing and in a high state of cultivation. There is a Wood Lot near the public road leading from Winer's Mill to the Pennsylvania line, containing 6 Acres, 3 Rods and 30 Perches of land, more or less. Another Wood Lot, adjoining Lot No. 2, containing 4 Acres, 2 Rods and 9 Perches of land more or less. These lots adjoin the Home Farm, and are heavily timbered. A tract of bottom land, situated on Pipe Creek, near Bachman's Mill, containing 7 Acres of Land, more or less. This property adjoins the lands of Benjamin Baker, P. H. L. Myers, and others, and is very valuable. To any one in want of a good farm this sale offers a rare chance. Its situation in respect to churches, schools, post office, &c., and its close proximity to the Bachman Valley Railroad makes it very desirable. Persons desiring to view any of the above lands can call upon the trustee residing near Bachman's Mill, and for further information call upon or address Smith & McKellip, Attorneys at Law, Westminster, Maryland. Terms of Sale.—One-third part of the purchase money to be paid in cash on the day of sale; the balance in two equal payments on the 1st day of October and 1st day of November next, interest to be secured to the satisfaction of the Trustee, and bearing interest from the day of sale at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum. HARVEST TIME. We sing of golden harvest yields Its bright and gleaming harvest yields And sun and rain have smiled with grain The harvest moon from a clear sky And new-mown hay, all night and day, Its scented fragrance leaves. The early dew, the drowsy even, The cold of chautauque, And hours the moon in shock, The thrasher and his gear, The waiting corn, all greet the moon, The moon and the dew. The breakfast call, to rise and all! The vineds spread with care! The staked grass, each in its place Partakes the homestead's fare, And all about the gleaming feast, Its gathered bonities share. The bearded man to labor then, With brown and hoary hands: The meek wife, the reaper rings, All through the well-tended lands, All keeping time, till entry noon They kind the grain with bands. They seek the shade of friendly glade, And swift the moments fly, Find swart clouds, as stream that flows, Or setting sun on high, And all about the gleaming feast, They reap more than a sign. Oh! harvest days, we sing thy praise, From hill to river's shore! For field and tree, for bloom and bee, For faded corn, for night and morn, And God who bow before.

Select Story.

PHANTOM LOVERS. Before I begin my story I must tell you I am a commercial traveler, horn and brood, so to speak, to the business. I have my wits about me, and as I often happen to have a good many valuable articles, such as a fine English dog, a fine dog, an Englishman—English to the backbone—and live on roast beef, bottled ale and old port wine. If you could feel my arms, and look at my checks, and measure me across the shoulders, you would have no doubt that I am one of the men who does not dream when I don't see a thing I see it. When I hear a thing I hear it. And what I saw and what I heard on one particular occasion I mean to tell you. You will not offend me at all if you doubt it. I should doubt myself if any one had told it to me. I cannot expect of any one the credence that I would not give myself. Nevertheless I shall, as I said, tell the story. It was in the year 18—, and the month was May, and the place was England. I had left London five days before, and now I was miles and miles away from it, in the very heart of the country, traveling through a little town where I had business. It was an old fashioned place, and the people were kind and obliging. As I do not look for such qualities on the road now-a-days, I order a traveler of experience; but here they came upon me at the inn I stopped in a way to make me think better of human nature. Travelers did not stop often at that inn, I suspect, for they were particular about my meals as though I had been a prodigal come for the holidays. They killed the fatted chicken for me, and to crown all, as the train did not stop to take me on as I wanted to go, and so it was only a matter of five miles or so, what did the landlord do but hunt up a rusty old coach that was tucked away in the coach house, and order his man to drive me out that evening. It wasn't an extra mind you. It was sheer good will. So I shook hands all round, and I remembered the chambermaid and the waiter with half a crown each, and off I rode—the old coach cracking, and the old horse whining, and the driver coughing up on the box, and it was like a bit out of an old story, with an adventure in the middle of it. It was getting dark fast, and the road wound away among the hills in a very romantic sort of way. "What a fine picture about art myself, but I think if that painter with the white umbrella that used to sit about in the mud making pictures could have seen some of those points, he would have touched them up with pleasure. When the sun went down and the moon came up white and bright, and the night was so dark, and I saw all the delicate, trembling little weeds and grasses, and there were big, black shadows under the trees, and glimpses of you did not know what under the bushes. Why, it made you think of ghosts, if you were a commercial traveler. "The coachman said to me, 'I'll tell you where the gentlemen of the road would have liked to meet me and my black bag fifty years ago.' A pretty joke it would have been to have handed my valuables over and danced a jig for their amusement besides fifty years ago. "A hundred years ago, anyhow, I shouldn't have felt so safe as I do now. Just then the coach came to a sudden pause. "Hullo! the matter? "It's more than I can tell, sir," said the coachman, "as I have turned sulky. She won't move, stop." "With that he began to shout and crack his whip, I with my head out of the window, watching him, and suddenly the beast started off like mad, and I drew in my face and saw I had company. "While the coach was at a stand still, a lady and gentleman had slipped in. They sat on the next opposite me; and though it was an intrusion, I had not the heart to find fault, for a prettier pair I never saw in my life. "If he was twenty-one, it was as much as he could be, and she was not seventeen. "I have never seen a more beautiful woman, the perfect image of what they were, and they were as pretty and dressed much the same. His hair was powdered, and her too. "She had on a yellow silk, lower in the neck than I would like a daughter of mine to wear; it, and her arms would have been bare only for her long kid gloves. "She had pearls in her ears and on her throat, and she had just the most innocent little face my two eyes ever rested on. "As for the boy, he had a chocolate velvet coat and white silk stockings, and lace ruffles at his wrists. "And they had one large cloak—his, I fancy—cast about the two of them, though it had dropped back a bit away at down. "Two young folks going to a fancy ball, perhaps," says I, "and just took a lift on the way. "And I touched my cap to them, and said, "Fine evening, sir." "He did not answer me, but she looked at me and stretched out her little white hand. "The right will prevail in the end, and the wrong in the end will be defeated. Practical Hints for Summer. Mosquitoes can be driven away from rooms by the smoke of insect powder, burnt on a hot shovel. When it is not easy to get fire, put a bit of gum camphor in a shovel, light it, and the gum will catch as quickly as alcohol; then sprinkle a tablespoonful of insect powder (pyrethrum) on the flame, and it will be repulsed and driven away, and the smell will keep mosquitoes away, and the smell will keep mosquitoes away, and the smell will keep mosquitoes away. Take care to place the cloth or sponge so that there is no danger of touching it with face or hands in the night, as the acid burns like caustic. It is not generally known, as it ought to be, that the remedy for burns by carbolic acid is Canada balsam spread on the part attacked. A wash of 15 or 20 drops of common carbolic acid in a half pint of water will immediately relieve the smart of mosquito bites, lacerations, pricks, scratches, and the skin of the skin in summer. The strength of carbolic acid commonly sold varies, the dilution should be tested before using by wetting a small spot of skin. If it causes any burning in a moment or so, it is too strong, and more water should be added. The lotion was recommended by a city physician as so used at Bellevue Hospital, and years of experience proved its benefit. Many restless nights and much suffering of children might be avoided by this simple cure, which has been safely used on very young children. The tortures which babies have to undergo are so many and so pitiful, and visited impartially on all above them in travel and at home; so many, alas, miserable little creatures are to be seen on the cars and ferries, taken out of their beds, and their heads covered with a change of air, that I feel it will be giving ground to the old advice of a hospital physician, which proved an entire success in my own family. The pain of teething may be almost done away with, and the health of the child benefited, by giving it five splinters of ice, picked off with a pin, to melt in its mouth. The fragments are so small that it is but a drop of warm water before it can be swallowed, and the child has all the coolness for its fevered gums, without the slightest injury. The avidity with which the little things taste the cooling morsel, the instant which succeeds hours of fretfulness and a deep sleep, follow the relief, are the best witness to this magic. The splinters may be fed to a three-months' child this way, each splinter being no larger than a common pin, for five or ten minutes, the result being that it has swallowed in that time a teaspoonful of warm water, which so far from doing any harm, is good for it, and the proceeding may be repeated hourly, or as often as the fretting fits from teething begin. It is now the season when boys and girls in the country give their mothers sad nights by coming home in the miseries of poisoning by try. The irritation by the poison of the poison is so great that it is as if one could tear the part to pieces. The above may need reducing for young children. Make it weak at first, and add grains of the salt till it is strong enough to give relief. A desert spoonful of sweet oil taken daily is said to drive the poison out of the system, and to be most effectual, by the acid alone. It should not be put in tin, or anything metallic, as it corrodes, and may be poisonous compound. It will be useful for poor people, and those in the country, away from drug stores and doctors, to know, on the authority of Dr. Bevan, that the best remedy is if one could tear the part to pieces.
