TECH HIGH BOY SAVES TWO FROM DROWNING

The bravery of Martin Phillips, a freshman at the technical high school, yesterday saved two young boys from drowning in a pool at Bellevue Park.

The etching on the upper left shows Joseph Baumhoyer, one of the boys rescued by Phillips, on the upper right is seen Willie Geiger, the other lad who nearly drowned.

While playing with a frog on the shore of a small island in a pond of Bellevue Park yesterday afternoon Joseph Baumhoyer, 8 years old, 1944 Swatara street, and Willie Geiger, 10, 547 South Fourteenth street, had a narrow escape from drowning when a large ground upon which they were standing gave way and they were thrown into water beneath their depth.

That the two boys were not drowned is owing to the quick action of Martin Phillips, a Technical high school boy, 15 years old, who lives at 1833 Market street. He saw the boys in peril, was standing on the bank of the pond. Without a moment's pause when he saw the two lads struggling in the water he plunged in after them.

His work of rescue extremely difficult, but with the aid of his comrades on the shore he soon had both boys safely on the bank. The younger of the two boys was in a semiconscious condition when pulled from the water and he was revived only after a half hour's work.

Groups of people who were strolling through Bellevue enjoying the warmth of the first Spring day saw the accident and the rescue. The fire-lined bank of the pond is one of the favorite resting places of the park. Several times people on the bank had warned the two youngsters against playing so near the edge of the artificial island on which they were standing.

Phillips is an expert swimmer. Ordinarily the pool is not very deep, but owing to the melting of the snows on the hillside surrounding the pond the water had risen a foot or more above its normal level. The boys were both small and neither could swim.

NONPARTISAN BALLOT LAW UPHOLD TODAY IN SUPREME COURT

Philadelphia, March 16.—The State Supreme Court to-day held constitutional the nonpartisan ballot law passed by the last Legislature.

The opinion was written by Justice Elkin. In summarizing the decision the Supreme Court said:

"We rest this decision on the ground that the Legislature had the power to prescribe the forms of the official ballot, to provide in what manner candidates shall be chosen, what names shall be printed on the ballot as a result of the primary, and nothing contained in the act of 1913 is sufficient to warrant this court in declaring that the Legislature abused its discretion by writing into the statute the limitation contained therein.

"If it were our duty to make the law no doubt many of its provisions would be written differently, but we cannot declare an act void because its requirements may not meet with the approval of our judgment, or because we may differ in the wisdom of the act as a matter of public policy.

Questions for Legislature

"Question of this character are for the Legislature and not for the court. If the provisions complained of in this proceeding are found to be onerous or burdensome, appeals can be made to the Legislature for such relief as the people may think proper to demand.

The Supreme Court held that the Legislature acted under its rights conferred by the Constitution when it passed the law which provides that the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes are entitled to have their names printed on the official ballot. Under the old way the names printed on the ballot were those made by party nominations and by groups of citizens.

The case decided was that of John C. Winston and others, of Philadelphia, including the late Samuel S. Fels, against the County Commissioners of Philadelphia. The law was attacked because it was claimed it interfered with the freedom and equality of elections and second as applied to nominations for office of judges it was special legislation.

Colonel Hutchinson's reference to the open sidebar practice is contained in answering the question as to the sale of liquor on Sundays.

Sunday Drinking

"I know I know," reports the chief of police. "If the clubs in this city would close their sidebars as well as the licensed hotels, we would have very quiet Sundays," concluded the chief.

Colonel Hutchinson says: "I have several gambling houses under suspicion and I am now looking up the common gamblers and will report to the House, three if sufficient evidence to convict them."

The report of the alleged houses of ill-fame follows a similar statement of a lot of the same kind of places submitted to the court in January sessions.

Ship Nearly 8 Tons of Books Under New Parcel Post Ruling

Between seven and eight tons of books were received at the local Post Office this morning for shipment under the provision of the parcel post rules by which books are admitted for shipment at parcel post rates.

The State Division of the Distribution of Documents has been holding back its shipments for some time to take advantage of the reduced rates under the new ruling. The books were all taken to the parcel post station in the Donaldson building this morning and for a time, the office was swamped under the load of books.

This was the only large consignment of books sent out this morning, but a great number of single books were shipped under the new ruling.

The new rates make quite a difference. Formerly a book cost a cent for two ounces or eight cents a pound. Now a book weighing a pound can be sent for only two cents in the first and second zones.

TWO OVERCOME BY FUMES

John Murphy, 949 South Nineteenth street, and Charles Gohl, 208 Strawberry street, were overcome by fumes from a cleaning preparation which they were making this morning at the paint shop of Gohl & Bruaw, 310 Strawberry street. They were unconscious for half an hour. A physician was called in and succeeded in reviving the men. They returned to work without suffering any ill effects from the experience.

JACKSON TO NAME FIVE COMMITTEES

Men Will Make Suggestions For Enforcement of the State Labor Laws at Once

NO SPRING DUCK HUNTING

Dr. Kalbfus Calls Attention to the Effect of the New Federal Regulation

The members of the committees to work with the State Industrial Board for better enforcement of the labor laws will soon be announced at the Capitol and will cover five branches of activity, namely safety appliance, fire prevention, sanitation, construction and elevators.

Dr. Kalbfus calls attention to the effect of the new Federal regulation. The Public Service Commission is to-day asked by the Philadelphia and Eastern Electric Railway Company if it could furnish free transportation to inspectors of the United States Post Office Department in connection with the carrying of mail between Doylestown and Easton. For years this free service has been given, but company officials want to be sure it is allowed by the public service law of 1913.
