

JOHNNY BOYD'S BODY LAID TO REST TODAY

tot of Pine Street Church sang "I Love to Tell the Story" and "Asleep in Jesus."

The Fallbearers The following were the active pallbearers: George E. Cook, Colonel Joseph E. Hutchinson, representing the James McCormick Bible Class of the Pine Street Presbyterian Sunday School; Harry W. Keeny, William P. Stuart, representing the mission John Y. Boyd organized Bible class; William F. Shaeffer, representing the Mrs. Henry B. McCormick organized Bible class; Ralph A. Stites, representing the Mrs. A. P. L. Dull organized Bible class; R. Ross Seaman, representing the Henry B. McCormick organized Bible class, and William Naugle, representing the Benjamin Whitman organized Bible class.

The honorary pallbearers were D. W. Cox, E. Z. Gross, James A. Stranahan, J. A. Reinhard, John E. Patterson, Thomas W. Wierman, Vance C. McCormick, James M. Cameron, Henry McCormick, Jr., Francis J. Hall, John Fox Weiss and Dr. R. F. L. Ridgway.

Action on the death of Mr. Boyd was taken last night at a meeting of teachers and officers of the Pine Street Presbyterian Sunday School, at which Mr. Boyd was long connected as scholar, teacher and superintendent.

These resolutions were adopted: "In memory of our beloved superintendent, John Y. Boyd, who departed this life on Monday morning, March 9, 1914, the teachers and officers of the Pine Street Presbyterian Sunday School present the following tribute:

"Mr. Boyd was elected superintendent of our school on the 9th day of July, 1907, for the term of three years, commencing August, 1907, and was re-elected for a similar term twice, and was serving as such at the time of his death.

"No mistake was made in his selection. He was a faithful and devoted Christian and a model superintendent. He had executive ability of a superior order and was wise in the selection of his methods in conducting the school. He was a splendid Bible scholar and teacher, was courteous and kind to officers, teachers and scholars, and won the hearty cooperation of all by his affectionate and sunny disposition. He was a man of more than ordinary intelligence and was an ardent student of the Bible and believed in it as the very word of God. He was a firm believer in the deity of Jesus Christ, and in his life manifested his faith in the power and work of the holy spirit. He believed in the missionary spirit of the gospel of Jesus Christ and was an ardent advocate of missions.

"His interest in the Sunday school cause was general, but his love for the Pine Street Sunday School was special. He had a warm hand and a kind heart for all its members. His presence in the school was an inspiration and his memory will be to us all a priceless legacy. Every pulsation of his noble heart was in deep sympathy with the work and for the success of our school. He will be absent from us in the body, but being dead yet living, he will be as teachers and officers of this school we can pay no higher tribute to his memory than by pledging ourselves here and now to the continuation of the work he so remarkably developed in our school. God's workers may die, but His work must go on."

The resolutions were signed by Thomas L. Wallace, John Fox Weiss, Mrs. E. Z. Gross, Mrs. John G. Stewart and James A. Stranahan, chairman.

to the "special school" a scholar must have an average not lower than 90 per cent. for the year in the seventh and eighth grades. When he can show this result he is then required to pass a rigid examination. If he is successful here also his admittance is only a question of parental consent. Through this method children in any way disqualified for keeping up with the double work expected of them are found out in time and it is very unusual that a pupil or member of the "special school" ever has to drop out and back. There are, sometimes, cases where for a couple of months things look discouraging, but by gentle urging on the teacher's part and a fresh grip on the scholar's, they forge ahead rapidly.

Boys and Girls Faithful The course of study usually done in one year in the eighth grade is gone through in the first four months in the "special school." The regular tests or examinations take place in December and from that time until the June closing the work of the ninth grade is done. It requires unlimited ambition and faithfulness on the part of the scholars. They have by that time reached the age to appreciate the value of education and the need of application. That they do so is proven by the perfectly wonderful record of attendance.

Most of the "special school" pupils who attend the Woodward building have from one and a half to two miles to go every day. With the exception of the Monday morning of wind and blizzard a week ago there is almost an unbroken roll of perfect attendance since the first of the term. At the Kelly building the same record is shown.

Home environment has a great deal to do with the progress of the pupils, say the teachers. The parents' financial condition is such that the child is left free to study at home. Instead of helping to increase the family income outside of school hours or to assist materially with the work of the home, there is seldom time for the usual quiet study periods during their busy school hours. Usually two, and sometimes three, lessons must be thoroughly mastered at home every day. There have been a few exceptional cases where children have carried both the financial and educational burdens on their young shoulders, but such cases are rare. When they do occur the grit and courage of the child makes its special appeal to the sympathies of the two wonderful women who have this work in charge and they are quick to defend and help the struggling young feet up the ladder to their utmost ability.

The reaction of the nerve strain upon the delicate physical organisms of half-grown boys and girls is something which requires constant watchfulness. It was with this idea in mind that Mrs. Fox, the teacher of the Woodward building "special school," told her class at the beginning of the season:

Do Work Each Day "Do what I give you to do each day and never worry yourselves about the results. If you will follow my lead, it is all I ask. I will bear all the burden of responsibility for you and all the care and strain." As a general thing, the children keep well and seem none the worse for their extra amount of study.
