The high school opened with 214 scholars, 35 more than attended school during the past year.

Now that the public schools of the county have opened, it is not amiss to direct the attention of all parents to strictly caution their children of the danger that lurks about the streets and roads through automobile accidents. As children are wont to do, they frequently engage in reckless play while going to and from school, and as automobile traffic has greatly increased during the past few months, the little ones, as well as the older folks, should maintain a much sharper lookout.
