It is now learned on good authority that as soon as the excavating and grading is finished for the double-tracking of the Western Maryland main line between Blue Mountain House and Edgemont, work will immediately begin on a similar operation for the section of the road between Pen Mar and Blue Mountain House. The long siding at Pen Mar now runs as far as the big cut below the Pen Mar observatory, and no much additional track will have to be put down in the doubling process. But that deep cut—and it is a deep one—will be a proposition of a different class and one that is a whole operation in itself. For a distance of more than a hundred yards the line runs through a gorge, the walls of which are 50 to 60 feet high, and of solid rock. The undertaking will require several months, it is estimated.

Letter from Washington. The following extract from a letter received by Miss Sallie Roop, from Miss Hobbie, who is spending the winter in Washington, will be of interest to the many friends of her niece, Miss Julia Tompkins, who with her father, the late Gen. Tompkins, spent several summers in Westminster, where they have many friends. Miss Hobbie's three nephews, sons of Gen. Tompkins, are on the board, and are now with their commands in pursuit of Villa and his savage band.

She writes: "Frank and his wife were in Columbus when that night's attack was made. The officers and quarters, were some distance from the troops, and quite a long way from town. The Mexicans attacked the officers' quarters first.

There were apes who pointed out the officers' houses to them. They and their families were awakened by shots being fired through the windows. The doors were pulled open and 300 Mexicans against a hand full of our men. The officers fought with hardly any clothes on. Many of them barbed wire and on their heads, pulled on over their night clothes. I cannot go into details, for it is all so horrible.

"The officers' first duty is to his troop, and they had to leave their wives and children to get to their men to combat them to fight the enemy. Each woman had a revolver to defend herself. The officers gathered their families, put them in the middle, and then protected them, surrounding them and fighting their way, inch by inch until they reached their troops.

Frank is the best of only 25 men, chased 300 Mexicans 15 miles. Frank's horse was shot from under him, and his hat riddled with bullets. The Angela protected him. Julia wrote me, all the women and children in night clothes, fled to Fort Bliss, two hours ride from Columbus. She is packing up, ready to start any moment. Everything is in the greatest excitement. She saw that poor Mrs. Wright, who killed her husband five days, killed her husband and gave away her baby to some Mexican.

Mrs. Wright escaped during the fight at Columbus, but they shot both of her legs.

Julia's servants ran away from the Fort, fearing it would be attacked, but returned, feeling it the safest place."

MARQUEED IN MUD Big Auto Bus Bound To Carroll County Gets No Farther Than St. Anthony's Big Hill.

A delegation that came from the upper end of Baltimore county and nearby places in Carroll county sang optimistically as the big motor bus hurried away from the Sunday tabernacle Saturday night. They were "brightening up every little corner" as the machine sped until the soft spots in the Liberty road near Harrisonville were struck and then it was all over with the singing. The chauffeur tried all the gears, pulled one lever after another and made the big engine groan and grumble, but when the party reached St. Anthony's big hill the machine came to a stop and never budged another inch.

The machine became marooned in a puddle about 11:30 p. m. For an hour or so the men worked on it, while the women, to lessen the burden, stood around on dry spots hoping, some of them actually praying. Some of those who walked home had a nudge to go; others four miles. The way onward to the Carroll county line was through mud so wet and sticky that it almost sucked shoes off their weary feet.

Sunday morning up near the Carroll county line the crowd was on and to come to Baltimore in this same bus. Those who were determined not to miss a chance to hear Mr. Sunday bravely walked to Harrisonville. There the bus, pushed and pulled by 25 men and one determined woman, was gotten to the bottom of St. Anthony's hill and started off toward Baltimore.

Sunday morning the Westminster-Baltimore bus got through the mud all right on the way to Baltimore, but got out and returned to Baltimore.

Jailed For His Old Pipe. Because his beloved old pipe was offensive to his neighbors in West Millville, N. J., Edward Brandriff went to jail for 60 days. He might have escaped this ordeal had he been willing to pay $50 fine and 10-day sentence imposed by Acting Mayor Whitaker, but the accused man said he would stay in jail for life in preference to paying a penny because his pipe was not harmful to anybody.

There was no evidence at the trial as to the particular brand of tobacco Brandriff smoked, but some of the neighbors said it seemed like a whiff from the infernal regions every time the wind blew from the Brandriff porch or yard and the pipe was in eruption. Their protests brought a kick that caused the man's arrest for "otherwise annoying the neighbors" beside smoking the pipe.

Purity Means Durability

MONARCH PAINT IS 100 PER CENT. PURE. Purity means durability. Anyone who has painted knows that the labor costs more than the material. So where is the economy of putting cheap, worthless, inferior paint on a property when it will have to be painted twice as often and you will have no job while it is on as it affords poor protection against decay.

A great many people are fooled into buying paint from Mail Order Houses. Don't throw away your good money on such trash. Use white wash it is a great deal cheaper and will protect your property just as well and last as long.

Here is the Point. Look into your Mail Order House Catalog and read what it states about Paint. Does it state that it is composed of Pure White Lead? Does it state that it is composed only of Pure Linseed Oil? Does it state that it contains Pure Turpentine Dryer? Does it state that it contains Pure Zinc? Is it guaranteed to be 100 per cent. Pure? NO IT DOES NOT.

You can just feel certain on this point. That any Paint you see advertised at a ridiculously low price, is composed of a low grade vegetable oil (not linseed oil) whitening for white lead and barytes for zinc. On the can of this inferior paint you will see the instructions "DO NOT SMOKE AROUND THIS PAINT", that is because it has gas-oil in it.

Investigate before you buy. Don't put your hard earned money into an inferior grade paint that has no durability, that contains no linseed oils, that contains no white lead, that contains no zinc, that contains only gas oil for dryer.

Buy Monarch Paint. Monarch Paint is composed only of pure White Lead, pure Linseed Oil, pure Zinc and pure Turpentine Dryer, is 100 per cent. pure, and is sold subject to chemical analysis.

We also sell Pure Linseed Oil Pure Spirits of Turpentine, Pure Japan Dryer, Lewis' Pure White Lead and in fact everything for Painting.

If you are in the market for Coach Paint, Wagon Paint, Colors in Oil, Dry Paints, Varnish Stains, Floor Paint, Porch Paint, Flat Oil Wall Paint, Cold Water Paint, Varnishes, or anything at all in this line we have it, and a full stock of it too.

WE SELL COAL OIL AND GASOLINE. D. S. GEHR, THE HARDWARE MAN ON THE CORNER, ESTABLISHED 1866. WESTMINSTER, MD.
