FAVOR GOVT. OWNERSHIP

By Associated Press
Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22.—Further consideration of the resolution committee's report was the business of the convention of the United Mine Workers of America here to-day.
That the committee will recommend a resolution favoring government ownership of railroads and mines was forecasted in the debate yesterday.

YALE ANTHROPOLOGIST TELLS OF CAVE MEN

William R. Denehey Elected President of Natural History Society of Harrisburg

A tour of the caves and rock shelters in France and Spain, where the richest finds have been made of paintings, carvings and implements, and the remains of early man and ancient animals ranging from 25,000 to 300,000 years in age, was taken last night in the Technical high school auditorium at a lecture under the Natural History Society's auspices on "The Antiquity of Man in the Light of Recent Discoveries," by Professor George Grant MacCurdy, Yale's world-famous anthropologist and archaeologist.
As a result of these recent discoveries Professor MacCurdy was enabled to talk almost as familiarly about Mousterian, Aurignacian, Solutrian and Magdalenian times as the ordinary historian does about the civilization of the Greeks and Romans.
The wonderful carvings, bas-reliefs in stone, sculpture in clay, and paintings in several colors, on the walls and ceilings of caves, of the mammoth, horse, bison, woolly rhinoceros and reindeer, showed the existence nearly 100,000 years ago of men of keen intelligence and high artistic ability.
Emphasis was laid upon the inventive genius displayed in fashioning improved implements and its importance in the story of human progress. A set of one dozen State Museum slides showing pictorially the everyday life of these early men and its attendant dangers, which it was hoped Professor MacCurdy would add to his lecture, were not shown.
The annual election of officers of the Natural History Society resulted as follows: President, William R.
Denehey; first vice-president, Boyd P.
Rothrock; second vice-president, Professor William M. Fahnestock; treasurer, Miss Alice Gingham; corresponding secretary, Professor James I.
Hamaker; recording secretary, Professor J. F. Rees.

"Graft, Graft, Graft Everywhere," Says Sulzer

By Associated Press
New York, Jan. 22.—William Sulzer's story of "graft, graft, graft everywhere" as sketched by him at the John Doe inquiry yesterday, assumed the grand jury phase to-day. Having sworn yesterday that United States Senator O'Gorman described James E.
Gaffney as "Murphy's chief bagman who tried to 'hold up my friend Stewart for $100,000," the ex-governor was invited to go over these charges in more detail before the jury. Later it was thought, Senator O'Gorman might be called.
The Stewart mentioned is James Stewart, a State highway contractor.
Gaffney is a prominent politician, contractor and business associate of the leader of Tammany Hall.

On the stand Sulzer said Senator O'Gorman had said to him "don't you know that Gaffney is the man that held up my client, James E. Stewart for over $100,000; and that he could have got away with it if Stewart had not come to me; and I went to Murphy and I read the riot act telling him I would not stand for that kind of politics."

HENRY SIEGEL ON STAND
New York, Jan. 22.—Henry Siegel, of the private banking firm of Henry Siegel and Company and of one of the department store enterprises now in the hands of receivers, took the place of his partner, Frank E. Vogel, as a witness before Special Examiner George C. Holt to-day.

Better Than a Watchdog

Burglars strictly avoid houses having a watchdog, a baby or a lighted lamp. They have an even greater aversion for houses wired for electric light.

A porch light affords the most effective protection. Ready at the touch of a switch to pour a flood of brilliant light it serves to prevent the entry of night intruders even on to the grounds around the house.

When wiring a house we locate the switches so as to afford the greatest convenience and protection to its occupants. Our rates enable all householders to obtain these advantages at moderate cost and on easy terms.
