HUNS TAKE REVENGE ON SALVATION ARMY.
The Salvation Army in Germany and Austria has been wiped out of existence by order of the Kaiser, according to a letter received by a Salvation Army officer in New York. All of the orphanages, rescue homes, lodging houses, hospitals and corps headquarters belonging to the organization have been confiscated. Its members are scattered and all cooperation among them stopped by the Central Powers.
A work of mercy, which was begun fifty years ago, has been smashed by the mailed fist of the Kaiser, not only because the Salvation Army was founded in England, but because Salvationists from all over the earth are in the trenches fighting under the various flags of the Allies.
There are more than one hundred thousand Salvationists now in the trenches battling against the Hun for world freedom. This fact, coupled with birthplace of the order, England, so angered the Kaiser that, according to news received, that he gave the word to disband the organization and act as its property. In order that there would be no chance of a reorganization, the military authorities of Germany and Austria scattered the membership of each unit, and it is feared that many families were broken up by the order.
