CHICKEN WEEK IN WESTMINSTER

THE MARYLAND MID-STATE POULTRY SHOW OPENS NEXT TUESDAY ON THE MAIN FLOOR OF THE ARMORY.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Maryland Mid-State Poultry Show at the State Armory, Westminster, next Tuesday morning, November 14, at 9 p. m. From that hour until closing time on Saturday night, November 18, there will be something doing every minute. The quality of the show, as indicated by the entries, is of the highest order. Especial interest will be attached to the Standard-Production Class which will be judged by score card for both exhibition and utility qualities.

All the popular classes will present real competition. In the Barred Plymouth Rock classes Mr. C. N. Myers, of Hanover; Mr. A. C. Levering, of Baltimore; and Miss E. S. Galbreath of Street, and others will battle for the honors. In the other Rock classes both the Whites and Partridge varieties have large representation. In the Wyandottes, the Whites, the Silver Laced and the Partridge classes are well filled. The Madison Square Garden winners of Mr. H. J. Hunt, of Chevy Chase, Md., in Partridge Wyandottes, valued by their owner at more than $5,000, will be on exhibition and will have competition. As usual the Rhode Island Reds will be out in force, the quality leaving nothing to be desired.

There is going to be a surprise for the talent for there will be a real battle in the S. C. White Leghorn classes. The entries indicate that the quality of the specimens to be passed upon are above the ordinary.

Besides the more popular varieties there will be found the old favorites of the show room. There is a fine display of Light Brahmans, Orpingtons, Campines, Cornish, and Silver Spangled Hamburgs, as well as the little bantams, Ducks, Turkeys and Geese have also places in the line up.

Special arrangements have been made to make the judging of the Standard-Production Class as much benefit to visitors as possible. All specimens in this class will be scored for both exhibition and production qualities by two different judges. The judging in this class will begin Tuesday afternoon at 1 p. m. and be continued each afternoon until completed. Prof. Roy E. Jones, of Storrs, Conn., who has had considerable experience in handling classes of this kind, will assist Prof. Roy H. White of the Maryland Agricultural College in judging the production qualities of the specimens. The regular exhibition judges will score them for standard qualifications.

There will be culling demonstrations each day of the show conducted by the poultry specialists. Education at meetings will also be held each day and on Thursday evening there will be a special moving picture shown in Firemen's Hall of more than 5,000 feet of film showing proper poultry methods and culture. Prof. Angel, of Chicago, will lecture on this occasion. Friday will be Children's Day and the school children of the county will be admitted free of charge. There will be special guides to explain the different breeds and the Boy Scouts will keep order. The Junior Exhibit of trios this year will consist of more than 40 entries from the club members of Carroll county.
