A WONDERFUL ESCAPE

Wounded Englishman Gets Away During a Bombardment.

Among the wounded who arrived at the base hospital at Bristol was Sergeant Mold, of the Second Queen's Royal West Surrey Regiment, who had an extraordinary escape as a prisoner at Zonbeke.
He was wounded in the shoulder and was left behind. He crawled into a cellar for protection from the shell and rifle fire, and remained there with three other wounded men. Two of them died during the night. The third man was wounded in the legs and could not get away.
At daybreak Mold crawled out, with the idea of returning to his regiment, but to his astonishment found the place surrounded by Germans, and escape impossible.
One man leveled a rifle at him, but shouted that he was wounded and unarmed, and a German who spoke English said: "You will have to come along with us."
They took him to a field hospital and simply stuck a piece of plaster over his wound and gave him a few biscuits.
While there the position was so heavily shelled by the incoming French that they could not move out. The house next door was on fire, and the roof of the one they were in was blown in by shells. They all rushed outside, and in the excitement and confusion Sergeant Mold made a dash for liberty towards the French lines.
Some time he was between heavy fire from both lines, but marvelous to relate, was not struck. "This I call unnatural luck," he modestly said, "for bullets were thickly flying all around. I held up my head and shouted 'England' and the Frenchmen ceased firing. One came forward and lead me through the lines. I fell several times through exhaustion. I was taken back to their field hospital and had my wounds dressed, and was then sent to 'Ypres.'"

The Boy Scouts.

It should be repeated that the Scout Movement is not designed to supplant the home, church, or school. These occupy a place in the development of character which nothing else can fill. As indispensable as are the home, the church and the school, they are not equipped, under present conditions, for the development of all the elements of character. They lack closeness of contact with nature. It is a law of development that the individual should repeat in order the stages of development through which the race has passed. Now the race had its hunting, nomadic, and agricultural stages long before it entered the manufacturing stage. Because this is true the early years of each individual should be spent in the country, where the child contributes an element to character which will be lost to all those who are reared exclusively in the city. To crowd children into towns and cities without the touch of country life is to rob them of a part of their natural heritage. But there are many parents who find it impossible to give this needed touch with nature. Naturally the boys need this touch more than the girls. Scouting is designed to meet this need. The Boy Scout movement includes much more than mere scouting. This may be seen from a careful reading of the scout laws and the scout pledge.
In brief, the Boy Scouts is an organization, the purpose of which is character-building for boys between the ages of twelve and eighteen. It is an effort to get the boys to appreciate the things about them, and to train them in self-reliance, manhood, and good citizenship. All expenses, including equipment, must be provided by the boys' own thrift. It is a Peace-Scouting these boys engage in, living as much as possible out of doors, camping, hiking and learning the secrets of the woods and fields. The movement is not military, but the military virtues of discipline, obedience, neatness and order are scout virtues. Endurance, self-reliance, self-control and an effort to help some one else are scout objectives. Every activity that lends itself to these aims is a good scout craft. The time for these activities is the recreation hours of the school and business boy.

The Scout Law.

1. A Scout is trustworthy. A scout's honor is to be trusted. If he were to violate his honor by telling a lie, or by giving a false report, or by not doing exactly what he has promised to do, his honor, he may be directed to hand over his scout badge.
2. A Scout is Loyal. He is loyal to all to whom loyalty is due; his scout leader, his home, and parents and country.
3. A Scout is Helpful. He must be prepared at any time to save life, help injured persons, and share the home duties. He must do at least one good turn to somebody every day.
4. A Scout is Friendly. He is a friend to all and a brother to every other scout.
5. A Scout is Courteous. He is polite to all, especially to women, children, old people, and the weak and helpless. He must not take pay for being helpful or courteous.
6. A Scout is Kind. He is a friend of animals. He will not kill or hurt any living creature needlessly, but will strive to save and protect all harmless life.
7. A Scout is Obedient. He obeys his parents, scout master, patrol leader, and all other duly constituted authorities.
8. A Scout is Cheerful. He smiles whenever he can. His obedience to orders is prompt and cheery. He never shirks nor grumbles at hardships.
9. A Scout is Thrifty. He does not wantonly destroy property. He works faithfully, wastes nothing, and makes the best use of his opportunities. He saves his money so that he may pay his own way, be generous to those in need, and helpful to worthy objects. He may work for pay but must not receive tips for courtesies or good turns.
10. A Scout is Brave. He has the courage to face danger in spite of fear and has to stand up for the right against the coaxing of friends and the jeers and threats of enemies, and defeat does not daunt him.
11. A Scout is Clean. He keeps clean in body and thought, stands for clean speech, clean sport, clean habits, and travels with a clean crowd.
12. A Scout is Reverent. He is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion.

The Scout's Pledge.

On my honor I will do my best: 1. To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout law; 2. To help other people at all times; 3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

Coker.

John A. Coker died at his home in Snydersburg, Christmas evening after a short illness of heart trouble, aged 69 years. He is survived by his widow and one son, Wesley Coker, with whom he resided.
Mr. Coker was a member of Burns Post, No. 13, G. A. R., of Westminster, and also a member of the Independent Order of Mechanics, Snydersburg.
Funeral services were held Monday morning in Snydersburg Church, conducted by Rev. Dr. Land, pastor. Interment in adjoining cemetery. The services at the grave were conducted by the Masonic Lodge. Will Not Purchase Pike

Without Definite Understanding With County Commissioners.
The following reply was received by the County Commissioners from O. E. Weller, chairman of the State Roads Commission in regard to the purchase of the Baltimore & Reisterstown Turnpike:
"In reply to your favor of the 14th, I am of the opinion that the State Roads Commission would not be willing to take over the Reisterstown Turnpike in Carroll county without a definite understanding with your Honorable Board as to just when it will be improved under the State Aid Act, and also as to some specific arrangement relative to the maintenance and repair of same by you until it is turned over to the State. We shall be glad to confer with you as to this plan, which we believe can probably be worked out, if you are desirous of co-operating with us in the same spirit in which we wish to meet the situation."

WEDDINGS

Miles-Hughes.

A very beautiful wedding was solemnized on Christmas day when Miss John E. Hughes, of Carrollton, Md., became the bride of Mr. Nelson R. Miles, of Baltimore city. Quite a number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom were present. They were married at 12 o'clock at the home of the bride, by Rev. John H. Gonso, pastor of the Church of God, South Fourteenth street.
The bride was handsomely attired in white German Henretta cloth, trimmed in silk shadow lace and silver beads. The bride also wore a wedding veil. The groom wore the conventional black. The bridesmaid was Miss Ethel Hughes, a sister to the bride, and the best man was Charles Jessop, a cousin of the groom.
After the ceremony all congratulated them wishing for them a long, happy and prosperous life. After which all were invited to the dining room where a sumptuous wedding dinner was given.
Mr. Miles is in the employ of a large business firm in Baltimore city, and is much liked by his employers. Miss Hughes is a school teacher and has been appointed principal of the school at Finksburg.
The trustees of the school regret very much that they must part with Miss Hughes. They have asked her to teach until spring, assuring her that her place would be hard to fill. Mr. and Mrs. Miles will make their home in Baltimore.

Leppo-Wagner.

At 5 o'clock second Christmas evening, December 26th, a very beautiful wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wagner, of Westminster, when their daughter, Julia A. Wagner was given in marriage to Mr. Harry Leppo, of Bachman's Valley. Both the bride and groom were very handsomely attired. The bridesmaid was Miss Rosy Wagner, a sister of the bride, and the best man was Mr. Benton Ebaugh, of Carrollton, Md.
Rev. John H. Gonso, of the Church of God, at Westminster officiated at the occasion. Just the members of the immediate families were present. After the marriage service all were invited to the dining room where was prepared a bountiful wedding supper. After the repeat all retired to the parlor, where the evening was spent very pleasantly with music and singing. At a late hour all left for their homes wishing for the happy couple all joy and no sorrow, together with a long and prosperous life.

Gehr-King.

Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock in the parsonage of Grace church Edwin Starr Gehr, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Denton S. Gehr, Bond street, and Alice Grace King, of Bond street, were quietly married by Rev. William H. Hetrick, the bride's pastor.
The bride was beautifully attired in a dark blue broad cloth traveling suit and a large black hat. Immediately after the ceremony they were at Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. Upon their return they will reside in their newly furnished home on the Park.

An Omission.

In our report last week in the opinion of Chief Judge Thomas in the suit for divorce of Sigmund F. Teiser vs. Helen W. Teiser, we omitted to give the full account of both so will make the correction by publishing the following:
"So far as Mrs. Teiser's cross-bill is concerned it is only necessary to say that the conduct of which she complains is not cruel treatment or excessively vicious conduct within the meaning of the law, nor was it such as tended to humiliate or degrade her. The evidence does show that her husband's treatment of her was sadly wanting in that manly and affectionate regard and consideration which every faithful wife has a right to expect, and which is the real jewel in her crown of happiness. Whether it was due to his inability to fully appreciate his obligation to her, his own ill health or his failure to control his own serious nervous condition of her health, I cannot refrain from the suggestion that a happy continuation of their relation demands a change in his conduct towards her. On the other hand the duties and obligations are mutual, and unreasonable demands upon him means, or a disregard of the natural desire of a husband for the companionship of his wife, are not calculated to foster that mutual confidence and esteem so essential to their continued peace and happiness."

Weigandt.

Stricken with apoplexy a few minutes after she had visited her daughter, Mrs. Amanda Bookman, Mrs. Margaret Weigandt, 63 years old, of 514 South Fourteenth street, Baltimore, died three hours later. She was born in Carroll county and, besides her husband, George W. Weigandt, is survived by her daughter and a son, George M. Weigandt. The funeral will be held Saturday. The body will be taken to Dorsey M. E. Church for burial.
