The Anti-Saloon League's Fate In The Balance.

Before the Senate convened today an agreement was reached by the Senators who had opposed the referendum that on the final vote each should act as he deemed proper. As a result of this only four refused to support the bill, and at least one of these, Dr. Jones, of Montgomery, did so because, he said, he was not only opposed to the referendum but to the bill itself, and in explaining his vote revealed the pre-election methods of the Anti-Saloon League. He said a pledge had been enacted from him to support an enforcement bill, to be submitted, and, being a "dry" representing a "dry" county, he willingly assented, believing when he did so that the bill offered two years ago, and then fathered by the League, would be submitted. Instead there came the measure that was so drastic and so unacceptable that he felt constrained to oppose it.—Annapolis Dispatch.

It may honestly be claimed that if and when the referendum on the enforcement bill is held, the vote will be as much on this sort of practice on the part of the Anti-Saloon League as on the general issue.

The Anti-Saloon League occupies a very peculiar position not only in this State but throughout the country. It is a militant body, taking a hand in legislation, politics and administration, speaking with an assurance and acting with an authority the origin of which is, as mysterious as its exercise is anomalous. There is no other institution in the country like it.

It dictated the Volstead act. We may believe that had Congress been left to itself the administration of the Eighteenth Amendment would have been put on the same broad basis as the administration of transportation under the interstate commerce clause—as the anti-trust laws are administered. It was the League that decided that in the matter of prosecution no line should be drawn between gross and petty infraction of the law. It is the Anti-Saloon League, with body concealed and head alone visible, that keeps its extra-official field agents at work, prodding, challenging, browbeating the Government into ways of persecution instead of prosecution.

It dictated the State enforcement bill. It assumed command, forced the support of candidates for office to support its legislation in blank. The opposition to State enforcement is not opposition to prohibition. It is born as much as anything of fear of such an institution getting its grip on the administration of the law. Its spirit is known. It is responsible for more than half the dispute in which Volstead law as an administrative act is held; and to deliver the State over to it would be a very serious matter.

There is this much to be said for the referendum: that if the Anti-Saloon League loses, that League will have been told with the full voice of public opinion to leave this State alone. Even the most devoted prohibitionist may well stop to consider whether that would not be a desirable decision. It is even possible that with a healthy, fair-playing spirit known to be back of legislation and administration, enforcement legislation might be welcomed and more or less efficacious. But that will not be the case until the State has rid itself of this anomalous, extra-legal organization's dictation.—From Baltimore News March 16.

FACTS CONCERNING MARYLAND'S LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY.

College Park, Md., February 28, 1922.—On January 1, 1922 there were on the farms of Maryland about 4,000 less head of livestock than a year preceding, according to a statement issued today by John S. Dennee, agricultural statistician for the United States Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, cooperating with the extension Service of the University of Maryland. Horses decreased 100 head; mules remained the same; milk cows increased 4000; other cattle increased 3000; sheep decreased 4000; and swine decreased 6000.

The total numbers on farms January 1 are estimated as follows: horses, 122,000; mules, 23,000; milk cows, 122,000; other cattle, 93,000; sheep, 89,000; and swine 235,000.

The total value of livestock has declined $6,505,000, or 15.7 per cent during the year; that is—from a total of $41,398,000 on January 1, 1921 to $34,893,000 on January 1, 1922. This decrease is due partly to a slight reduction in numbers, but more to the lower value per head.

Horses, with a value of $87 per head as compared with $98 a year ago, are lower than they have been at any time in over twenty years. The total value of horses is estimated at $11,919,000, which is $1,605,000, or 11.3 per cent, less than a year ago.

Mules have declined in price $1 per head, the January 1 price being $15. The total value of mules is $2,705,000, a reduction of $330,000, or 3 per cent, as compared with a year ago.

Horses and mules are the only classes of livestock that have a present value below that of 1914. The average values per head on January 1, 1914 were: horses $119; mules $143.

Milk cows have declined 20 per cent in value per head, from $79 to $63, and in total value have declined $2,756,000, or 18.6 per cent, from $14,852,000 to $12,096,000. According to farmers' reports, cows kept for dairy purposes were milked last year an average of 265 days.

Other cattle have declined 28 per cent in value per head, from $46 to $33.29, and in total value have declined $3,116,400, or 25.5 per cent, from $12,200,000 to $9,083,600.

All cattle have thus declined $3,724,400, or 20.2 per cent, from $19,222,000 to $15,497,600.

Swine have declined in value per head 11.5 per cent, from $13 to $11.50; and in total value have declined $505,500, or 13.4 per cent, from $3,783,000 to $3,277,500.

Sheep have declined in value per head 22.5 per cent, from $8 to $6.20, and in total value have declined $192,200, or 25.8 per cent from $744,000 to $551,800.

The numbers of the different classes of livestock on the farms of Maryland, expressed in percentages of the numbers on January 1, 1921, are: horses 99 per cent; mules 100 per cent; milk cows 102 per cent; other cattle 103 per cent; swine 99 per cent; sheep 96 per cent.

Comparing present average values with the January 1, 1914, average values, it is found that the value of horses on January 1, 1922, is 27 per cent less; mules 20 per cent less; milk cows 17 per cent more; other cattle 13 per cent more; sheep 24 per cent more; swine 10 per cent more. The estimated numbers of livestock and the average value per head are revised to the basis of the 1920 Census.

AFTER DEWEY'S SCALP

Young Stecker, of Annapolis, writes the Advocate the following: "I have issued a challenge to Young Dewey, and as yet have received no reply. I understand he has defeated Hoozier Kid and several other good men. My reputation is made, and known by all sporting fans. I challenge Young Dewey to meet me on the mat to a fair match. I would like to meet him in Baltimore or in his own town, Westminster." Respectively yours, YOUNG STECKER.

On top of all other troubles the Republican party left a very bad taste in the country's mouth by seating Newberry. This man was indicted and convicted on a felonious charge and escaped because the Supreme Court found that the law specified "election," while the bribery charge was committed in a "primary election." He escaped by the saving grace of one word! What a splendid vindication. His family should adopt a coat of arms bearing a ten dollar bill rampant, standing triumphant over the remains of a tin Lizzie passant, with the motto in letters of gold: "By one word."

Is America Becoming Fanatic?

While thousands of slender people are dieting and exercising to increase their weight, as many or more are exercising and taking drugs to reduce their weight. A noted doctor says, "Mutilate the body. Cut out the appendix, and the tonsils, and ovaries and everything else the surgeons can remove without immediate death! Cutting out the appendix can no more avert inflammation of the bowel—which is called 'appendicitis'—than cutting off the nose to avert a cold! Removal of the appendix is always followed by chronic constipation. The Missouri State Board of Health wants to enforce a rule that no man, woman or child be permitted to enter a railway car without a certificate that he, she or it has been vaccinated against smallpox within the past three years. That is the sort of thing we are coming to if the people don't watch out!"

The Largest Circulation.

Many newspapers vie with each other in contesting for the largest circulation thus being enabled to command the highest prices for advertising.

The "Ladies Home Journal" with more than 100 large pages in each issue, charges from $1,000 to $2,500 per page, according to position and color work.

The largest circulation of any periodical printed on earth is that of the "News of the World," a weekly newspaper, owned by Lord Riddell, and printed in London. It has a circulation of 4,000,000 uses 450 tons of paper with each issue, is printed on 26 presses, and its advertising rate is over $10,000 per page.
