WAGON STRUCK; AUTO SMASHED.

WOMAN PAINFULLY INJURED—ACCIDENT HAPPENED AT SANDYVILLE.

Two men and a woman in a Grant automobile struck the farm wagon of Frank Vogt, residing near Sandyville, in front of Shreve's store at Sandyville, causing the machine to turn turtle and pinning the woman beneath it and throwing the men out on the pike.

Mr. Vogt seeing the woman under the machine and the men trying to pull her from beneath, fitted the machine up, picked up the woman and carried her in a nearby house where she was restored to consciousness and her wounds dressed the best they could until they reached this city.

The men and woman were brought to the Westminster Hotel, where they remained for a day or until they could get their hurts remedied and their machine repaired. The woman was considerably injured about the face by having been scared up from the fall on the pike. The men were not seriously injured.

The men hailed from Gettysburg and the woman from Baltimore.

The accident happened about 7 o'clock Monday evening. Mr. Vogt was going home and the machine was coming toward this city running about 30 miles an hour, with no lights lit, when it struck the front wheel of the heavy farm wagon with the above result.

The wagon wheel was mashed and the tongue broke off. The horses to the harness snapping when the automobile struck the wagon wheel the heavy blow.

A Brief Memoir of Mrs. Annie Smelser.

The Sunday school of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, New Windsor, as well as every department of the church work, has not only been greatly bereaved in the death of Mrs. Annie Smelser, who fell asleep in Jesus, Sunday, February 21, but has sustained a loss, which according to the vision of conquest in her soul, is irreparable.

The years of unusually devoted and efficient service to the Kingdom of God, as carried forward by the church of her choice, make fitting this tribute to her memory.

Endowed by nature with gifts and graces, she was unusual with a cheerful spirit and a fervent zeal in every cause she espoused, her's was a life of splendid achievement.

Her natural resources she applied without stint to the work for which she was peculiarly fitted, and for which her love was unfeigned, until she became a "workman not to be ashamed."

Her eventful life being spent among the children and young people, led into scenes of toil and exacting tasks which only one such as she would welcome. These toils and tasks she met with the challenge of a heart that made light of them, as one who had the inspiration of her life and teaching.

But for this resolute and sanctified spirit exercised in love and hope by this rare soul, St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church would not be what it is today.

"Instant in season and out of season," she never failed to see and grasp an opportunity to speak the word in season, whether it be to turn the attention of a child toward the Sunday School, heal some little wound that had been made by a careless jest or a thoughtless act; or to soothe the sorrowing heart of one in distress or bereavement; or to bring into active existence some dormant good that had been lumbering in the heart of a neighbor; or who to her master one who per chance had apparently been neglected.

Not alone Methodist, but the community at large, even that community lying beyond the corporate limits of New Windsor, is indebted to her for the inspiration of her life and teaching upon the many young lives touched and influenced by her spirit as well as by the quiet spread of that influence upon those of all ages.

Christianity, especially that form of it called Methodism, would be the poorer in New Windsor, but for this self-denying Christian woman, and the high minister rendered by her to the church without compensation, without even caring for special notice.

Such was sister Smelser's privilege and joy, and for years that lengthened into decades she rendered to her Master a service here on earth, such as will bring to her listening ear, the welcome plaudit, "well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy God."

"Thou wilt not leave us in the dust; Thou madest man he knows not why; He thinks he was not made to die; And Thou hast made him, Thou art just."
