

Don't Risk Neglect

Don't neglect a constant headache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills as have your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! A Westminster case.

Mrs. Lewis Berman, 131 Penna. Avenue, Westminster, says: "I had a severe attack of kidney trouble and my back pained terribly as if it were pierced by a sharp instrument. The pains bothered me mostly before retiring at night and also in the morning. Sometimes I couldn't get up to do my work. My kidneys didn't act right, either and caused annoyance. My eyes were so bad I had to wear glasses. The doctor didn't do me any good. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box which gave me great relief. Doan's Kidney Pills are a wonderful kidney medicine. I use them now whenever I need them and recommend them to others." (Statement given August 9, 1916.)

On December 10, 1920, Mrs. Berman added: "Doan's Kidney Pills never fail to help me whenever I have any sign of kidney trouble. I gladly repeat all I said in favor of them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Berman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

CONFLICTING REPORTS.

We see in the leading newspapers that more than a million people have been furnished employment in the past two months and yet a huckster told me that in Baltimore conditions were never worse, and it is one of the ten largest cities in the United States.

In our mail we found a letter from a bank, advising people to save for the time when unemployment comes along. When will the reaction come?

LANDRO TO BE BEHEADED.

WILL NOT ASK SENTENCE BE COMMUTED TO LIFE TERM, SAY-ING "I REFUSE TO ASK MERCY."

Versailles, Dec. 1.—Henri Desire Landru, "the Bluebeard of Gambais," smiled last night for the first time since his trial opened. A flickering expression of amusement crossed his face as he listened to the words of Judge Gilbert sending him to the guillotine for a series of the most heinous crimes in the history of French jurisprudence.

"Thank you, gentlemen!" said Landru, nourishing his weather-beaten hat in a mocking bow to the jury, as he disappeared through the little door leading to the Versailles jail.

While the verdict was awaited, the convicted slayer of ten women and a boy spoke words of encouragement to his counsel, M. Moro-Giafferi, who, tired and worn out after his strenuous efforts to save his client from death, was on the verge of collapse. "Strange it is that a man standing in the shadow of death should console his defender," Landru remarked at one time to those sitting nearby.

He refused to be a party to a petition asking President Millerand to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, which was signed among others by two jurors. "I refuse to ask for mercy," he told the latter. "A man like me wants justice, not mercy. You think I am guilty; then let me die!"

The last hours of the trial saw one of the greatest crowds at and around the court room ever seen in Versailles. "If the trial lasted another day I would be unable to find a seat myself," Landru told the gendarmes as he surveyed the throngs struggling to enter after the recess.

Landru secured his woman victims through promises of marriage. After luring them to his villa at Gambais the prosecution charged that he killed them and disposed of the bodies by burning them in a small stove, after first cutting them into small pieces and crushing the skulls. The stove was one of the principal exhibits at the trial.

The motive ascribed to Landru was that of robbery, various entries in a note book being cited to prove that he kept account of the amounts derived from each crime. The victims were mostly married women with small properties who had been separated from their husbands. The evidence was principally circumstantial, the only direct testimony being about a pound and a half of bones, some of the fragments which were so small that they had to be viewed under microscopes.

OFFERS TO GIVE GIRL AWAY

Fairfax, Pa., Nov. 30.—Any person wanting an attractive 14-year-old girl can have Martine Pauline, who is living with her stepfather not far from this city, and attends the Fairall schools. She is a blonde, attractive and willing to work, if given a home. While the name of the girl's stepfather has not been published, he has inserted a notice in a local newspaper announcing his willingness to turn over his guardianship of her to any person who will give her a home and care for her. Because of his inability to get work, after illness of a year, the stepfather is unable to support the girl and wishes to guard her against want.

AUTO WRECKS HISTORIC HACK

Catawissa, Pa., Nov. 29.—For almost half a century, ever since the Bloomsburg division of the Lackawanna Railroad was built, J. E. Roberts has been driving a hack and a team of horses from here. While the horses have been changed, the antique hack remained. Returning from meeting the last train last night, the hack was struck by E. D. Allison's automobile and the relic was today on the junk pile and Roberts is confined to his bed suffering with bad bruises. He thinks he will get an automobile now.

MARYLAND CORN GOOD.

FIVE PRIZES WON AT CHICAGO
EXHIBIT BY MARYLAND GROW-ERS.

Maryland grown corn, exhibited by a number of growers of pure-bred varieties at the Hay and Grain Show, an annual event held at Chicago in connection with the International Live-stock Exposition, won seventeen prizes this year amounting to $166, according to J. E. Metzger, agronomist for the University of Maryland Experiment Station, who attended the show.

Out of a total of fifty possible prizes offered for ten-ear exhibits of yellow corn, Maryland growers won five. The ten-ear sample of G. D. Radebaugh, of Bynum, Harford county, was placed sixth in the contest and was awarded a prize of $25. The ten-ear sample of A. G. Ensor, of Forest Hill, Harford county, was placed eighth and also came in for a $25 prize. Other winners in this class were: A. S. Short, Elkton, $5; G. P. Radebaugh, Bynum, $5; and Henry Rigdon, Forest Hill, $5.

Fifty prizes also were offered for ten-ear exhibits of white corn and out of this number Maryland growers landed eight. Lloyd Balderson, of Calora, Cecil county, led the Maryland exhibitors in this class and scored fourth place in the contest for a prize of $20. James Galbreath, of Street, Harford county, was next among the Maryland growers in nineteenth place receiving a prize of $15. Other winners in this class were: Roy Enfield, Forest Hill, $10; C. C. Balderson, Calora, $10; Fred C. Jones, Darlington, $10; J. A. Hartenstine, Principio, $5; Gladden Davis, Rocks, $5; and Galbreath Brothers, Street, $5.

In the single-ear class, Maryland growers did even better and were awarded four of a possible twenty-three prizes. Henry Rigdon, Forest Hill, had on display the third best ear in Region 4 and was awarded a prize of $5. J. A. Hartenstine, Principio, was ninth, receiving a $5 prize. Other Maryland prize winners in the single-ear class were: Hobson Brothers, Newark, Del. (Farm in Maryland) and Carroll Tyson, Port Deposit, $5 each.

The Hay and Grain Show is the premier event of its kind in the United States and total prizes of more than $1,500 offered for corn exhibits alone, bring to the show thousands of the finest specimens grown throughout the United States. For display purposes the Country is divided into six regions, Maryland being included in Region 4 with some of the more famous of the corn-belt States of the middle west, such as Missouri and Kansas and the southern sections of Ohio and Indiana. The prizes won by the Maryland growers therefore represent outstanding achievements in the production of fine quality corn, according to Mr. Metzger, who says that in his opinion it is an honor and a credit to any farmer to get even a place in the show. Competition in this year's show was especially keen, says Mr. Metzger, and the fine record made by Maryland growers was a matter of considerable comment on the part of the show officials.

HOG ISLAND.

Hog Island, a suburb of Philadelphia, once inhabited by thousands of munition workers, is to be sold at auction. That splendid property, which cost the government $77,000,000 will probably go for a song. Perhaps this is best, but there should be some way to salvage something or to utilize this great plant for the building of ships. Are we to abandon our ideas of keeping the flag on the "Seven Seas"?

TRAITORS.

There is much talk about American soldiers being hanged in France. Four million men in the army—is it considered possible none of them were criminals? Putting on khaki did not change their natures, so why cause such dissatisfaction?

What kind of gasoline do traveling salesmen buy?

DRUMMERS who make dozens of calls a day, who drive further every week than most of us do in a month, know a lot about the efficiency and economy of different motor fuels. They nearly always ask for "Standard" Motor Gasoline.

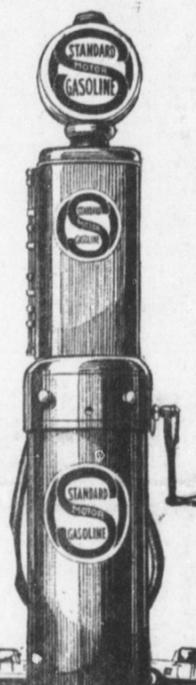

This balanced gasoline gives quick starts, even when the motor has become chilled. It burns up completely, doesn't quickly choke the motor with carbon or ruin the lubricating oil with carbon and unburned gasoline. It runs the motor on a lean mixture and gives big mileage per gallon.

"Standard" Motor Gasoline leads the procession in all these essential qualities. It is the most perfectly balanced motor fuel we know of—the result of innumerable tests for economy and efficiency, perfected refining processes and the choice of the most suitable crudes.

In cold weather or hot, when it's dry and frosty, wet and muddy or hot and sunny, you'll travel the road more smoothly and get further on a gallon. And with less carbon trouble. You won't have to constantly adjust your carburetor. That's why city and country salesmen use balanced "Standard" Motor Gasoline.

You, too, want the best for your money. The best is "Standard" Motor Gasoline. Try it on your next filling. See how lively and powerful your car is, how promptly it starts, how easily it takes hard hills, how far you go on a gallon. One quality wherever you buy it, and for sale everywhere.

Protect the moving parts of your car. Polarine is the great friction remover.
