

RHINE GERMAN HATE FRENCH

Population in Recently Occupied Section on Right Bank Area Sullen and Aloof.

WO'NT UNDERSTAND LANGUAGE

Serve Sour Wine to Soldiers in the Restaurants—Women Seen With Uniformed Men Are Marked for Reprisals.

Duesseldorf, Germany.—The anti-occupation sentiment is much stronger in Duesseldorf, Ruhrort and Duisburg, the cities of Rhenish Prussia recently occupied by the French, than in Mayence, Coblenz and Cologne, which also have been under foreign occupation for more than two years by the French, Americans and British.

As one crosses from the left bank of the Rhine and enters recently occupied territory the mood of the population becomes more sullen, their behavior more aloof and their hatred much more pronounced.

More Like Military Rule. The reason may be that the French are occupying that part of the right bank of the Rhine that they hold near the Ruhr in real military fashion and the occupation is much more severe than that on the left bank.

The hatred of the population is directed more especially against the French, and children are being brought up in a constant terror and undisciplined scorn of the occupying forces, which gives but little promise that the real brotherly love between French and Germans will be achieved with the coming generation.

The absolute refusal to speak French, even by persons well acquainted with the language, is one of the most common ways in which the Germans show their dislike of the French military men. The correspondent walked into a cigar store the other day while a French officer was attempting to make the woman in charge understand the brand of cigarettes he wanted. She seemed absolutely at a loss to understand him. The correspondent translated the officer's request in English. After the officer had departed she told the correspondent in purest French: "I understood him the first time, but I would not give him the satisfaction."

"Boycotted" by Women. Few women in Duesseldorf, Ruhrort or Duisburg will be seen in the company of a uniformed French soldier or officer in the streets. The few who transgress the unwritten law are promptly catalogued at the German city headquarters, and are marked for reprisals. In some cases the difficulty is avoided by the accompanying woman adopting civilian clothes, which seems to be satisfactory all around.

In the wine cellars of the most fashionable restaurants of Duesseldorf there is a corner called "the occupation corner." There are deposited all the bottles of wine that have been refused by the German customers as having soured, owing to defective corks. When a party of French officers put in an appearance they are always served with two or three bottles of the special wine, which they promptly reject, as a Frenchman's taste for wine is infallible, but by the time a real good bottle of wine is reached "the French cannot taste the good of it," as one headwaiter put it.

STING OF BEE DITCHES AUTO

Woman Shrieks and Started Husband Loss Control of Machine.

Atlantic City.—A bumble-bee sting on a woman's ankle caused an automobile accident above Mays Landing, when Irving S. Brewer, an insurance broker of Washington, D. C., drove his car over an embankment into a creek. No one was hurt and no serious damage done, but several hours elapsed before Mr. and Mrs. Brewer could continue their journey.

Started by a piercing shriek from his wife when a bee stung her, Brewer lost control of the car and the machine plunged into the creek.

First aid was administered to Mrs. Brewer, who soon regained her composure. While she suffered some pain as the result of the poisonous sting, her ankle was only slightly swollen.

BLIND, PLUNGES INTO CREEK

Was Rescued and Sold Papers Again as Usual in Spite of Bruises.

Denver, Colo.—C. H. Browning, fifty-five years old, a blind man who sells newspapers, narrowly escaped death when he plunged into Cheery creek from the bridge at Walnut street.

Patrolman O'Connor saw Browning fall and started for the spot on the run. He shouted for help and three firemen from Truck Company No. 1 at the City Hall carried Browning out of the creek.

An hour after he fell, Browning, in a dry suit of clothes, was at his corner selling papers in spite of the bruises and abrasions incurred in the accident.

HUNT FOR RARE EGGS

Strange Errand of McMillan Expedition to Arctic.

Savants Will Make Special Effort to Locate Nest of the Blue Goose.

Boston.—A hunt for the egg of the blue goose will be one of the odd errands of the Donald B. McMillan expedition to Baffin Land this year. The adult blue goose, a variety with a grayish brown body that gets its name from the blue gray of its wing coverts, is not uncommon in the United States, but its breeding haunts have been a subject of much speculation among bird lovers and its nest and eggs have never been observed.

An announcement by Doctor McMillan that on his last trip to the arctic he had noticed fledglings of these geese aroused the interest of students of bird life, with the result that one of the scientists who will accompany the present expedition will be commissioned to keep an especial lookout for blue-goose eggs.

The price that one of these eggs would command has not been quoted, but judging from the enthusiasm displayed in natural history societies over the subject, the goose that laid the golden egg will have nothing on this bird.

Baffin Land is believed to be the greatest breeding place of bird life in the Far North. In its 150,000 square miles of interior unexplored by white men are lakes which the Eskimos describe as being at least 100 miles in length and abounding in wild fowl.

The McMillan expedition will leave here in July in the schooner Bowdoin, specially built for the purpose, and will pass probably 14 months in a study of Baffin Land along various scientific lines.

TAHITI NATIVES ENJOY AUTOS

Anything That Runs Is Used on the Island—Trees Show Result of Wild Rides.

Papeete, Tahiti.—In olden days when a Tahiti native wished to refresh his soul he decked himself with the island's fragrant flowers, obtained a goodly supply of raw sugar rum and retired on foot to some shady valley to enjoy himself. Now he travels in an automobile to his retreat, for the island is full of light machines.

Wounded bark of acacia trees along the avenue from Pautua to Papeete, showing where sundry machines driven by natives have caromed from tree to tree, bear grim witness to the wild rides taken by some of the Tahitians. Lately the government has stepped in and made the roads comparatively safe for pedestrians.

All sorts of machines are found here, bright cars, shining with glistening enamel, cars of ancient vintage, with brass radiators green with verdigris, steering-gear tied with wire, and cars of every degree and condition of repair.

HIDDEN TREASURE IS FOUND

Texas Claims to Have Discovered $75,000,000 in Cave in Mexico.

San Antonio, Tex.—Application has been made to the Mexican government by Adam Fisher of this city for a concession to remove gold and silver bars and Spanish silver dollars, to the value of approximately $75,000,000, from a cave in Raddie mountain, which overlooks Monterey, Mexico.

Fisher said he discovered this hidden treasure recently after a search which covered several years. He said he was led to take up the search by the discovery of an ancient document among the government archives at Saltillo, which showed that in 1810 a great fortune of gold and silver was hidden in Cavillo Blanca by government officials during a revolution.

He even went so far as to count the bullion and money when he discovered it. He said it consists of 8,646 gold bars, 4,460 silver bars and $7,500,000 of octagonal Spanish silver pieces.

Notes By The Way

Russia, with a population of 133,000,000, has yet a larger task to perform, as a large per cent of the population can neither read nor write, and are now suffering severely from the cold, and the ravages of the late world-war.

We do not need to wonder why prices have advanced so rapidly the past 12 months, when we read that 13,000 government employees will lose their positions. Is this another example of being employed at a large salary, with nothing to do? A man past middle-age, for doing light work at stated intervals, employed by the government, told a friend of mine he was receiving $12 to $14 per day for his services.

A New York man, having under his employ hundreds of men, reduced his own salary from $10,000 to $7,000, using the balance, $3,000 in giving his employees more money for their faithful services. Hope there are many more like this man, whose heart is in the right place.

In Belgium, there are thousands of women making lace, working from dawn until dark for the paltry sum of 20c a day, of $1.20 per week. Truck patches, carefully cultivated by a member of the family, helps to keep these industrious workers from starving.

Rev. C. G. Leatherman has upwards of 50 boys and girls in his catechetical class at the Lutheran Church in Manchester. What wonderful possibilities he has in teaching these young people, if they will heed his advice.

A man in New York state, aged 93, boasts that he never had a doctor. Last fall he dug 100 bushels of potatoes, and husked several hundred bushels of corn. He used to milk 3 to 12 cows by hand, and is now amused in seeing the same work done by milking machines in one-fifth of the time. Verily, he is one of the "old school."

Recently while in a large department store in a neighboring town a colored woman came in on business. As she was leaving, after talking in the polite way that the colored people are noted for, a boy of about eight years of age, said, in a surprised tone, "That was a black lady." "Hush," said the proprietor, "she had on a dark veil." "No sir," said the boy, "her skin was black," and he was persistent in the knowledge that his eyesight had not deceived him.

There is an aged lady near Haverhill, named Merryman, past four score and ten, hale and hearty. If the allotted time of man hereon is three score and ten, there must be some reason for length of years given to some people.

On December 24, John D. Rockefeller gave $100,000,000, half of it to the General Education Board, organized by Mr. Rockefeller, in 1902, to raise the salaries of college professors, and half to the Rockefeller Foundation to advance the work of combating disease through improvement in medical education, public health administration, and scientific research.

There is yet plenty of land not occupied or cultivated. Argentina, in South America, has 1,083,598 square miles of land, and has less than ten millions of people, meaning that there

The largest pipe organ in the world was built for the Louisiana Exposition but now is located in the Wanamaker department store in Philadelphia. It weighs 135 tons, the pipes are 32 to 37 feet in length, and the immense organ is lighted by 14,000 electric bulbs.

Another notable man, by the name of Fletcher, was renowned by "Fletcherism," which means to masticate the food thoroughly before swallowing it, to be healthy and live a long, useful life. He advocated chewing crackers so thoroughly that the sweet taste could be realized and enjoyed, yet he died at the age of three score and six.

Statistics say that 126 deaths in Maryland resulted through automobile accidents in 1919. How many of these deaths were caused by speeding and recklessness, we are not able to learn.

A newspaper recently printed an article, prophesying that our coldest weather of the winter is past. The Bible tells us to beware of the Latter-day Prophets. We are not to have any thought (worry) for tomorrow.

A TRAVELING MAN.

On Saturday last a young man, traveling missionary for his church, located in far-away Utah, spoke to me on the subject in which he was vitally interested. In the cities, he claims, during the summer months, the churches are poorly attended. The main part of the audience, he said, are gray-haired and middle-aged people. Where are the young people, we asked. "Out for pleasure," was the reply.
