

More Money For Schools.

In a letter to county boards of education, M. Bates Stephens, State Superintendent of Schools, announces that the State Department of Education closed its fiscal year with a balance sufficient to enable him to waive his right to draw on the Comptroller for his next quarterly installment, and as a result $250,000 appropriated for the maintenance of the State Department of Education will go into the general school fund and be distributed to the elementary schools of the State.

The State Superintendent, acting under the direction of the State Board of Education, has now completed the reorganization of his Department as provided by the Legislature of 1916. Under his direction he has three professional assistants spending their full time in the field studying the needs and conditions of the schools, and advising with school officials and teachers in regard to the improvement of the schools.

Samuel M. North, Supervisor of High Schools, was formerly the principal of a high school in Baltimore county. He examines the organization, equipment, and the quality of teaching, and has general supervision of all state-aided high schools. During the year he visits each of these schools at least once and most of them twice. This year he is also inspecting other schools that have the ninth grade or second year high school class.

William J. Holloway, Supervisor of Rural Schools, was formerly county superintendent of schools in Wicomico county. He is working directly with the elementary school supervisors in each county, and also helps county superintendents devise ways and means of improving teachers already in service.

J. Walter Huffington, Supervisor of Colored Schools, was formerly teacher of pedagogy in the Maryland State Normal School. He directs the industrial schools for colored children, visits other colored schools, and advises with colored school supervisors, principals, and teachers. He also devotes some time to the Maryland Normal and Industrial School for colored students at Bowie.

There is also an assistant superintendent, a clerk, and a stenographer to assist in keeping up the work of the department. While his staff is much smaller than is usually employed to direct the educational interests of a state, Superintendent Stephens believes that through it the State Board of Education will continue to render better service to the cause of education in Maryland.
