

ITS FACE IN MIRROR STOPS ITS CRYING.

Method of Treating Baby is Observed on Street—Effect of Looking Glass Wonderful.

"It cannot be a new to attempt to quiet a crying baby," said the young man, who couldn't be expected to know a great deal about children, "but it certainly was effective," says the Rochester Herald.

"The child was sitting up in a carriage, red faced and howling, with its mouth wide open and tears streaming out of the corners of its eyes. The nurse was making unavailing efforts to quiet the infant as the carriage was being wheeled along.

"At the corner there was a store that had a square post in one corner of the show window. The sides of this post were covered with looking glass.

"The nurse wheeled the carriage up close to the window and the baby, still howling, got a glimpse of the image of its angry face, wailing self in the looking glass. The effect was marvelous. The child stopped crying at once and surveyed the glass with an air of being ashamed. Then it broke into a smile, and when the looking glass child also laughed it waved a tiny mittened fist and was borne away chuckling.

"This, of course, can be explained on scientific grounds as being only a manifestation of curiosity on the part of the child, but the suddenness of the reform instituted by the mirror was impressive to those who saw it."

Millers Believe in Dollar Wheat.

St. Louis, Mo.—Leading members of the Fraternity of Operative Millers, whose annual convention was held here last week, expressed to a reporter the opinion that "dollar wheat" had come to stay.

"Dumper crops for 1910 are a certainty, they said, the aggregate yield of winter and spring wheat being valued at about $700,000,000.

"I cannot see how the real cash value of wheat can go below the dollar mark," said W. A. Holley, the new president of the Millers' Association. "The recent severe decline in the option and cash prices has no permanent significance.

"The world's consumption in the last four years has almost exceeded the supply, and even with the world's prospects for the new harvest, brilliant as the present time, Mr. Farmer is bound to receive prosperity prices for his product.

"Once the flood tide of a new crop is passed, however, the legitimate demands of the trade must assert themselves, and I believe that the milling demand under the present prosperity of the country will be such as to justify dollar wheat."

George H. Lewis, a former president of the Millers' Association, and head of a rolling mill at Lawrenceburg, Ind., is another champion of "dollar wheat," or its equivalent.

Mr. Lewis made a point of the fact that foreigners are always willing to buy our flour at twenty-five to fifty cents above the Australian and other foreign grades, and that at present prices there was indication of an improving inquiry abroad which might easily develop into a broad export demand from milling interests, once the new crop movement scare loses its effect on sentiment.

Mr. Lewis also argued that the high price of wheat the last two years have caused the use of many substitutes, especially in foreign countries, and that now, with a reasonable price level and a good crop, these will be abandoned and tend to increase materially the consumption of grain.

Mr. Lewis voiced the opinion that, all things considered, 90 cents or slightly above that figure would prove an export basis for wheat. "If this is true," he says, "dollar wheat is a reasonable certainty for a long time."

Joseph Rottman, a former officer of the association, and president of a milling company at Seymour, Ind., believes in "dollar wheat" and says that future prices are at no time an indication of actual wheat values.

Mr. Rottman pointed out that the demand for grain for millers this spring has been materially lessened by the fact that the high prices prevailing for some time found the trade well stocked with high priced grain, which has worked off slowly owing to the decline in prices and the favorable crop outlook.

He expressed the opinion that these supplies are now about worked off and that milling interests will soon be liberal buyers of wheat to replenish them.

Asked whether the size of the loaf of bread was being increased or would be, owing to the cheaper prices of wheat and flour, Mr. Rottman replied that he thought it was being increased, but had not yet reached the standard of a few years ago.

Trains are Stalled; Locusts on Rails.

Millions of seven-year locusts have invaded the village of Peekville, near Saratoga, Pa., and the valley is being rapidly devastated by the pests.

From early morning until sundown the noise made by the whirring of the locusts is all-permeating, and can be heard a mile, sounding like far-away blowing of a factory whistle.

They have covered one of the little coal branches of the Ontario and Western Railroad, swarming around the rails, which gather and retain heat during the day until it is impossible to operate the road, and tons and tons of coal are standing on the sidings because the locomotives can make no headway against the slippery bugs.

Ocean Graveyard Passes.

Halifax, N. S.—The passing as an "ocean graveyard" of Sable Island, scene of innumerable shipwrecks, is brought to mind by the breaking up for junk of the steamer Skidby, a two thousand ton freighter, which met its fate January 6, 1904.

Since that time no vessel has been wrecked on the treacherous rib of sand forming the island coast. Wireless telegraphy, more lighthouses and corrected charts have robbed this "ocean graveyard" of its terrors for the mariner.

Mrs Susan Kelley, wife of a former keeper of a life saving station there, and now approaching sixtieth years, saw fifty-two wrecks, many of which she worked on with her husband, during her twenty years on the island.
