

REWARD OF $1,000 FOR BOY'S RETURN

City meet next Thursday, there is a possibility that they may be asked to offer another reward. Select Councilman William J. Crawford, of the Thirtieth ward, yesterday said he was considering this plan, and probably would offer a resolution at the next meeting.

Captain of Police McCooch said Councilman offered a reward for the return of Charlie Ross, kidnaped from his home in Germantown forty years ago.

Impetus will be given to the search for the missing lad by the reward, it is thought. Private detectives throughout this and other cities will add their efforts to those of the police and central office detectives.

Three Suspects Freed Three suspects were questioned at the Twentieth and Fitzwater street station yesterday, but later were released. The first man was James Donohue, a description of whom had been sent out Saturday afternoon.

Donohue speedily convinced the detectives that he knew nothing of the missing lad. The other men, one of them colored, were picked up in the neighborhood of the lad's home.

Captain McCooch, Detectives Gleason and Ulrich and special policemen of the district questioned these men, but failed to connect them with the disappearance.

City Treasurer McCooch and McCarrick, the boy's father, who works in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, are personal friends. The City Treasurer saw that McCarrick would not be able to stand the strain of the suspense much longer, and accordingly authorized him to offer a reward of $1,000. After McCarrick had announced this offer, the City Treasurer said: "The $1,000 will be paid five minutes after the boy is returned to his home."

For a time yesterday the scene of the search was shifted to picturesque old Martin's and Greenwich village, in the far southeastern part of the city. Detective Frank O'Connor and several others went into that region and also through the truck farm territory between Broad street and the Schuylkill river, searching for some trace of the former's wagon in which Warren is thought to have been carried away. They found nothing.

Search Near Home Further search also was made in the stables and houses near the home of the missing boy. The lad's father persists in the belief that the child is somewhere in the neighborhood. Two detectives or special policemen are standing guard all the time in front of the McCarrick house. It is feared that neighbors may try to inflict summary vengeance if it is discovered that the boy has been harmed.

One theory to which the detectives are devoting much time is that a burglar who robbed the home of Joseph Craven, 1839 Bainbridge street, may be implicated in the disappearance. The robbery occurred last Wednesday, the day before Warren was missed.

A woman who lives in the neighborhood says she saw Warren chopping ice in the alley in the rear of the house that was robbed, on the day of the burglary.

The detectives believe that the burglar may have been known to the boy, and that after making good his escape he became apprehensive that the lad had recognized him, and decided to get the child out of the way.

TO RESUME WORK ON IMPROVEMENTS

the Stucker Brothers' Construction Company, the contractor, will be to tear out of a couple of sections at Tuscarora street. This was agreed upon before the job was closed down for the winter.

The contractors originally had been required to complete the wall in 200 working days, but an additional thirty days has been allowed. To date about half the time has been consumed and approximately twenty-five per cent of the wall is completed. According to the specifications a "working day" is a day upon which the stage of the river is below three feet.

Work on the Creek Job Unsatisfactory weather is all that will prevent the start of work on the creek. The stream is improved now from its mouth to Hemlock street. Between Market and Walnut the contractor was working when operations were discontinued for the winter. The job is practically finished from Rely to Maclay. When the work is formally started this Spring the contractor will begin at these three points to join the links.

The resumption of the river dam construction will hardly be possible before June 1. More than half the job is completed and it is believed that the contractor can finish before Fall. Possibly 300 feet will be left open, however, in that the height of the river may not be raised to such an extent as to interfere with the construction of the wall. The engineers of the Board of Public Works figure that the footwall should be completed to "Hardacre" before the final open link in the dam is closed.

To Decide Upon Wharf No steps or wall will be constructed from Herr to Calder streets and it is likely that the section at Market street will be left open until the remainder of the job is finished. Whether or not a small wharf will be built at Market street or whether the steps will be continued, is yet to be decided. Chances are that the section will be left free of either wall or steps. The steps have been finished from Iron alley to Tuscarora street.

The bond of the Central Construction and Supply Company, the low bidder on the Dock street bridge, was prepared today. The specifications provide that the company shall begin work within five days after notification by Commissioner W. H. Lynch, superintendent of streets and public improvements. Sixty days are allowed in which to complete the job. Commissioner Lynch will likely notify the company to begin by April 1 provided the contract is approved by City Council to-morrow. In the meantime, it is hoped the $25,000 bonus from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will be paid.

Street Paving Plans Harrisburg will have comparatively little to do this year in the way of street paving. In addition to a few streets that were left over from last year, Derry street from Eighteenth to Twenty-second, and Maclay street, Maclay from the Pennsylvania railroad to Cameron and Seventh street from Emerald to Woodbine, are the only sections to be improved. Some grading incident to the changing of the tracks by the Harrisburg Railways Company will be necessary before the Derry street job can be started and this it is expected will be finished by May 30. In the meantime a few sewer connections will be made in that highway. An additional block in Derry street,—from Twenty-second to Twen-

The Spring Showing of Women's and Misses' Coats, Suits and Dresses Reveals Fashion's Correct and Exclusive Models

Saturday was a busy day in the garment section. Visitors came and inspected the lines, and satisfaction with the styles and materials and workmanship of these fine garments was liberally expressed.

It is indeed a difficult matter to print a word picture of these fascinating styles. Another obstacle in describing them is the fact that there are no two alike in the better garments, and seldom in the lower priced garments. This gives our customers the advantage of individuality with their garments.

The display represents the choicest models of our best makers and the prices are extremely attractive.

Suits, $12.50 to $45 Coats, $7.50 to $45 Dresses, $5 to $35

We Charge for Alterations On Women's Garments BECAUSE We Can Make Our Prices Lower

Tailors and alteration hands must be paid. Their salaries are attached to the price of the garments where alterations are done free. This is only natural and every person fully realizes that the customer must pay for the alterations in this way. Our method is different.

For instance—a suit that would ordinarily be priced $25.00 is priced $23.50, or an $18.00 suit is priced $16.50 or a $22.50 suit is priced $21.00.

If a woman prefers to have no alterations on her suit she has none to pay for. If there are alterations necessary she is charged for them at cost, which is from 50c to about $1.50, according to the amount of work necessary.

The main and important thing is that no woman is asked to pay for alterations if she does not need them, or, in other words, pay for the alterations on another woman's garment.

BELL COMPANY TELLS WHY IT OPPOSES PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

By Associated Press New York, March 16.—The rapid growth of the Bell Telephone system, and its attitude toward government ownership are set forth in detail in the annual report of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, made public to-day. President Theodore N. Vail says the company is opposed to government ownership because it is interested in the upbuilding of a great public utility and does not believe a government-owned telephone system would give as cheap and efficient service.
