Would it not be a good thing for our Road Commissioners and Road Supervisors to use the King and Split-log drags on the county roads during the evening while we are having this thawing weather. It will level of the roads, close the ruts and leave a smooth frozen road the next morning to drive upon.

We will give this out as it was reported to us. During the fire at Meadow Branch on Monday night our street commissioner who was heroically working to extinguish the fire, was seen walking around in the smoke with a lighted lantern looking for a blaze, when suddenly he saw a red spot that looked like fire, he gently threw a bucket of water on it, but to his horror he found that instead of the spot being a blaze of fire, it was a red cow, which he nearly drowned.

A MUTINOUS CREW. Word reached here Sunday morning that the other member of the crew, a negro, had not been captured as yet, but had been surrounded at Rollins Forks, Va., and that there was no chance of his escape. The two men who have been arrested refuse to make any statement regarding the mutiny or the murders, and will neither confess nor deny any part in the crime, further than to admit that they were members of the crew of the Irene Ruth. John Adams, the mate of the vessel, has been sent to Washington and his condition is considered precarious. It is the opinion of the physicians here that he cannot survive long, as his skull is crushed and he sustained internal injuries. The body of the negro cook, Chas. Marks, of Madcox, was recovered Sunday morning, and it is the opinion of the residents here that the mutineers, having failed to get him on their side pushed him overboard. The captain was killed by a blow from a hatchet and the mate was conscious only long enough to say that he had been struck by the same weapon.
