Westminster High School Invited to Come for Interscholastic Meet.

Arrangements are now well under way for the Annual Interscholastic

Track Meet to be held at Tome on May 17th. Provisions are being made to accommodate the largest crowd and greatest number of contestants ever gathered there on a similar occasion. It is the purpose of the committee in charge to so arrange the many events that schools of all classes may have equal opportunities. It is frequently the case in contests of this kind that only the larger schools make creditable showings. Realizing this fact, the committee is taking special care in outlining the events for the county schools. All events this year will be open to these schools; the county high school Championship, however, will rest on the 70,220 and 880 yard dashes, mile relay, broad jump and shot put. These events are to be exclusive for county contestants. For all events suitable awards such as plaques and medals will be made.

Westminster High School has been invited to attend the Meet this year. Until the time of the meet all schools will be regularly furnished with the necessary information for contestants, the prospects of the meet, and the development of the plans.

Next World War In 1926. There will be another world war beginning in June, 1926, according to a writer in the British Journal of Astrology. This prophet, who signs himself "Sepharia," asks for a serious bearing, inasmuch as he claims to have published a year in advance in each case the exact date of the war of 1914 and of the cessation of hostilities.

"The first phase of the next war," he writes, "will begin with Turkey, whose perfidy will lead to its final overthrow in 1922-23. At this time Prussian intrigue will dominate the position in the Near East, affecting Greece, Turkey and Russia. But according to my calculations the great crisis will not be reached until June, 1926."

"In this great war, which may be regarded as Prussia's counter to the war of 1914-18, the malevolent forces take their rise in Vienna and Berlin ascend to Petrograd, penetrate through the whole of Russia and descend via the Black Sea and Turkey in Asia onto Syria and Palestine."

Battery F arrived in New York Sunday and among the arrivals were Daniel Swinderman, this city; Milton E. Poole, Mt. Airy, and Shaver E. Pickett, Taylorsville.

Electrical Equipment For The Farm.

There appears in the paper an advertisement of an Electric Light & Power plant for farms or for use in rural districts which lay beyond the reach of power lines, that is worthy of the attention of every reader of this paper.

There is no mistaking the Delco-Light equipment. It is manufactured by a company that has done things. The well known Delco-Starting Lighting and Ignition which is serving on more than 1,000,000 automobiles was invented by this company.

The chief feature of this lighting plant had an important part in the final completion of the Liberty Motor and had incorporated into it the mercury cooled valves which had been so successful in Delco-Light. And now we have in our vicinity more than 150 of the Delco-Light Farm systems that have been given a thorough trial and have not been found wanting in any respect.

Electricity for the country has always been a subject of much speculation among the electrical engineers of the world. Transportation lines built into the country have been found too expensive both to build and to keep in operation.

Much pioneer work has been done toward making independent electric plants that might meet the requirements of the average farm and country home and to come within a price that would permit of its universal use.

Electric service has been found to be of inestimable value in the cities both for light and power. It is operating our most modern factories, the signal systems on our railroads and in fact most of the important power service is now being carried on by electric current.

But all this has had little to do with the farmer. He has watched and waited just as a few years ago he watched his city relatives and friends become the largest user of them himself.

It seems this is coming true of electric service. He is beginning to know that electricity will serve him in a dozen ways to the service it will give his city friends.

The farmer needs electric lights. He needs them in his house, in his barn, in all his outbuildings and since they have come to be within his reach he is going to have them.

The farmer is the world's producer. His farm, the business in which he is engaged represents the greater portion of all the wealth of the world. In recent years his financial position has greatly strengthened but his producing powers have been seriously interfered with. He has not kept his production on an equal pace with the enormous and ever increasing demand for his products. This condition is largely due to shortage of farmers and farm labor, which in turn is the result of several causes. Too many farmer boys and girls are going to the city where better opportunities and conditions await them. Many of these could be kept on the farm if farm conditions were reasonably improved.

The shortage of farm hands, which has existed for a number of years, is likely to be made worse by the terrible destruction of life in Europe. The eight-hour working day which seems to be coming into general adoption is cutting down the productive working hours of the farm as well as that of the industrial organizations and the general trend of the times seems to be higher wages with shorter hours.

To meet these conditions better methods must be adopted on farms. Labor-saving and time-saving devices must be installed. In fact, scientific farming as taught so successfully and with such practical results in our state agricultural colleges, must be generally adopted and to do this electrical equipment for many uses becomes absolutely necessary.

It is not only labor conditions that is bringing about these conditions for improved living conditions, but the realization on the part of the farmer and his family that if farm labor and the sons and daughters of the farm are to be attracted to the tilling of the soil the farm home must be put on an equality with the city home.

Conditions in so many farm homes have been vividly and accurately described by many writers who are well known authorities on these subjects, and the following is quoted from one of them: "The slender link of woman's existence limits the strength of the chain of farm living. The work of the farmer's wife is not only hard and exhausting, it is continuous and practically unvarying. There is the same lugging of water and slops, the washing and ironing, the sweeping and mending, the care of the children, and the everlasting three meals a day. No other class has derived so little from modern progress and invention, in comfort and luxury, in relief from grinding toil, as the farmer's wife."

"Imagine, if you will, an average farm home without modern improvements. Picture to yourself an average farmer's wife as she goes through her daily routine. Follow every step from the time she starts the fire in the old kitchen till she lays wearily down the last pair of mended stockings late at night.

"THE IDEAL HOME now by magic transfers her in her sleep into a house with just the plain conveniences; a heating system; running water, hot and cold; a bathroom; a sanitary system of sewage disposal; an electric power plant, that makes possible the water convenience, bringing the drinking and cooking water direct from the well, runs the washing machine and wringer, turns the separator and churn, operates the vacuum cleaner and heats the iron; a fan and sewing motor; all this in addition to giving brilliant safe electric light.

"Give her an extra hour to sleep, each morning and each night. When she awakes the kitchen is warm, the water is hot. There is no lugging of water. There are no crusted tubs to clean or lamps to fill. The children are satisfied with the new conditions, they no longer complain of the hard lot of the farmer's son or daughter. Now picture for yourself this wife's day's work and her day's uplift to body, mind and soul. It is the difference between losing and winning; between conquering and being conquered. No magic could work a greater transformation or bring greater joy and comfort."

This has pictured only the housewife's use of electricity. It is equally useful for operating the farmer's grind stone, windmill, sheller, milking machine, etc., to say nothing of the safety it insures to his flammable buildings as compared to the handling of lanterns.

The cost of all this—the expense to make the transformation which the above story pictures may seem some, but it should not. One good year's profits on the average 75 acre farm will cover light, water, bath and heating. Hundreds of farmers spend the equivalent to this for a pleasure car that is used only six to eight months out of a year and is good for only two or three years. As compared to this his home equipment will be good for years and years and the cost of maintaining will be less than ninety per cent of the maintenance of his pleasure car.

The smallest income tax paid in Paris, Ill., was three cents, paid by a young woman after deducting $1,000 exemption. She gave her personal check.
