FOREIGNERS FIGHT KNIFE AND FORK DUEL

Argument Started During Evening Meal and Both Men Were Badly Cut Up

Special to The Telegraph
Lewistown, Pa., Jan. 20.—Nagneys, this county, has again figured in trouble, in which a knife and a fork were used to fight a duel. Sunday night two Slavs got into heated argument over a bowl of mush. One of the men jabbed the other one across the table with a fork. The man receiving the fork jab, pulled out a knife and jabbed his assailant. The knife wielder got down to business in the scrapping line and cut his opponent about six or seven times across the head and shoulders, and slashed him above the heart, causing a deep and painful laceration. The man who used the knife also bled much from the fork wounds. Dr. Carney, of Milroy, dressed the man's wounds who was injured by the knife. The man who did the carving disappeared after the duel. There are stone quarries in operation at Nagneys, where many foreigners are employed.

President Wilson Favors Freight Rate Increase

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Telegraphers President Wilson yesterday admitted that there was some unrest in the business world, but indicated that it was largely confined to industries whose property is dependent to a greater or less degree on the prosperity of the railroads. Friends of the Administration declare that the business of the railroads will undoubtedly be up if they are permitted to increase rates in accordance with the application made to the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The impression is quite general that the commission will act favorably on the application of the railroads.

Latent Life in Inorganic Matter, Servant's Belief
Capt. Inch to Command New Liner Principello
Carpenter Resigns Tri-State Presidency; Graham to Be Elected

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 20.—Before a distinguished group of scientists in the Johns Hopkins physical laboratories last evening, Dr. L. J. Henderson, of Harvard University, asserted that researches extending over many years had convinced him that inorganic matter contained latent life. Before the surprised savants who heard this radical theory had recovered from their astonishment, he added that he believed this latent life became active, under certain conditions and that soon the line between the two would be crossed.

Just as important as the missing link between the lower animal life and the human life is the connecting link between matter that is wholly inorganic and passive, and that which is organic and active. Doctor Henderson believes he is on the way to find that missing link. He believes that the dividing line between the thing that lives and the thing that is, but does not live, soon will be established, and that he will be able to demonstrate the process of transition.

Feel Out of Scrts?

It's a good idea to look for the cause!

One common, but often unsuspected cause is coffee-drinking. Yet some persons seem able to get along with coffee—at least for a time. But when headachy, bilious days come; breakfast or some other meal doesn't taste good; and the day's work goes wrong. (Ever feel that way?)—then it's time to find out for sure if coffee is causing the trouble in your case.

There's a subtle, poisonous drug, "caffeine," in coffee that interferes with the normal functions of body, brain and nerves, and has a lot to do with one's comfort and progress.

Suppose for a test you try the simple expedient of quitting coffee and using well-made

POSTUM

—a pure food-drink made of choice wheat. It has a delightful, Java-like flavour but is absolutely free from caffeine or any other drug.

After ten days or two weeks you will be able to decide whether to go back to coffee troubles, or stick to Postum and peace and comfort.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum—must be well boiled.

Instant Postum—doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Grocers everywhere sell both kinds.

"There's a Reason" for POSTUM
