Our Immigration Laws.

There seems to be a great hue and cry throughout the United States for a general amendment of the Immigration Laws. Some advocate permitting future immigration only upon a pledge of the immigrant to engage in tilling the soil, while those interested in hygiene have published much advocating stricter regulations for the corporal and mental sanity of aliens admitted to our shores.

We owe the vast importance of the United States, with her tremendous trade importance, largely to immigration. The tie between the mother countries and the land of their people, as well as the great increase in our numbers, counting in those who have become naturalized citizens of the United States, tend to make our commerce both at home and abroad much more profitable and expansive than it could be otherwise. Yet the advocates of the stricter regulations, as their statistics will prove without argument. Whether it would be wise to restrict immigrants' prospects here to the rural pursuits or not, is a question that must be handled by the ablest minds in the land.

Does seem to be a great hue and cry about the people of the United States have developed into a nation of its own people, with its own national characteristics, aside from those of the peoples who have gone to make up our citizenship, and who probably are the greatest national problems of the next ten years.

One thing is certain. That the relations of the United States with our alien friends must be preserved much as they are, and whatever measures are taken must be such as to preserve the stability of those alien friends, but simply as may apply to those who are unfit for constructive citizenship. Once the question is raised in Congress, there will be good brains, no doubt, to solve the problem.

The August Woman's Home Companion.

In the August Woman's Home Companion appear photographs of 17 babies who, out of 100,000 examined at the Better Babies contests, were the only ones marked 100 by the physicians in charge. All of these children were examined and graded according to the Woman's Home Companion standard score-card adopted for use in all Better Babies contests.

Other interesting special contributions to the August number are: "Good Times That Cost Next to Nothing," being accounts of happy vacations spent by resourceful persons who are willing to pass their ideas on to others; "Queen Mary of England," an intimate personal account of the Great British royal family; "The Lived-in-Garden," a practical, suggestive article about gardens contributed by Frank A. Waugh, professor of landscape gardening at the Massachusetts College of Agriculture; "Homemade Fireless Cookers," contributed by readers; "Every Child Should Know the Right Way to Stand, Sleep and Walk" by William J. Cromie; "Such a Pretty Girl!" by Katharine Ferguson; and "A Britany Summer Fair and Festival."

While it was known that Mr. Phillips was acquainted with Miss Shaeffer, the marriage at this time was unexpected.

MISSOURI WILL SHOW US

Network of Highways, It Is Predicted, Will Be Built This Year.

"There will be more good roads built in Missouri this year than were built in the past ten years." This statement was made recently by State Highway Commissioner Frank W. Duffum.

"There is not a bit of abatement," continued Mr. Duffum, "in the good roads spirit that is awakened by the good roads day set apart by Governor Major last year.

"Machinery is the explanation. Everywhere the best of modern road building equipment is being purchased. In most instances, it is bought by the county, but there are many places where the county has not the money or has refused to buy equipment, the citizens have formed companies and bought.

"The lesson that machinery and manual labor is requisite to make roads was learned last year. That was the most obvious result of the two good road days.

"We are paying special attention just now to individual rural free delivery roads, to the end that these roads may be improved continuously. The average free delivery route road wanders here and there, sometimes good roads, sometimes bad. Our aim is to improve them throughout and form a network of better highways."

Good roads day, inaugurated by Missouri last year, will be repeated this year, and there is a movement on foot to have other states observe the same days. Commissioner Duffum is in correspondence now with the various departments of all the states with that end in view. The object is to have two days set aside in each state.

Teaching Boys and Girls to Use the Parcel Post.

In the current issue of Farm and Fireside Herbert Quick, editor of that publication, writing an article showing the value of the parcel post to farmers, tells, as follows, of a plan by which boys and girls can be taught how to use the parcel post:

"In a certain rural school in Cook County, Illinois, a 'parcel-post club' has been organized. The boys and girls bring their eggs, green corn, radishes, butter, and other produce to school, put the goods in hampers, and ship by parcel post to select list of customers in the city. They keep the records of this club as a part of the school exercises. They figure the profits and the losses.

Routing Cabbage Worm.

There are various ways of routing that universal pest, the cabbage worm. Road dust, wood ashes or flour sprinkled lightly over the cabbage heads when wet with dew will interfere with the workings of the insect. Soapuds sprinkled over the plants has also the desired effect. But, perhaps there is nothing more satisfactory than heat and water. This not only finishes the worms but tends to make the heads develop more fully.

OPINION FILED

IN THE INJUNCTION OF E. FRANK ELY AND WIFE AGAINST SPRINGFIELD STATE HOSPITAL BY JUDGE WM. H. THOMAS—THE HOSPITAL HAS 20 DAYS TO ANSWER THE BILL.

In the bill for injunction of E. Frank Ely and wife against the Springfield State Hospital and J. Clement Clarke, its superintendent, Judge William H. Thomas has filed an opinion and decision over-ruling the demurrer of the Springfield State Hospital to the bill. The bill filed for injunction by Mr. and Mrs. Ely alleged that all the sewage from the Springfield State Hospital is emptied into the waters of Piney Run flowing through the property of the Springfield State Hospital and the adjoining down stream property of Mr. and Mrs. Ely. According to allegations of the bill of complaint the emptying of the sewage into Piney Run made the waters so foul that it became unfit for all agrarian, stock, domestic and farming purposes, and caused offensive smells so that the odors were intolerable to Mr. and Mrs. Ely.

Mr. Ely demurred against the bill on the chief ground that the Hospital was a governmental department of the State of Maryland, and as the Legislature had not authorized it to be sued, no bill of complaint could be filed against it, and the remedy of Mr. and Mrs. Ely was by application to the Legislature. The position of the hospital was that as the State of Maryland could not be sued, without its consent, neither could one of its governmental departments. The Court decided against this position and said: "Upon principle there is no more reason why a corporation should be entitled to immunity than an individual officer of the State. A wrong is none the less a wrong because committed by a corporation, and there is no reason why it should enjoy immunity not secured to any other agent of the State."

Judge Thomas gave the Springfield State Hospital twenty days in which to answer the allegations contained in the bill of Mr. and Mrs. Ely; and the question of the issuing of an injunction will be determined by the Court after the testimony of both sides is taken.

The Springfield State Hospital was engaged at the time of the filing of the bill, and is now at work putting in a sewage system which it is stated will remove any possible cause of complaint.

Bond & Parke represented the Springfield Hospital and Guy W. Steele Mr. Ely.

Map of Hagerstown.

The Maryland Geological Survey under the direction of Professor William Bullock Clark, State Geologist, has just issued a map of Hagerstown and vicinity on the scale of 1000 feet to the inch. This is the first of the series of town and city maps which the Geological Survey is proposing to issue annually. The map of the State, it is similar in style to the map of Baltimore and vicinity of which this organization has already issued three sheets.

Each sheet includes an area of 20 square miles arranged in half square blocks with reference to an easily located familiar object. Like the Court House or public square. The map is primarily a carefully executed plan of the streets, highways and railroads on which the houses are shown in conventional manner. Closely built squares are represented as solid blocks facing the street, while detached houses are represented by conventional squares without any attempt to show the exact configuration of the individual buildings. The elevation of the land is shown by dotted contours representing differences of 20 feet in height above mean sea level.

One of the most interesting and valuable features of the map is the representation of the property lines and the indication of the present ownership of the larger tracts. The location of these property lines has introduced many difficulties and the Geological Survey has found that the records in the various offices of the city and state frequently show discrepancies which at times can not be reconciled.

The map of Hagerstown is especially timely and important in showing the new city boundaries and wards determined by the last General Assembly of Maryland. The State organization has been assisted in the preparation of the Hagerstown map by J. B. Ferguson and Company of the city, to whom much of the credit of this work is given.

These maps are not free for distribution but may be obtained by payment of a nominal charge of twenty-five cents which covers in part the costs of distribution and renewal.

Prosperity Without Income.

The Kansas boosters announce a $100,000,000 wheat crop and predict that in 1918 every family in the State will own an automobile. They have set auto to every eight families now and at the present rate of increase there will be no Jayhawker family without a devil wagon in the next four years.

The whole country will rejoice in the prosperity of Kansas and hope that similar prosperity will appear in the income tax collection soon. The people of Kansas, like those of some of the Southern States, have insisted on having a Federal income tax, and some of them have been suspicious that the people in the East would not make complete returns.

But New York has come forward with the payment of $12,523,000 of a little less than one-half the total income tax collected. Illinois has paid more than $2,000,000. Massachusetts more than $1,500,000. Pennsylvania more than $3,000,000. Michigan $1,012,000; Ohio $914,000; Oregon, $909,000; New Jersey, $716,000; Connecticut and Rhode Island, $733,000; Missouri, $657,000; Texas, $361,000; Minnesota, $372,000; Virginia, $102,000; Louisiana, $159,000; Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, $832,000; California, $888,000, and Kansas, $9,960,111.

Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Montana and all the Western States, with the exception of North and South Dakota, New Mexico, and Arizona, contributed more income tax than did the great State of Kansas, with its $100,000,000 wheat crop and automobiles for every family in prospect. It is true that North Carolina, the home of the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, dropped below Kansas, with only $46,000, but North Carolina has not boasted of a great wheat crop and automobiles for everybody.

The people at whom the income tax was levied seem to be honest and fair in making returns, and if there is to be an inquiry to locate the incomes that have not contributed, it ought to be where they advertise their wealth but do not locate the revenue collector to locate the incomes that are to supply auto-mobiles to every family in the State in the next four years.

But perhaps Kansas will make a better showing in the income tax collections in 1918, or even this year when the $100,000,000 wheat crop is sold.—Washington Herald.

When pretty young suffragettes invaded Wall Street in a plea for the campaign fund, the sum total of contributions was $1.68. This shows how the money power is eating into the chivalry of the nation.

IMPORTANT DECISION

JUDGE THOMAS DETERMINES THE MONEY IN CONTROVERSY WITH WM. A. MATHIAS BELONGS TO THE WM. R. FOWLER ESTATE.

Chief Judge William H. Thomas has filed an opinion in the case of William A. Mathias against Charles T. Fowler, administrator of William R. Fowler, deceased, determining that the money in controversy belongs to the estate of William R. Fowler, deceased.

Mr. William R. Fowler deposited in his life time in an interest bearing account in the Union National Bank of Westminster the sum of $1900; and the account was made out in the name of "William R. Fowler or William A. Mathias, or either of them."

At the time of the deposit Mr. William R. Fowler expressed his desire that at the time of his death the money would go to Mr. William A. Mathias; and, during his life, drew out the interest but none of the principal. Mr. William R. Fowler kept the bank book in his possession, and it was found after his death among his private papers by his administrator, Mr. Charles T. Fowler as the administrator claimed the money as belonging to the estate of William R. Fowler, deceased, and Mr. William A. Mathias likewise claimed the money.

The bank paid the money into the Court so that the question could be there determined as to the ownership.

The Court held that the evidence was not sufficient to show either a gift of the money to Mr. Mathias, or a trust for his benefit upon the death of William R. Fowler. Under the decision the money will be distributed in the estate of William R. Fowler to his brother and sisters and his other next of kin.

William A. Mathias and William R. Fowler, deceased, were close personal friends and were devoted to each other. Mr. Mathias is now general manager of the Cumber Lumber Company and resides at Durbin, Florida, at present. The father of William A. Mathias was Dr. John Mathias, for many years a prominent physician of this place, and now a resident of Kansas City, Mo.

William A. Mathias was represented by Charles O. Clemson and Guy W. Steele, attorneys, and the administrator of the estate of William R. Fowler was represented by Messrs. Bond & Parke.

PRETTY YOUNG WIDOW OF YEGG ARRESTED.

Declares She'll Never Divulge Hiding Place of $70,000 of Loot.

New Orleans, July 15.—Mrs. Charles C. Craven, 30-year-old widow of Charles Craven, one of the best "cracksmen and train robbers the country ever knew," was arrested here yesterday at the St. Charles hotel, where she was living.

Ten days ago she had eluded detectives who were shadowing her at Atlanta, in the hope that she would reveal the whereabouts of the $54,000 in money and $16,000 in diamonds buried in the outskirts of Savannah. Until today she had disappeared.

"You can torture me, kill me, but I'll never reveal the hiding place of the money and jewels," said the girl when she was arrested. "I know where the money is that Charlie obtained by blowing express cars and safes, and robbing postoffices and banks, before he was killed in Florida, five months ago, but he gave it to me and I'm not going to let go of it."

Papers in the trunk indicate that she is a stepdaughter of the late former Governor MacCorkle of West Virginia. A society news item, clipped from a Dallas paper of three months ago, stated that she was visiting the parents of her late husband, who was killed in a railroad wreck in Florida. Other clippings show that she and her husband had been feted by society in several cities.

She smilingly added that her husband had posed as a millionaire at Palm Beach hotels, and robbed many guests of thousands of dollars.

Mrs. Craven said that her husband's real name was Charles Lee Prater, and that his parents are living in Dallas.

"They think they will be able to trail me to the hiding place of the treasure when they get me back in Savannah," she said, "but they are fools for thinking so. I am somewhat of a detective myself, and can go and come from the hiding place with perfect security."

Mrs. Craven ran away from a convent in Ontario some years ago. She says she was put there by her stepfather. She declares she met Craven in Norfolk, Va., a little more than a year ago, and that they had been married only about eight months when he was killed.
