TRAPPED IN MOVIE THEATRE FIRE

FOUR DEAD AND 60 INJURED WHEN BLAZE SWEEPS BUILDING IN NEW HAVEN—YALE STUDENTS AMONG VICTIMS

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27.—Fire of undetermined origin, starting shortly after 7 o'clock tonight, destroyed the Rialto Theatre, a moving picture-house, opposite the Hotel Taft, in College street. The theatre was jammed at the time, and persons who had been in the audience declared that there was a stampede to the exits.

It is feared that a number of Yale students are among the probable dead and among the injured. Campus Officer William Wiser said that he thought many students went to the Rialto tonight to see the film production, and he feared some of them were caught in the stampede.

The Rialto Theatre was formerly College Street Hall. Many years ago it was a church, and then passed to Yale University, which used it for public lecture purposes, and for departmental graduation exercises. The theatrical school exercises were held in this hall until the building was sold to private interests.

A man said he saw men jump from the balcony upon persons in seats below.

MINE-CAVE GRIPS A TRAIN

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 22.—Three persons were slightly hurt and scores had a narrow escape when two cars on the Laurel line, running as a trail between here and Scranton, was partly engulfed in a mine cave 20 feet long, 10 feet wide and eight feet deep at Valley View, shortly after midnight. The train was moving at high speed when the motorman noticed a depression. Realizing that it was a mine cave and knowing that he could not stop, he turned on full power with the hope of at least hurdling the hole. The first car passed safely over and was derailed by spreading rails, but the second car went down, the rear end falling to make safe ground. Passengers were thrown about in all directions, lights went out, women screamed and men were badly frightened. Part of the crew left quickly to flag trains and the others tried to quiet the passengers. It was fully an hour before the passengers could be induced to leave the cars, fearing injury from wires that had been pulled down and the third rail.

LIVED IN CAVE 18 YEARS

MAN DRAGGED FROM ABOVE WHEN COAL PROPERTY IS ENDANGERED

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 21.—For 18 years Joseph Shepski, aged about 40, has been living like primitive man. A cave, with some of the modern conveniences, such as a bed and cooking utensils, has been his home, and had not the fire, he might have lived to the end of his time in seclusion.

Shepski worked—that is, now and then. When food and money ran scarce he got employment in the mines, but all the while he used the cave as his home. When he got money ahead, he quit work and lived entirely to himself.

Police men learned of his whereabouts. They crawled through a small hole leading to a chamber of small size. There they found the cave man and dragged him forth. His appearance was much that of the original cave man. His hair was long, his beard untouched for years, his body dirty and his clothing but little more than Adam wore in the garden of Eden.

In his haunt was found fifty dollars in money. His abode was dangerously near a vein of coal. Fear that the fire he made would ignite the coal led to his arrest. He was sentenced to six months on the county poor farm.

HE WILL BE TAKEN BODILY TO HEAVEN, SAYS "PROPHET"

PASTOR AND HIS WIFE BECOME INSANE AT SAME TIME AND ARE TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Middletown, N. Y., Nov. 27.—After delivering a discourse from the text, "Neither did this man sin, nor his parents," the Rev. Fred W. Stacy at St. Paul's Methodist Church today took a large collection for the benefit of the five children of Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Empton, who some weeks ago were committed to the State Hospital.

The Rev. and Mrs. Empton, who is the Methodist pastor in charge of churches at Phillipsport and Wartsboro. Suddenly he became insane and now declares that he is a prophet who is to be taken up bodily to heaven January 1. Mrs. Empton, who became insane about the same time as her husband, imagines she is the wife of a well known millionaire. The children are in St. Christopher's Home at Dobbs Ferry.

WOMAN BUILDS HER OWN HOME WHEN LABOR'S COSTS RUN HIGH

Every Bit of the Work, Except Hauling of Heavy Timbers, is Done by a Busy Wife.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 23.—Pittsburgh has a woman carpenter! and not only is she a skilled carpenter, she is a mason, roofer, plasterer and glazier as well. Mrs. Louise Saxton, of No. 233 Mansfield road, West End, is erecting an attractive bungalow which will serve as a home for her husband, her self and their family. And while she builds, Mrs. Saxton must perform household duties, for she is the mother of six children, ranging in age from 2 to 11 years.

Despite this handicap, in less than two months Mrs. Saxton has almost completed the construction of a four-room shingle and frame bungalow. The only aid she has received has been in the handling of the heavier timbers that went into the framework. One year ago the Saxtons purchased an old house, inadequate to their needs. The labor cost made a much needed home a seeming impossibility, but Mrs. Saxton solved the problem.

"I'll do the work myself," she declared. First she planned the house and then the materials were ordered. Eight weeks ago work was started. Her husband is a truck driver and works long hours. He managed to help a little with the heavy timbers, otherwise all the work has been accomplished by this enterprising woman. The cost of the home, when completed, she estimates between $2000 and $1000. The bungalow would have cost $2500 if erected in the usual way.

LOCOMOTIVE RUSSES AWAY

Phoenixville, Pa., Nov. 21.—A passenger locomotive on the Pennsylvania branch road to Frazer was chased by her own fireman for 10 miles and caught near a bridge over the Lincoln Highway, two hours after she left Phoenixville, last evening.

When the 6:15 run was finished and the "lady" put on the "Y," supposedly for the night, the fireman, hearing a "puff," looking back, and was dumfounded to see his favorite moving down the grade in the direction of Harveyville. He started to run, and he continued to run—for a mile—then he started to walk—past Harveyville, Pickering, Devault and Bacton—and last, about 8 o'clock, found her near the main line.

The engine was carrying 165 pounds of steam and ran till this was used. The trail of the runaway was over a high bridge, on a dangerous curve and up and down steep grades.

THE LEND-A-HAND BOOK CLUB.

The Lend-a-Hand Book Club of Mechanicsville, with their friends, journeyed to the County Home on the evening of November 23, to distribute the annual Thanksgiving treat to the old folks.

A most pleasing visit was paid. Mr. and Mrs. Lambert received the guests in their usual cordial manner. The meeting was opened by the Club members standing and repeating their motto: "Look up, not down; Look out, not in; Look forward, not back, and Lend-a-Hand!"

Rev. Mr. McCaslin, of Providence church, addressed the company. "America" was sung by all, led by Mr. Christie. Miss Florence Patterson was accompanist. The closing address was by Rev. Mr. Field, of Mt. Pleasant Church. A service of song followed, while the ladies arranged the refreshments in the dining room.

A bountiful treat of ice cream, home made cakes, coffee, candy and tobacco was given to the folks. Twenty-five visitors and club members were served with refreshments.
