

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For President of the United States, GROVER CLEVELAND, OF NEW YORK. For Vice-President of the U. S., ALLEN C. THURMAN, OF OHIO.

HERMAN STUMP, OF HARFORD COUNTY. Election Tuesday, November 6th, 1888.

The Tariff. If Republican organs and orators expect to divert the attention of the people from tariff revision, or beyond the question in the next campaign, by crying "Free Trade," they are sadly mistaken.

Whoever may be nominated, whether Mr. Blaine or another, Blaineism will dominate the Republican party. That much is certain.

Does any one presume to say that an average duty of 48 per cent. is not ample protection to our manufactures, and coupled to it in addition must be added the freight charges upon wares and merchandise to this country?

Is there any free trade about an average duty of 40 per cent. Can there be any free trade as long as the government needs several hundred millions of dollars which must in the main be raised by import duties?

The revenue from customs last year was more than $212,000,000, and the Mills bill proposes a reduction of about $54,000,000, thus leaving $158,000,000 still to be raised from customs.

That was twenty-one years ago, when there was much said about protection to our infant industries. The infants certainly should be full grown now, and should require less of the fostering care of the government.

The surplus in the treasury at the close of April was over $136,000,000, and it grows daily. That vast sum, for which the government has no use, has been drawn from the pockets of the people by a system of sheer robbery, for it can be nothing else when the people are taxed so far beyond the needs of the government.

They used to call it "sugar," and then they called it "soap," but now they call it "fat." James P. Foster, the President of the League of Republican Clubs, talks in his money-begging letter, of "striking the fatness of the wealthy manufacturers," which means bleeding them heavily through the pocket for campaign purposes.

The Mills Bill. The ADVOCATE has said that the Mills bill is not perfect, but it is a step in the right direction. It will reduce the revenue, however, about seventy-eight millions of dollars, and leave that sum in the pockets of the people.

The Oregon election shows so trifling a gain for the Republicans that there is no room for boasting. In 1886 their majority was 1,635; in 1884 it was 2,047; in 1882 it was 3,365; in 1888 they claim the State by 3,560.

The Republican Convention.

This body will assemble at Chicago on Tuesday next. All eyes are turned in that direction, and speculation as to the outcome of the convention is rife.

It now appears that Blaine will be the nominee, after all that has been said and written about his withdrawal. Whitlaw Reid is said to have a private letter from him saying he will not decline if the nomination should be unanimously tendered.

From the great number of candidates, it is feared that a deadlock will be the result, and that after a number of ballots, no one receiving enough votes to nominate, the convention may be stamped for Blaine.

Whoever may be nominated, whether Mr. Blaine or another, Blaineism will dominate the Republican party. That much is certain.

The convention bids fair to be a long one. There will not be entire harmony on the platform, as heretofore, for a platform in this campaign means something.

Whoever may be nominated, whether Mr. Blaine or another, Blaineism will dominate the Republican party. That much is certain.

The Republicans say the issue between the two parties in this canvass is free trade and protection, and that the Democrats are contending for free trade.
