

Women AND THEIR INTERESTS

WHEN LOVE UMPIRES

By Beatrice Fairfax

A YOUNG man from a little country town dips his pen-point in the wellsprings of Hope, and writes me:

"I am twenty-three years of age, and deeply in love with a girl in a nearby city. I am a baseball player of some ability, getting twenty dollars a week in the baseball season. Would you advise me to marry now, or wait till I get in the National League?"

While marriage on only twenty dollars a week only during the baseball season would be extremely perilous, and altogether inadvisable, still I cannot urge you to wait until you are in the National League. I would like to see happiness make a home run to more than one woman in ten thousand, and that the proportion of the feminine population of the world that would enjoy that experience if all men waited till they had reached the National League of their ambition before marrying.

The brakeman with his eyes fixed on the private car of the railroad president; the bank clerk who wants some day to be the head of his bank; the theological student who wants to be bishop, and every corner in the world who regards his office as a steppingstone to the White House, would every mother's son of them want some woman unwed to her grave if proposal of marriage rested on the fulfillment of ambition. There would be no "climbing the hill to-

Their Married Life

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Florida Limited, Atlantic Coast Line, Saturday, Jan. 17.

Dear Helen—Forgive me for not seeing you before I left, but that seemed to be the better way. Everything is over between Bob and me. This is FINAL.

Just now I do not feel much of anything. The emotions of the past week have left me almost without feeling. I'm glad to rest, glad to be away from it all.

All morning I've been gazing out at the fields, the farmhouses, the grazing cattle. The quiet peacefulness of it all makes that final scene with Bob seem so long ago—yet it was only eight before last.

Helen, I did not know that a man could hurt himself up into so fierce a rage. I have never seen such concentrated fury. There was one moment when I thought he would strike me. Oh, I wasn't afraid, don't think that, but it was all such a revelation! I knew he had an ungovernable temper, but I had never seen him wholly lose control of it.

I know you thought everything would be right after that tea at the Astoritz. You left us purposely, that he might take me home alone. But we were really nearer when you were with us. We hardly spoke after you left. We were both waiting for the other to make the overtures—and neither of us did.

When he helped me from the cab he asked if he might come the next night. All that next day I was in a fever of excitement, confident that everything would be cleared up in the long evening we would have together.

Then some old friends of father's whom I had to help entertain, called that evening. Bob did not have a moment to spare until they left—and they stayed until after 11. He was furious. He blamed me for our lost evening. He was most unreasonable and I was in no mood to humor him. It is curious how slight a thing may affect our whole life. If those people had not called I would not now be on this train on my way to Florida.

As it was, we quarreled bitterly. When he left, it was understood that he would come again the next evening, and that we would have it finally then. He came—and we did have it out!

He thought he would break my will just by the sheer force of his rage. Oh, how can two people who love deliberately try to hurt each other? Yet that is what we both did. There was nothing too cruel for either of us to say.

You told me that when you were hurt you could never keep back the tears, but I did not cry. He said I was monstrously cold and unfeeling, that I was unwomanly, that—and, oh, so much more.

If I could only write, I would weave it all into a book or a play, and I think it would comfort me. The "Brute" would be a good title, but I believe that has been used.

I wonder if you have ever seen Warren in the white rage that I saw Bob in that night. You disagree, or so pliant, you may never have aroused the demon in Warren as I aroused it in Bob. But we cannot change our natures, and mine is not the yielding kind.

I wish I could have seen you before I left. It may be months before I am back in New York. Father will have to bring me, but I shall stay until Spring, and then we may go to Europe, so you see it is final.

Write me. Write me soon. Perhaps if you go abroad again next summer we may meet then. Now that you are

BLOUSE WITH TUNIC IS MOST STYLISH

Simply Made and is Easy For an Amateur to Put Together

8151 Blouse with Tunic for Misses and Long Women, 16 and 18 years.

WITH SMALL OR THREE-QUARTER SLEEVES, WITH OR WITHOUT CHEMISETTE.

Here is a garment that can be worn either in the house or upon the street. It shows the very newest and smartest lines and it can be made of material to match the skirt or of a contrasting one. Whatever way it is treated, it is pretty and new and sure to be interesting. Girls who like to make new frocks quickly will be glad to hear that it is very simple. The sleeves that are joined to the blouse at the elongated shoulder line mean easy fitting. Since the pleppum is separate and joined to the blouse beneath the belt, the garment is an extremely easy one to put together. Fashion still declares for the open neck but all girls do not like it and there is a separate chemise that can be worn that is very pretty made either of plain or of figured net. In the picture, Canton crepe is trimmed with velvet and a little bit of Oriental banding.

For the medium size, the blouse will require 2 1/2 yds. of material 27, 2 3/4 yds. 36, 1 1/2 yds. 44 in. wide, with 3/4 yd. of velvet for the collar and cuffs, 3/4 yd. of banding.

The pattern 8151 is cut in sizes for girls of 16 and 18 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

Madame Is'bell's Beauty Lesson

LESSON XI—PART VII. PHYSICAL CULTURE. Make Exercise of Sweeping.

Sweeping can be made a valuable exercise if correctly done. Do not dig the broom into the carpet, but sweep the surface of it with light, swift movements, keeping the body erect and the feet on the balls of the feet. When a carpet is so dirty that this method of cleaning is not sufficient, use a vacuum cleaner or have it taken up and shaken by men. Shaking heavy rugs is not woman's work.

Stand Properly.

A great deal of housework must be done on the feet. Remember, that to rest heavily on the feet does not rest, but only increases fatigue. I have known women to do dance steps while dusting—an excellent idea.

While you are on your feet, stand properly: when it is possible to work sitting, do it. A high chair for the ironing board is a necessary part of the kitchen furniture. Equally useful is a comfortable, broad, low chair where with feet comfortably planted on the floor the housewife can prepare vegetables or do work of a like nature.

Here is one lesson that I wish American housewives would learn from Europeans, and that is to do as much of their work as possible out of doors. Housework in Europe has far fewer conveniences than in this country, but those that do it are never tired. They take their work out of doors. The housewife must remember that no amount of exercise within four walls will compensate for lack of outdoor life.

Housework is hard work, but so long as it is within the measure of one's physical strength, it can be done with profit to one's physical well-being. The woman who sits down at the dinner table so tired that she cannot eat, has either been wasting her strength, or else her untrained muscles are not physically able to do the work asked of them. In either case, whether it is to gain strength or to use her strength more wisely, she needs some amount of physical culture.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS

The ordering of the President's yacht, the Mayflower, to Vera Cruz, was thought to preface the return of Special Envoy John Lind.

Nicholas Erllich, of Brooklyn, representing independent tobaccoists, told the House Judiciary committee that "big business" was trying to influence trust legislation. He accused Samuel Untermyer of being the legal adviser of the United Cigar Stores monopoly, and of recommending that corporation to absorb the Riker-Hegerman drug stores.

Representative Doremus, of Michigan, proposed as a solution of the Panama Canal tolls controversy that all foreign vessels engaged in domestic commerce, as well as those of the United States, be allowed free passage through the waterway.

Appearing before the House public lands committee Secretary Lane advocated opening up of the new grade school leasing system as the best means of making Alaskan coal available.

Society women of official Washington met formally to consider means of simplifying the calling code. It was suggested that after the first call women might exchange cards by mail, footman or messenger in lieu of personal visits.

Dr. George Drach, of Philadelphia, was a speaker at the opening session held by the United States Cavalry Sixty-first convention at Columbia. There were 1,000 delegates present.

General Hugh L. Scott, commanding the United States troops at the Mexican front, received a report that Maximo Gaitanero, the bandit responsible for the Cumbre tunnel murders, had been captured at Hachita, N. M., by members of the United States Cavalry. Sixty of the bandit's followers also were arrested.

CHANGES AT MECHANICSBURG

Special to The Telegraph

Mechanicsburg, Pa., Feb. 18.—W. J. Shriver, who was driver of the Adams Express wagon for many years, resigned his position to accept one with the Atlantic Refining Company and will leave for New York City on Saturday. He will have charge of Mechanicsburg business and that of the smaller towns nearby, while Mr. Shriver will look after the country trade. Howard Bittinger has been engaged to drive the express wagon in this place.

PIANO CRUSHES MOVER

Fred Arnold, 27 years old, of 100 Conoy street, was seriously hurt yesterday afternoon when a piano weighing 900 pounds fell on him while he was moving it at the Philadelphia and Reading freight station. At the Harrisburg hospital he was said to be internally injured.

Resinol Stops Skin Torments

How This Wonderful Ointment Ends Itching and Heals Skin Eruptions.

The soothing, healing medication in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap penetrates every tiny pore of the skin, clears it of impurities, and stops itching instantly. Resinol speedily heals eczema, rashes, ringworm and other eruptions, and clears away disfiguring pimples and blackheads, when other treatments prove a waste of time and money.

Resinol is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which proved so wonderfully successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other doctors all over the country for more than eighteen years.

No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c and $1) and Resinol Soap (25c); but for trial size, free, write to Dept. 44-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Look for the blue package and avoid worthless "substitutes."—Advertisement.

PEOPLE Of All Ages

Many persons dread the approach of winter on account of chilblains and frost-bites which causes a soreness and itching at times almost unbearable, frequently bringing on a nervous condition. The following treatment gives immediate relief. Dissolve two table-spoons of salicylic compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for 15 minutes for several days. The trouble disappears. The action of salicylic compound for all foot ailments is really remarkable. It works through the pores and removes the cause.

Corns and calluses can be peeled right off with a swab of feet and tender aching feet need but a few applications. Bunions get relief instantly. Any drug-store has salicylic in stock or will get it from its wholesale dealer. The five cent package is usually sufficient to put the worst feet in fine condition. Each package contains valuable instructions on care of the feet. Published by Medical Formula Laboratories of New York.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flushed clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.
