

TWO QUARTS IS GOOD YIELD FOR MILK DOE

Many Goats Produce Ten Times Their Weight Annually.

Milk Can Be Utilized for Same Purposes as That From Cow, but Less Satisfactory for Making Butter—Best for Infants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

About the first question that most people ask concerning milk goats is, "How much milk will they produce?" This is, of course, a very important consideration, as the value of a doe is estimated largely by her milk production. Even if a doe is purebred, she is of little value from the utility standpoint unless she is capable of giving a good quantity of milk. Many persons in purchasing purebred or even grade goats have been disappointed to find that the milk could be measured in pints and not quarts or gallons as expected.

A doe that produces three pints a day is considered only a fair milker.

Swiss Toggenburg Hornless Milk Goat.

while the production of two quarts is good, and the production of three quarts is considered excellent, provided the lactation is maintained for from seven to ten months, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. There is probably no better way to treat this matter than to state that good does should produce from eight to fifteen times their weight in milk in a lactation period. It is stated by German writers that many goats yield ten times their body weight of milk annually, and exceptional animals as much as eighteen times their weight.

Goats' milk can be utilized for the same purposes as cows' milk, although for some it is not nearly so well suited. For general use, such as for drinking, cooking, and in tea or coffee, the milk has proved very satisfactory. The milk of one of the largest herds in the country is evaporated and sold in that form. Goats' milk is less satisfactory than cows' milk for making butter, but large quantities of goats' milk cheese are manufactured, especially in Europe. Practically all publications dealing with milk goats attribute considerable importance to the use of the milk for infants and invalids.

TO PREVENT POTATO LOSSES

Serious Damage Results From Careless Handling at Harvest Time—Avoid Breaking Skin.

Growers and shippers are responsible for much of the loss that results from shipping diseased potatoes, since a large part of such losses can be controlled. If not entirely prevented, in the field, according to specialists of the bureau of markets of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Serious damage results from careless handling when the potatoes are harvested. Too many persons, it is said, handle potatoes as though they were so many cabbages, rather than a perishable product. Even the breaking of the protective skin frequently proves serious. Such injury not only damages the appearance and necessitates deep paring of the tuber, but affords ready entrance to infection. Loss of this sort lies in every grower's and shipper's power to control, it is pointed out.

SECURE BEST HARVEST HELP

Refrigerators are Usually Efficient but They Are Liable to Leave Before Crops Are All In.

Getting help for the harvest rush is a problem which is best faced weeks in advance. Grain, and orchard harvest seasons bring to many sections large numbers of traveling help who start with a crop in the South and work north with the season to the Canadian border. These workers are usually efficient through long experience, but they are likely to feel the urge of the road and leave before the farmer gets his crop all harvested, obliging him to pay a much higher rate to secure the remainder of the crop before it spoils. Wherever efficient local help can be obtained, it is to be preferred to the rovers.

SELECT HARNESS WITH CARE

Especially Careful That Reins, Breaching and Various Straps Are Heavy and Strong.

Select harness with care. See that it is well made. Make sure, especially, that the reins, breaching, holdback straps, tugs or traces, belly bands and yoke straps are sufficiently heavy and strong for the work required. A runaway team cannot be controlled with weak reins, nor will weak tugs and scrapes stand heavy work.
