

"THE DAYLIGHT STORE." "THE DAYLIGHT STORE."

BABYLON & LIPPY CO.

Sale of Mattings, Matting Rugs, Curtains, Portiers and Floor Coverings of Every Kind.

Everything in this broad sale is new and good and an emphatic bargain, and the sale comes just when the house is being prepared for summer. The lots have been gathered from various sources, and are not all as large as we would like them to be.

Early Selection Is Therefore Advisable.

$10.00 Prairie Grass Rugs (9x12)	$7.75
2.00 Fibre Rugs (36x72)	1.49
.75 Japanese Rugs (36x72)	.49
1.25 Brussel Rugs (27x54)	.98
4.00 Axminster Rugs (36x72)	3.50

Many short lengths of Carpets will make fine Rugs, at cut prices.

15c China Mattings	12c
25c China Mattings	20c
35c China Mattings	30c
20c Japanese Mattings	15c
25c Japanese Mattings	20c
35c Japanese Mattings	30c

Roll Prices Less; ask for it.

LOW PRICE OPPORTUNITIES FOR SPRING HOUSECLEANERS IN

Curtains, Draperies, Portiers, &c.

Lace Curtains	Sham Holders
Draperies	Cottage Leads
Portiers	Coca Mats
Window Shades	Portier Poles
Linenums	Curtain Loops
Oil Cloth	Hassocks

BABYLON & LIPPY CO.,

"THE DAYLIGHT STORE," WESTMINSTER, - - MARYLAND.

DOYLE & MAGEE,

28 and 30 W. Main Street, Westminster, Md.

Do not Miss Our Spring Opening of Vehicles, Farm Machinery of all Kinds. Remember, We have Bargains in Household Furniture. We invite all to see our Stock before purchasing. We have bought our goods in carload lots, therefore, we are prepared to give you advantage of at least 10 per cent. in price. Ask to see our Buggy Harness, the Biggest Bargain ever offered. Either call or write us for our 1907 Catalogue.

BARK WANTED

Tannery Station!

WE WILL PAY Eight Dollars and Fifty Cents ($8.50) per ton of 2,000 pounds of Tons of Prime Chestnut Oak Bark,

FIVE DOLLARS ($5.00) per ton for BLACK OAK BARK. This year's peeling, delivered in good order and condition at the Carroll Tannery, before the 1st day of July, 1907. We will not buy any Black Oak Bark this year, and will only buy Black Oak Bark from parties who will sell us their Rock Oak Bark.

THE CARROLL OAK TANNING CO.,

Station, on Western Md. R. R. mar29 3m

J. W. SHUNK'S

Leading Harness, Turf and Sporting Goods House,

Opens the season of 1907, with an Up-to-Date Stock of Goods, bought direct from Factory, in advance, at old prices for spot cash and will be sold on same terms. We name in part—of all grades, from Fine Light Driving Harness to the Heavy Farm Teams.

HARNESS

Saddles and Bridles,

Collars and Pads, Halters, Whips, and a full line of Fly Nets and Lap Dusters, Trunks, Suit Cases, Grips, Baseball Goods, Dressing Oil, Soap, Leather, Harness and Chains and all accessories found in a first class Harness Establishment, with no advance in price. Repairing done with neatness and dispatch. We invite inspection. Resp'y, J. W. SHUNK, New Store, Bowers' corner, 43 E. Main St., Westminster, Md. mar29 1y 07

SALE BILLS PRINTED AT SHORT NOTICE at this Office.

The Handsomest Men's and Boys' Suits You Have Ever Seen.

You must have your new suit this month! $10,000 stock of all the new patterns—Club Checks, Blue Plaids, New Greys. Don't buy until you look at the big and only exclusive Clothing Store of

SHARRER & GORSUCH,

WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND.

All prices, from $4.00 to $20.00, but don't fail to see the fine Strouse Bros. and Mark's elegant swell Suits, at $12 and $15.

Youths' Suits, $3.50 to $12.

Stylish and cheap. Mothers, don't think of buying your boy a Knee Pants Suit until you see our immense variety of noble suits for the boys. A present with each suit.

50 NEW SUIT PATTERNS TO MAKE TO ORDER.

Beautiful patterns, genuine made-to-order Suits, cut by a graduate cutter, at $5 to $5 less than you can get same quality for elsewhere.

The best $1.00 Shirt is the Monarch. See the handsome styles this year.

Our 50c Shirts are the best. Pretty patterns, full cut and well made.

Positively the best 25c Underwear. Also special values at 40 and 50c.

25c Wash Ties now 2 for 25c. Beautiful Fancy Hose 2 for 25c. Come here for all you need in furnishings.

VERY SPECIAL.—We still sell the best Cotton Pants and Heavy Work Shirts at former low prices.

THE MAKERS OF DOLLY MADISON SHOES ARE SO ANXIOUS TO BE KNOWN BY THEIR WORKS THAT THEY PLACE THIS TRADE MARK ON EVERY ONE OF THEM. IT IS THE ONE INFALLIBLE GUIDE TO SUPERIOR FOOTWEAR AT A POPULAR PRICE

SOLD BY REPRESENTATIVE DEALERS $3.00 $3.50 $4.00

WILSON'S PHOTOGRAPHS!

YOU KNOW THE REST. Next Door to Postoffice. C. & P. Phone 81F.

Mica Axle Grease

Helps the Wagon up the Hill

The load seems lighter—Wagon and team wear longer—You make more money, and have more time to make money, when wheels are greased with Mica Axle Grease

—The longest wearing and most satisfactory lubricant in the world.

STANDARD OIL CO. Incorporated

APPLICATION FOR LIQUOR LICENSE.

WESTMINSTER, MD., May 1, 1907. I hereby give notice that the following person has filed an application in the Office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll county for a Liquor License, to wit: TO KEEP A SALOON OR RESTAURANT: John A. Hipple, frame building, owned by Alfred S. Babylon, Frederick Harvor and James H. Myers, commonly called the "Armory," adjacent to the village of Frizzellburg, Md., adjoining the property of Carroll Myers and Daniel C. Rider, and on the road leading through Frizzellburg to Taneytown.

And unless cause to the contrary be shown in writing on or before the 16th day of May, 1907, the license applied for will be issued, provided the said applicant complies with the requirements of Chapter 6, Acts of 1904, relative thereto.

DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk of the Circuit Court for Carroll County, may 3 2t

In the Circuit Court for Carroll County, in Equity.

NO. 4847 EQUITY. Annie Straker and others, Plaintiffs, vs. Edwin Elizabeth Straker and husband, Defendants.

Ordered, by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, in Equity, this 2nd day of May, 1907, that the parties hereto, in and to the proceedings, made and reported by Francis Neal Parke and Guy W. Steele, trustees appointed by a decree of the Circuit Court for Carroll County, in Equity, to make said sale, be ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 3rd day of June, 1907; provided a copy of this order be inserted in some newspaper printed in Carroll County once in each of three successive weeks before the 27th day of May, 1907.

The report states the amount of sale to be $9,933.66.

DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk. True Copy.—Test: may 3 2t DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

This is to give notice that the subscriber has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Carroll county, in Maryland, letters testamentary on the Personal Estate of JAMES S. FRANKLIN, late of Carroll county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscriber, on or before the 19th day of November, 1907; they may otherwise be excluded from all benefit of said estate.

Given under my hand this 15th day of April, 1907.

LEAH FRANKLIN, Executrix. apr19 4t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

This is to give notice that the subscriber has obtained from the Orphans' Court of Carroll county, in Maryland, letters testamentary on the Personal Estate of DAVID H. WAREHIME, late of Carroll county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscribers, on or before the 3rd day of December, 1907; they may otherwise be excluded from all benefit of said estate.

Given under my hand this 28th day of April, 1907.

SARAH A. WAREHIME, Executrix. may 3 4t

NO. 4104 EQUITY.

In the Circuit Court for Carroll County, in Equity. Elizabeth J. Haines, by her husband and next friend, Evan Haines, Plaintiff, vs. Sydney Fink, Defendant.

Ordered, this 30th day of April, A. D. 1907, that the account of the Auditor filed in this cause be finally ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 20th day of May, next; provided a copy of this order be inserted for two successive weeks before the last named day in some newspaper published in Carroll county.

DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk. True Copy.—Test: may 3 2t DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk.

NO. 4311 EQUITY.

In the Circuit Court for Carroll County, in Equity. William L. Richards, Trustee, vs. Margaret E. Richards, widow, et al., Defendants.

Ordered, this 3rd day of May, 1907, that the account of the Auditor filed in this cause, be finally ratified and confirmed, unless cause to the contrary thereof be shown on or before the 20th day of May, next; provided a copy of this order be inserted for two successive weeks before the last named day in some newspaper published in Carroll county.

Test: DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk. may 3 2t DAVID P. SMELSER, Clerk.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

This is to give notice that the subscribers have obtained from the Orphans' Court of Carroll county, in Maryland, letters testamentary on the Personal Estate of JOHN BEIKER, late of Carroll county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscribers, on or before the 19th day of November, 1907; they may otherwise be excluded from all benefit of said estate.

Given under my hands this 16th day of April, 1907.

JOHN E. BEIKER, GEORGE BEIKER, Executors. apr19 4t

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

This is to give notice that the subscribers have obtained from the Orphans' Court of Carroll county, in Maryland, letters of administration on the Personal Estate of WILLIAM J. BEGGS, late of Carroll county, deceased. All persons having claims against the deceased are hereby warned to exhibit the same, with the vouchers thereof legally authenticated, to the subscribers, on or before the 19th day of November, 1907; they may otherwise be excluded from all benefit of said estate.

Given under my hands this 16th day of April, 1907.

J. WESLEY BEGGS, THEODORE H. BEGGS, Administrators. apr19 4t

COAL PRICES REDUCED.

Lumber, Coal & Supply Company of Carroll County beg to announce to its many friends and patrons in this city and county that it is prepared to furnish coal, screened, and 2,240 lbs. for a ton, at the reduced price, and solicits an early placing of orders.

may 3 2t GEO. W. STAIR, Manager.

ONE carload of CYPRESS PICKETS at $14.00 a thousand. Come quick while they last.

Original Poetry.

PATAFASCO. Written for the Democratic Advocate, BY GEORGE E. TACK.

My lips shall sing today of village-sweet, 'Mid verdant hills it nestles at its feet, Along Patafasco's happy, sparkling fall: To the top, where stands a white frame church, Which gleams like name that knoweth no be-suit.

I see the store, the school, the busy mill, And houses of friends high up on the hill; And happy thrills my heart with welcome sweet, From little one, who run and kissing greet Their city friend. O, happy, perished days, Save in my heart, where gleam their golden rays. No graver tale will e'er be told of town, Who also helped the sick and made the round Of smiling, greeting friends. We oft would climb Up wooded hills for flowers in April time, The latest and earliest, sweetly blossoming fair Amid the trees and leaves that high-heaped there; Or down where oak and maple trees hold sway, Where hung 'neath mist, we clasped a way, And quick they staggered, falling to the ground, As swung the ax until their hearts it found. The strengthening meals and very beautiful air Enjoyed us well, and nights of deep rest there; And ere I slept, I often watched the light On the next farm, that some cross fields at night Like beacon light that shines adown the bay To guide the sailor on his homeward way. Ah, those were happy nights and happy days, And glad I tell in humble verse my heartfelt praise.

Select Story.

DICK'S PROPOSAL.

BY JAMES GRAY WADDELL.

Madeline Kelter was really a remarkable pretty girl. Soft brown eyes, whose languor was belied by a mischievous light, seldom absent; dark brown hair, clustering in bewitching curls over the white forehead; features small and piquant, matching a figure svelte and graceful—such were her charms, and she was every whit as charming as she looked.

Furthermore, she dressed divinely, thanks to an unstinted purse; for her father, George A. Kelter, was a successful broker, a member of the Stock Exchange, and she was his only child.

In a natural order of things it followed that sooner or later her existence must involve the happiness of some man, if not of several.

Dick Rudford, at least, was one. Having made the discovery at an early stage of their acquaintance that she was essential to his happiness, he at once set to work to convince her that he was essential to hers. His efforts were so far from being fruitless that it only remained to lay the combined facts before her father, in the hope that what they involved would be commensurate with his happiness also.

Unfortunately, there was every reason to apprehend that Mr. Kelter would prove the obstacle which invariably hampers the course of true love. Rudford was also a stock broker, and, being a particularly smart young man, had made his presence felt in the Stock Exchange.

So it came about that in one or two little operations in which he had been opposed to his hypothetical father-in-law, that gentleman had come out with by no means flying colors. Not being of a magnanimous nature, his resentment was kindled at being outdone by a man so much his junior, for Rudford was only twenty-eight.

So when Dick proposed to beard the lion in his den, his feelings were not entirely those of unmitigated joy.

"I shall be kicked out, Maddie, I know," he said, disconsolately.

"Never mind, Dick, dear," she replied, encouragingly. "Am I not worth the risk of being kicked?"

"Yes; but the process is unpleasant, and I fear I shall not take kindly to it," he replied, with a rueful smile. "However, the thing has to be done so there is no use shirking. I will see the old man tonight."

They were launching together in town—by no means a rare occurrence—when this momentous decision was made. Madgie's movements were entirely unrestricted. Her father, engrossed in his business, did not interfere with her in any way. Since his wife's death Mr. Kelter had ceased to go into society, toward which he never had any great leaning, though he did not hinder his daughter from doing so.

This partly explained his ignorance of the present state of affairs, for the young people met another constantly at the houses of mutual friends.

Dick presented himself at Mr. Kelter's mansion that evening with a mind full of misgivings. The process of demanding a daughter's hand from her stern parent is at all times a trying ordeal, even when a favorable reception may be expected.

But when, as in the present case, the reverse was the greater probability, even a wisest man is apt to be perturbed at the least intimation of nervousness. "Bulls" and "bears" he could face with equanimity, but this was something altogether outside his experience.

However, the thought of his little Maddie braced him up, and when shown into the august presence he was quite prepared to risk being kicked out, or anything else, for her sake.

BRIDAL GOWNS AND GRADUATING DRESSES.

The season of marrying and giving in marriage that was launched at Easter is still in full swing, and following the girl brides, girl graduates will be next to the fore.

The above design is by the McCall Co., of New York, Fashion Publishers and Manufacturers of McCall Patterns.

Nowhere is there a better opportunity to study fashionable attire than at a church wedding, which wings out every variety of new costumes, from the elaborate elegance of the bridal party to the smart new tailored suits of girl friends from out of town.

Satin and chiffon have vied with one another for first place in the favor of Spring brides. Early in the season satin ruled, but later gowns have more often been of chiffon and lace made up with clinging satin linings. Where the gown is of satin, skirts are quite plain or have what little trimming is used on the front breadth. The lighter materials are made with all sorts of modish garnitures customary where airy fabrics are employed.

Bridal veils of point lace or bridal veils of simple unhemmed tulle have had equal endorsements from fashionable sources. Veils have been of any length that suits the wearer, from those that barely reach the waist to those that fall to the end of the train.

Gowns of Tulle have been smartly worn both by brides and bridesmaids. No material is quite as becoming as this airy fabric, and it is quite simple in effect or the reverse according to its trimmings.

White and silver was the robe worn by a bride a few days since, the dress of Tullens, the embroideries of silver thread and silver beads. The veil was point lace, a long scarf shaped piece that extended from the stately dark head of the bride nearly to the end of her skirt. Contrary to the custom this spring the bride wore a great quantity of magnificent jewelry, including a diamond collar, a long rope of matched pearls, and a coiffure ornament in diamonds.

It's a long way from satin at many dollars a yard to spider cloth at 50 cents, but the latter in all white would make up charmingly for a pretty unpretentious bridal gown that could be worn for any festive occasion afterward, or be equally suitable in white or in light-colored printings that come in all sorts of delicate colors, for girlish frocks for graduation wear or for summer dances.

Foulards are once more very fashionable, and no gown a woman can possess lasts better or is suitable for so many different uses. Lord and Taylor is making a great showing of especially exclusive patterns in foulards. Coin spots of various sizes, some larger than diamonds, some in clusters or line effects constitute some of the most attractive of these patterns.

Goods with printed or woven borders are in great demand by fashionable dressmakers who are making them up in many old ways, utilizing the borders for longwise trimmings quite as often as for the regular hem effects.

Very attractive is the showing of new silk gloves of the white wristed sort, made especially pretty by all sorts of charming designs of embroideries on the arms.

The latest thing in parasols displayed in the 5th Avenue window of a well-known but exclusive shop, is a line of coaching parasols in all the modish single colors, from mauve to mignonette, the handles straight and umbrella like but made of ivory carved and set with gold and semi-precious stones.

Lucy Carter.

Madeline Kelter was really a remarkable pretty girl. Soft brown eyes, whose languor was belied by a mischievous light, seldom absent; dark brown hair, clustering in bewitching curls over the white forehead; features small and piquant, matching a figure svelte and graceful—such were her charms, and she was every whit as charming as she looked.

Furthermore, she dressed divinely, thanks to an unstinted purse; for her father, George A. Kelter, was a successful broker, a member of the Stock Exchange, and she was his only child.

In a natural order of things it followed that sooner or later her existence must involve the happiness of some man, if not of several.

Dick Rudford, at least, was one. Having made the discovery at an early stage of their acquaintance that she was essential to his happiness, he at once set to work to convince her that he was essential to hers. His efforts were so far from being fruitless that it only remained to lay the combined facts before her father, in the hope that what they involved would be commensurate with his happiness also.

Unfortunately, there was every reason to apprehend that Mr. Kelter would prove the obstacle which invariably hampers the course of true love. Rudford was also a stock broker, and, being a particularly smart young man, had made his presence felt in the Stock Exchange.

So it came about that in one or two little operations in which he had been opposed to his hypothetical father-in-law, that gentleman had come out with by no means flying colors. Not being of a magnanimous nature, his resentment was kindled at being outdone by a man so much his junior, for Rudford was only twenty-eight.

So when Dick proposed to beard the lion in his den, his feelings were not entirely those of unmitigated joy.

"I shall be kicked out, Maddie, I know," he said, disconsolately.

"Never mind, Dick, dear," she replied, encouragingly. "Am I not worth the risk of being kicked?"

"Yes; but the process is unpleasant, and I fear I shall not take kindly to it," he replied, with a rueful smile. "However, the thing has to be done so there is no use shirking. I will see the old man tonight."

They were launching together in town—by no means a rare occurrence—when this momentous decision was made. Madgie's movements were entirely unrestricted. Her father, engrossed in his business, did not interfere with her in any way. Since his wife's death Mr. Kelter had ceased to go into society, toward which he never had any great leaning, though he did not hinder his daughter from doing so.

This partly explained his ignorance of the present state of affairs, for the young people met another constantly at the houses of mutual friends.

Dick presented himself at Mr. Kelter's mansion that evening with a mind full of misgivings. The process of demanding a daughter's hand from her stern parent is at all times a trying ordeal, even when a favorable reception may be expected.

But when, as in the present case, the reverse was the greater probability, even a wisest man is apt to be perturbed at the least intimation of nervousness. "Bulls" and "bears" he could face with equanimity, but this was something altogether outside his experience.

Madeline Kelter was really a remarkable pretty girl. Soft brown eyes, whose languor was belied by a mischievous light, seldom absent; dark brown hair, clustering in bewitching curls over the white forehead; features small and piquant, matching a figure svelte and graceful—such were her charms, and she was every whit as charming as she looked.

Furthermore, she dressed divinely, thanks to an unstinted purse; for her father, George A. Kelter, was a successful broker, a member of the Stock Exchange, and she was his only child.

In a natural order of things it followed that sooner or later her existence must involve the happiness of some man, if not of several.

Dick Rudford, at least, was one. Having made the discovery at an early stage of their acquaintance that she was essential to his happiness, he at once set to work to convince her that he was essential to hers. His efforts were so far from being fruitless that it only remained to lay the combined facts before her father, in the hope that what they involved would be commensurate with his happiness also.

Unfortunately, there was every reason to apprehend that Mr. Kelter would prove the obstacle which invariably hampers the course of true love. Rudford was also a stock broker, and, being a particularly smart young man, had made his presence felt in the Stock Exchange.

So it came about that in one or two little operations in which he had been opposed to his hypothetical father-in-law, that gentleman had come out with by no means flying colors. Not being of a magnanimous nature, his resentment was kindled at being outdone by a man so much his junior, for Rudford was only twenty-eight.

So when Dick proposed to beard the lion in his den, his feelings were not entirely those of unmitigated joy.

"I shall be kicked out, Maddie, I know," he said, disconsolately.

"Never mind, Dick, dear," she replied, encouragingly. "Am I not worth the risk of being kicked?"

"Yes; but the process is unpleasant, and I fear I shall not take kindly to it," he replied, with a rueful smile. "However, the thing has to be done so there is no use shirking. I will see the old man tonight."

They were launching together in town—by no means a rare occurrence—when this momentous decision was made. Madgie's movements were entirely unrestricted. Her father, engrossed in his business, did not interfere with her in any way. Since his wife's death Mr. Kelter had ceased to go into society, toward which he never had any great leaning, though he did not hinder his daughter from doing so.

This partly explained his ignorance of the present state of affairs, for the young people met another constantly at the houses of mutual friends.

Dick presented himself at Mr. Kelter's mansion that evening with a mind full of misgivings. The process of demanding a daughter's hand from her stern parent is at all times a trying ordeal, even when a favorable reception may be expected.