A wedding of interest to many people in this community is that of Miss Augusta Johns McKellip, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. The proposed trolley road from Reisterstown, Md. to Hanover appears to have reached a rather unsettled condition. About two miles of the road have been graded—from Greenmount to Garrett farm, near Manchester, Md. This work was done by Contractor Jacob Frederick, of Manchester, during the latter part of last fall. Soon after reaching the point designated, work was abandoned with the supposition that it would be resumed this spring. Thus far work has not commenced. There are different reasons assigned for the delay, but no authentic information has been forthcoming.—Hanover Record.

We are in receipt of a copy of "The Boston Journal" which is an account of the celebration in Lowell, Mass., on April 19, of the fiftieth anniversary of the march through Baltimore of the Massachusetts Sixth Regiment. Capt. Noyes, the oldest survivor of the Regiment, in speaking of the laurel wreath which had been presented to him by the members of this city, said: "Here's our annual wreath for the Ladd and Whitney monument in the square, from the State of Maryland, a sign that amenities ceased with the close of the war, from our adopted Southern daughter of the regiment Mary Bostwick Shellman."

The trial of Peyton E. Poole, charged with the murder of his niece, Miss Viola Poole, because it is alleged he could not marry her, began Monday morning in the Circuit Court at Towson, having been removed from Baltimore. Miss Poole was shot in the abdomen September 2, at her boarding house, 2034 Huntingdon avenue, Baltimore. Her uncle is said to have been indicted with her for some years. About two weeks before the shooting he came to Baltimore from Mt. Airy, and stopped at the same boarding house where his niece was living. According to a statement made by Miss Poole after the shooting, her uncle had threatened her before and the night previous drew a knife to cut her, and only on her promise to marry him did he desist. The following day, she said, she refused to marry him and he followed her to the kitchen and shot her. Both were taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where Poole recovered in 10 days, and Miss Poole died October 28, according to the physician in charge, contracted pneumonia. Whether the pneumonia was caused by the wound inflicted by the bullet, will be one of the main points to decide at the trial. Poole is 35 years old and Miss Poole was 18 years of age.

Fire broke out in Uniontown at 12 o'clock last Tuesday and burned the house owned by Mrs. Lydia C. Brubaker, to the ground. The house was occupied at the time by John W. Haines and family, and is supposed to have caught fire from a spark from some burning brush. In 1862 he was appointed a captain, and served in the First and Fifth Army Corps until 1864, when he was appointed major and paymaster of the U. S. Volunteers.
