Keystone Private Hospital An Institution of Which Harrisburg People May Justly Feel Proud

THE KEYSTONE PRIVATE HOSPITAL IS LOCATED ON THE CORNER OF THIRD AND BRIGGS STREET, IN A LARGE BUILDING ERECTED SOLELY FOR HOSPITAL PURPOSES.

This hospital during the three years of its existence has so fully met the most exacting demands of the medical profession, that it has not only earned their good will and approval, but is meeting with their cordial support.

It combines all the comforts and conveniences of the home with all the requirements of an up-to-date institution for alleviating pain and ministering to the needs of patients.

The operating room is thoroughly equipped with surgical instruments, utensils and sterilizers. It is well lighted and provided with every convenience.

The hospital is equipped with a noiseless automatic elevator, large enough to receive a cot or stretcher. This greatly facilitates the handling of the patients.

Its rooms are well lighted, properly ventilated, neatly furnished, cosy and home-like. The walls and trim of the rooms were especially designed to prevent the accumulation of dust particles.

The fact that the nurses of the institution reside next door to it, makes it possible to provide new patients with the service of a graduate nurse at a moment's notice.

Formerly many patients chose to go to the larger cities for treatment. The danger and expense incident to their removal long distances, and the annoyance and mental distress of meeting strangers, and having treatment in their hands can now be avoided.

This hospital reaches the public through the physicians of the city and vicinity. All physicians are welcome to take advantage of its extraordinary facilities.

Dr. G. W. Hartman is the surgeon-in-charge of the Keystone hospital—sometimes called the Hartman Hospital.—Advertisement.
