

THE NEW STORE. BABYLON & LIPPY CO. THE NEW STORE.

JULY SALE

Of Ladies' Skirts, Suits, Lace Curtains, Window Shades, Organdies, Lawns and Waists of Every Description, at prices to suit everybody.

Ladies' Woolen Skirts. We have on hand a limited quantity of Ladies' Light Weight and Color Woolen Skirts that are very desirable, will stand washing, worth $6, our sale price $3.98.

Ladies' Wash Suits. 20 Suits left, of various materials and colors, ranging from $2.98 to $4.00, to close them out regardless of cost. $2.29 Each.

$2.00 India Linen Skirts - $1.29.
50c Seersucker Skirts - .29c.
$2.50 Heatherbloom Skirts - $1.98.

Ladies' Shirt Waists. We have concluded to close all our Shirt Waists out at special carrying old stock. In order to do so we have named these special prices. Any waist in the House that sold up to $1.50, nearly all styles and assorted colors. 98c.

For good bargains ask to see our 98c and $1.25 BED SPREADS, they are good size and heavy weight.

Organdies and Lawns. 30 pieces Organdies and Lawns left of the 10 and 12 1/2 kind. We offer very desirable patterns and nice quality at 7 1/2c.

Bleached Muslin. Only a limited quantity left of yard wide Bleached Muslin, fully worth $c; they are short ends and will offer them at 5c Yard.

50c Lace Curtains 39c Pair.

WE APPRECIATE YOUR TRADE, AND BELIEVE BY DEALING WITH US WE CAN SAVE YOU MONEY.

BABYLON & LIPPY CO.

CASH DEPARTMENT STORES,
BABYLON BUILDING, Opposite Liberty street, WESTMINSTER, MD.

Wilson's Photographs!

YOU KNOW THE REST.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS

This is to give notice that the subscriber has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Carroll county, in Maryland, letters of testamentary on the Personal Estate of late of Carroll county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers therefor legally authenticated, to the subscriber, on or before the 6th day of February, 1907; they may otherwise be barred from all benefit of said estate.

WILLIAM H. VANDERFORD,

Given under my hand this 2nd day of July, 1906.

FLORENCE LEE VANDERFORD,
Executrix.

DOLLY MADISON SHOES

are pretty as a picture. Everything possible has been done to enhance their effect and each model testifies to the fact. Better still, they are of the "handsome" kind, since they are unusually well. DOLLY MADISON'S are the result of scientific study by practical men, the most comfortable woman's shoe yet produced. The purchase of a single pair forever settles the shoe question on the most agreeable basis. Let us fit a pair to your feet.

Sold at representative stores.
$3.00 and $3.50

THE CADILLAC.

The machine that has won a world-wide reputation for itself.

D. P. SMELSER & SONS, Agents,
New Windsor, Maryland.

Also Agents for the Brown Cochran Co.'s Gas and Gasoline Engines, and DeLaval Cream Separators. feb24 26t

A CARLOAD OF FINE KENTUCKY HORSES

Will arrive at my stables, in Littleton, on Monday, June 25. The undersigned will receive on the above date, at his sale and exchange stables, Littleton, a carload of fine Kentucky Horses. A call will convince you that this is a superior lot.

H. A. SPALDING,
Littleton, Pa.

HOOD'S MILL FOR SALE OR RENT.

It is a flour mill, 100 feet long, three stories; two turbine water wheels, all lately remodeled and has fine water power; 75 barrels capacity with full roller machinery. Also 70 acres of land; recently remodeled dwelling; sold separately or together. The mill property can be purchased with or without the machinery. An excellent opportunity.

HAMMOND BROS.,
June 8 ft. Hood's Mill, Md.

HORSES!

On May 14th, 1906, I will receive a load of Western Horses at my stables.

HARRY G. SOHRIVER,
may 18 HANOVER, PA.

CHAS. O. CLEMSON,
Attorney-at-Law and Solicitor in Chancery.

Office in the rooms formerly occupied by Judge Wm. H. Thomas, opposite The Farmers and Mechanics' National Bank, Westminster, Md.

ARE YOU WARM?

If so buy goods that will keep, keep through the Summer without ice.

WATCHES - CLOCKS, JEWELRY, OUT GLASS, CHINA, BRIC-A-BRAC, SILVERWARE, &c., -FROM- CASSELL the Jeweler and Optician.

Present and Future Paint

The best "past" paint is the paint which has worn down evenly, leaving the surface ready for repainting without the need of expensive scraping and "burning-off."

The best "present" paint is the paint which is applied with least labor, covers the most surface per gallon, and looks the best when on.

The best "future" paint is the paint which lasts without cracking or peeling, affording perfect protection for the greatest number of years.

Viewed in any of these ways,

Lewis Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

mixed with Lewis Lined Oil is best. Good painters all say so. Send for our free book. It tells and shows you how to use it, and gives you a test for paint purity.

JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS. CO.,
231 S. Front St., Philadelphia, Pa.

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

FINE HORSES!

On Monday, JULY 16, 1906, I will receive one carload of Ohio and Kentucky Horses. Will buy smooth fast horses for Southern market.

H. A. SMITH,
Hanover, Pa.

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

DIVIDEND NO. 180.

The Union National Bank of Westminster, Md., June 30, 1906. The Board of Directors of this bank have this day declared a semi-annual dividend of Five Per Cent. upon the capital stock of the bank, less taxes, payable on and after Tuesday, July 10, 1906.

J. W. HERING, Cashier.

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

TO THE DEMOCRACY OF CARROLL COUNTY.

I have concluded to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of State's Attorney of Carroll county at the next general election.

I am making appeal directly to the voters of my native county, that they may see to it that the rule of rotation in said office, established by recent Democratic conventions, may be maintained, and that future nominations for said office may not be put upon the bargain counter or auction block.

I respectfully submit that if the Democracy of Carroll county believe that eighteen years of active practice of the law, that twenty years of faithful service in the ranks of my party, and that 41 years spent with my fellow citizens, entitle me to their favorable consideration, then I shall expect my friends to see that I get a square deal.

I feel sure that the good people of Carroll county fully appreciate the fact that they have been generally inclined to every member of the Carroll county bar older than myself and to some much younger.

I believe that the fair and impartial administration of the law is the strongest safeguard of the rights and liberties of the people.

If I should be elected to said office I shall submit the record of my past life as a guarantee that the homes and families of the good and virtuous people of this county shall not be obliged to submit helplessly to intolerable conditions.

In view of the fact that there are younger members of the bar who will in time be entitled to their party's consideration, at the end of one term, I shall step back and out.

Respectfully,
MICHAEL E. WALSH.

RATIFICATION NOTICE

In the Orphans' Court of Carroll County, Estate of Sally Lovell, deceased.

On application, it is ordered, this 10th day of July, 1906, that the sale of Real Estate of Sally Lovell, late of Carroll county, deceased, made by Joshua W. Hering, Executor of the last Will and Testament of said deceased, and this day reported to the Court by the said executor, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause be shown to the contrary on or before the 20th Monday, 13th day of August, next; provided a copy of this order be inserted for three successive weeks in some newspaper printed and published in Carroll county, before the 1st Monday, 13th day of August, next.

The report states the amount of sale to be $15.00.

KURTZ MYERS, JOHN E. ECKENRODE, GEO. R. RUPP, Judges.
True copy.—
JOHN J. STEWART,
Register of Wills.

APPLICATION FOR LIQUOR LICENSE

WESTMINSTER, MD., July 2, 1906.

I hereby give notice that the following person has filed an application in the Office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll county, for a liquor license, to wit:

APPLICANT FOR HOTEL LICENSE:
Howard E. Penn, Woodbine, situated on the Woodbine road, in Carroll county, Md.

And unless cause to the contrary be shown in writing on or before the 15th day of July, 1906, the license applied for will be issued, provided the applicant complies with the requirements of Chapter 6, Acts of 1894, relative thereto.

DAVID P. SMELSER,
Clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll County, July 2-2.

MITCHELL'S ART GALLERY

is the place to get the children's portraits and family groups taken.

J. D. MITCHELL, Prop.,
Westminster, Md.
Above Howers' Store.

A Full line of KODAKS and Supplies for same on sale.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION

At 9 o'clock, A. M., on TUESDAY, 24th of July, 1906, a Competitive Examination will be held at the High School Building, Westminster, Md., for the purpose of filling one Senatorial Scholarship (for Carroll county) at Western Maryland College, Md.

The County estimates to be a scholarship in the Maryland Agricultural College, which carries a reduction of $100.00 in the entire expenses and requires the holder to pay $100.00 plus incidental expenses.

S. SIMPSON,
July 13-2t County Superintendent.

NEW DRUG STORE,
Derr Building, 77 E. Main St., Westminster, Md.

I solicit a share of the public patronage, having had over 20 years' experience in the business.

Prescriptions Carefully Compounded.

Toilet Articles, Stationery, Cigars, &c.

CHARLES W. MOORE,
Opposite Freeman's Building,
Westminster, Md.
Formerly with J. S. MOYLE, July 3-2t

FIFTY THOUSAND BUSHELS OF MILLING WHEAT WANTED.

We have made large contracts to furnish flour in various markets, and require the above amount of good milling wheat at the highest market prices. A call is solicited from all farmers.

Very Respectfully,
N. I. GORSUCH,
July 13-2t Westminster, Md.

FOR SALE

A very desirable two and one-half story Brick Dwelling House, containing seven rooms, situated in the West End of Westminster. Possession given immediately.

For terms and particulars apply to
CLAUDE TILDEN SMITH, OR OLIVER GRIMES, JR.,
Attorneys at Law, Westminster, Md.

FINE HORSES!

On Monday, JULY 16, 1906, I will receive one carload of Ohio and Kentucky Horses. Will buy smooth fast horses for Southern market.

H. A. SMITH,
Hanover, Pa.

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

LABORERS WANTED

BAUGH'S FERTILIZER

WORKS, FOOT OF CENTRAL STREET, GANTON, BALTIMORE, MD. July 13-4t

Select Story.

MAID MARIAN.

High Gordon glitter in Smith's Magazine.

"Here's a state of things!" cried Tessie, looking temptingly in upon her nearest friend and neighbor. "Our cock left this morning because mamma really criticized her coffee; the maid exposed her case and followed suit; and to add to the general hilarity, Tom's just telegraphed that he's bringing home a stranger—an Englishman of high degree—to dinner this evening! What shall I do, Maudie? Not a servant in the house, and only my small self—mamma's perfectly helpless when it comes to things domestic, you know—to fill the triple role of hostess, host and maid of all work, like the good woman in the 'Hal' Ballad? I'm the least's light, and the midshipmite, and the crew of the captain's gig—the whole thing, in short—and I fear I'm not equal to it."

Marian had put down her book and was staring at her friend with sympathetic interest. "There's a serious matter in a lady who is it impossible to secure skilled service at short notice to be keenly alive to the tragic nature of the situation."

"Why not telephone?" she suggested.

"Explain the matter to Tom and ask him to defer."

"To the late," answered Tessie, ruefully. "It's a two hours' run out from Louisville, and they're already en route by this. Besides, I fancy this gentleman represents the English syndicate Tom's firm has been trying to interest in the Westphalia coal lands, and it would never do to see a first-class man, whose influence means so much. If only he weren't English—English people have such hosts of servants, and such perfect service always—and I'll have to introduce him to a disordered menage and experimental cuisine, and poor Tessie's pretty face wouldn't be brightened a moment. Late! Well, I've a cook, at least—such as she is. I rounded up old Aunt Abbie as I came across, and she promises to act herself into the breach. She's fairly capable in the kitchen, and I think we can manage a creditable meal between us, but for the moment—Poor, decrepit old Abbie, with her rheumatics and the misery in her side, would scarcely shine in the role of Hebe."

"I might lend you Lucy," said Marian, thoughtfully, "but I've had her only a week, and she's the stupidest specimen I've ever encountered. She'd spill the soup, she'd burn the chicken, and she'd burn the butter. I have it, Tessie! Why shouldn't I play maid? The various vicissitudes I've undergone since I've kept house for father have given me ample experience. I've some pretty new caps and aprons, just purchased for Lucy, and can dress the part properly."

"You had crossed the Atlantic in the hope of hearing again—that of the trine, white-capped maid in the doorway, he was apostrophizing himself as a 'blooming idiot.'"

"The majority of his fellow Britons, the Honorable Chauncey was accustomed to regard the domestic in his service not as individuals, but as mere automatic accessories to a well-ordered menage. It is doubtful whether, if brought face to face with the denizens of the servants' hall at Stapleton Court, he would have recognized any one of the number, with the exception of the butler, his own valet, and the groom who looked after his hunters."

Accordingly, after a first general glance in her direction, he relegated the speaker to the background and ascribed the fanciful similarity of tone to his own complete oblivion to the fact of her presence in the house. Rising, he offered his arm with formal courtesy to Mrs. Vandiver, who led the way to the dining room, where a spirited scene had meantime been enacting. Tom, called in by Tessie for a greenroom glimpse of Marian in her maid's make-up, had witnessed a too pronounced approval of her general appearance, clamoring vociferously for an instant revival of the good old custom of saluting the serving maid; and it was only by dint of earnest entreaty that he had succeeded in reducing him to order and extracting his presence from the scene. Rising, he offered his arm with formal courtesy to Mrs. Vandiver, who led the way to the dining room, where a spirited scene had meantime been enacting. Tom, called in by Tessie for a greenroom glimpse of Marian in her maid's make-up, had witnessed a too pronounced approval of her general appearance, clamoring vociferously for an instant revival of the good old custom of saluting the serving maid; and it was only by dint of earnest entreaty that he had succeeded in reducing him to order and extracting his presence from the scene.

"What a chump you are, Tom!" she observed, with sisterly candor. "Is it possible you don't guess that you didn't see—?"

"What?" queried Tom, with flattering interest.

"Oh, nothing!" And Tessie disappeared.

Meanwhile the 'blooming Britisher' presented himself on the following afternoon. He was so plainly preoccupied that Tessie hastened to arrange for him the desired interview with her mother, the support of which she shrewdly surmised. Tom, less astute, harassed her with plaintive pleas to 'let Johnny Bull blow easy,' until she desisted him out to the kennels to examine a purely mythical cut on his favorite steed's forehead.

"I think I mentioned to you, Mrs. Vandiver," he began—apropos of nothing—"having met at Rome two compatriots of yours, Mr. Stuyvesant of New York, and her niece, Miss Hallowell. I came to America with the intention of seeking Mrs. Hallowell to become my wife. I think I told you of my misfortune in missing the aunt, and my consequent inability to locate the niece, whose home address I did not have. Imagine my surprise when I found her serving in a menial capacity in your home. I did not recognize her just as I was leaving, and no opportunity offered for any action or expression on my part—which was fortunate, as I was completely overcome with amazement."

"I think," he went on, "that it would scarcely be possible for any of this domestic crew to know just to appreciate my immediate emotions. Class feeling is strongly inherent in the Englishman—indeed, it is inbred, in his very being, strengthened by usage and tradition, till it becomes a potent factor in his nature. I subsequently in Venice—that I decided to come across in the syndicate's interest instead of sending a subordinate."

The contents of a tray in the maid's hand rattled like castanets.

"The aunt had very kindly invited me to call should I ever visit America," the guest pursued, "and I lost little time after landing in looking them up. But, unfortunately, I found the house closed for the summer, and the caretaker in charge only able to tell me that her mistress was at Nahant. I promptly ran down—only to find that the lady I sought had flitted to Bar Harbor. I think I should have gone to the length of following her, but that the necessity for my immediate attention to the business which had—ostensibly—brought me across was imperative, so I could only write, and as yet have received no reply. I had depended upon securing the niece's address from the aunt, and having missed her leaves me no clue to the young lady's place of residence, further than that it is somewhere in the South."

"Well, Tessie encouraged him, 'if you'll pardon the trite suggestion, the world is a very small place, after all, and it's possible you may chance upon her when you least expect it.'"

"Eminently possible," inwardly echoed the maid, standing demurely behind Mrs. Vandiver's chair.

Tom and his guest, declining to be left to their cigars and solitude, joined the ladies on the piazza, where the Englishman, in cordial converse with his host's sister, whose piquant prettiness made good the first component of Kentucky's threefold distinction, while the fair sweep of moonlit meadow and wooded upland beyond the terraced lawn substituted a second, added another to his store of pleasant experiences in this hospitable southland.

Next morning's breakfast passed off as smoothly as the evening meal had done, and Marian, hearing the trap which was to take Tom and his guest to the station drive to the door, was felicitating herself that the ordeal was successfully over, when the Honorable Chauncey chanced suddenly to remember having carelessly left an important signet ring, an heirloom in his family, on the dressing table in his apartment.

"I'll just run up and fetch it—I shan't be an instant."

"Don't think of it, I beg," his hostess interposed. "Marian will get it for you."

And Marian, standing by with Tessie's light driving coat—Tessie had agreed to drive the gentleman across to the station—instantly obeyed.

She caught up the ring, which she remembered to have seen before, and ran hastily down the stairs—to find herself squarely confronted by the Englishman, who was awaiting her approach with impatiently extended hand. The vanage of the element raised the girl to his exact height, and their eyes met squarely, here falling in utter confusion and dismay before the look of startled recognition which dawned in his.

A host of varied emotions thronged upon her as she withdrew the outstretched hand, which fortunately still held the ring; but before he could frame a coherent sentence—his mental processes were so busy—she had slipped past him with a murmured apology and disappeared.

Mrs. Vandiver had stepped outside to calm the restless Tom, who was calling impatiently.

"I desire to hurry you, old man, but we're likely to miss our train!" Tessie was already seated with the ribbons in her hand, and the Honorable Chauncey found nothing left him but to make his adieu to Mrs. Vandiver and take his place in the trap.

Two days later, Tom Vandiver, returning from his daily run into the city, led his sister aside with portentous solemnity.

"My dear child," he began, with a grotesque assumption of patriarchal dignity, "while I have hitherto always strongly disapproved of international alliances, I wish to assure you that in the present instance I shall interpose no objection."

Tessie surveyed the speaker in blank amazement.

"Our friend, the 'blooming Britisher,'" Tom pursued, "illuminately," has decided to resign his our humble domicile with his presence. He dropped into the office this morning to ask permission to accompany me home tomorrow—'proposed himself for the week's end,' I think he phrased it—saying that it was absolutely essential that he should interview the matter with delay. Of course this can have but one interpretation. What a thing it is to have a siren for a sister! But for the Westphalia land deal, which trembles in the balance, I should have felt it my duty to pass him the tip that you were already wearing the silhouette of another deluded swain. But business considerations prevailed, and I—temporarily. I trust you'll do likewise—at least till we reach the deal!"

Tessie eyed her brother with pitying superiority.

"What a chump you are, Tom!" she observed, with sisterly candor. "Is it possible you don't guess that you didn't see—?"

"What?" queried Tom, with flattering interest.

"Oh, nothing!" And Tessie disappeared.

Meanwhile the 'blooming Britisher' presented himself on the following afternoon. He was so plainly preoccupied that Tessie hastened to arrange for him the desired interview with her mother, the support of which she shrewdly surmised. Tom, less astute, harassed her with plaintive pleas to 'let Johnny Bull blow easy,' until she desisted him out to the kennels to examine a purely mythical cut on his favorite steed's forehead.

"I think I mentioned to you, Mrs. Vandiver," he began—apropos of nothing—"having met at Rome two compatriots of yours, Mr. Stuyvesant of New York, and her niece, Miss Hallowell. I came to America with the intention of seeking Mrs. Hallowell to become my wife. I think I told you of my misfortune in missing the aunt, and my consequent inability to locate the niece, whose home address I did not have. Imagine my surprise when I found her serving in a menial capacity in your home. I did not recognize her just as I was leaving, and no opportunity offered for any action or expression on my part—which was fortunate, as I was completely overcome with amazement."

"I think," he went on, "that it would scarcely be possible for any of this domestic crew to know just to appreciate my immediate emotions. Class feeling is strongly inherent in the Englishman—indeed, it is inbred, in his very being, strengthened by usage and tradition, till it becomes a potent factor in his nature. I

How Roads Are Damaged.

The scraping of clods of vegetable matter to the center of the road, to be left there, is all wrong. The road is crowned for the purpose of shedding water, and if for any reason the water stands in the road an works down into the foundation, mud-holes are formed, and the road is damaged. These clods do not make road material, but they do serve to interrupt the flow of storm water to the gutters, and tend to ruin the road.

The placing of vegetable or wormout material in the center of the road compels the travel to make two tracks and part of each track will be on the shoulder of the road. This results in ruts and rough place, and consequent mud-holes.

The road scraper is an excellent machine, and a great benefit when wisely used, but it requires practical knowledge of road building in its operation or it becomes a great damage.

Gutters and culverts should be cleaned out early in the season, the shoulders pared down and the crown built up so that spring rains will not soak in or seep under the road. New material should be placed in low or worn-out places by means of a shovel, and not dumped from a wagon, for to do this results in compacting, so that a lump is likely to take the place of a hollow. Wherever a persistent mud hole exists, it is wise to seek its cause in poor drainage, which permits the water to stand on the surface most of the season, the foundation, causing the road to break through.

Let something of a permanent nature be done each season on each section of road, either in the way of culverts or bridges or drainage, so that when the time comes for storming, the road will be a durable material the subgrade will be already prepared.

Farm News.

Should Farmers Combine.

Successful farming asks this question, and then proceeds to answer it as follows: "This is an era of combination of forces and wealth. Everywhere is the effort to eliminate competition. It is being agitated and attempted as a necessary step among farmers. The consumer's standpoint, however, may be beneficial. Theoretically, it would mean that a large number of individuals combine and agree not to fight each other it is possible to cheapen production and manufacture. But the practice does not always follow the theory from the consumer's standpoint. While the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Co-operation is intended to eliminate the middle man so that the producer may get greater profits while the consumer pays no more than before. Such combinations of farmers, however, stand in the way of the article may be cheaply produced it is not sold as cheaply as though there were open competition. The great issues of the nation today are based upon the fact that combinations of capital may and often do result in monopolies that throttle competition and cheapen prices. There is the element of greed that almost invariably enters into combinations.

Onions for Pneumonia.

Several boards of health in Northern New Jersey are taking measures to protect citizens from pneumonia. The Health Board of Washington, Warren county, has published a recipe which, it is said, is a sure cure for pneumonia. Other health boards are looking into the prescription with a view of having the same thing published for the good of the general public. Here it is:

"Take 6 or 10 onions, according to size, chop fine put a large spider over a hot fire, then add the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to form a thick paste. Stir thoroughly, letting it simmer 10 or 15 minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply to the chest as hot as the patient can bear. In about 10 minutes apply another, and thus continue by reheating the poultice. In a few hours the patient will be out of danger."

It is said that this remedy has never failed to effect a cure. From three to four applications usually are all that are needed to start the perspiration freely from the chest. The remedy is said to have been originated by a New England physician, who achieved great success through the application of simple remedies.

For Moving Poultry.

Another useful—in fact, almost indispensable—article around a poultry yard is a carrying box or crate, says Reliable Poultry Journal. It is necessary, especially where one is somewhat cramped for room, to be continually changing young stock from one yard or house to another, separating pullets from cocked or doubling up yards in order to make room for others. Without a carrying crate you are obliged to carry the fowls by the legs, five or six fowls at a time, which not only tends to make them wild, but you are liable to injure a fine bird by reason of its trying to escape while you are both hands full. With this crate, which has a small door or loose lath in the top, you can catch a dozen or more, put them in it and transfer them wherever you wish quietly and rapidly and without injury to the birds.

Duck Notes.

Never hurry the laying ducks. It usually injures them, sometimes ruins them. When handling ducks never hold them by the wings.

When sickness attacks ducks it is useless to doctor. The best remedy for duck ailments is plenty of sliced raw onion in the mash and an abundant dry, soft bed.

When you desire Runner ducks for egg production have four to five ducks with an untraded drake. Two ducks and one drake usually produce two large percentage of drakes, and they don't pay to fatten.

Ducks should never be permitted to run with fowls. They both do best in pens by themselves.

When fowls and ducks are allowed to drink from the same vessel look for disease.

Keep the Lice Out.

During the warm summer months time spent in fumigating the poultry house is certainly time well spent. Louse hens are seldom profitable hens and the cost both in time and in money, of keeping the house free from these pests is a mere trifle, and the increase of eggs will more than pay the cost of it many times over.

Food for the Plants.

Do not be afraid of getting too much commercial phosphate under the eggs, except nitrate of soda, which should be used as a top dressing on all pulverized plants.