CENTRAL LEAGUE FARM FOR THE TRI-STATE

Youngsters Will Be Watched Closely; Manager Cockill Will Help Junior Organization

Promised support from Tri-State managers has brought increased interest among Central Pennsylvania League fans. At the meeting last night, held at Steelton, information was given that Managers George Cockill and George Washington Heckert would send available youngsters to the central body, if needed.

With the limit adopted by the central league, youngsters anxious to be in fast company can be cared for near home. There are times when a player is needed in the Tri-State on a hurry call. If located at Steelton, New Cumberland, Highspire or Middletown, it would not take long for managers to get men. Central league managers have their teams almost selected, but it is understood each is looking around for more material.

Last night's meeting was taken up in the discussion of rules. Another meeting will be held next week to complete business not reached last night. Among the rules adopted last night, was one requiring all postponed games to be played during the week as twilight games. All games must be played off during the week following the Saturday on which the game was scheduled.

ROTARIANS HEAR ABOUT THE FARM

Club to Hold an Outing in June; to Elect Convention Delegates. Rotarians, guests and ladies, last night were the guests of John K. Young, general agent of the International Harvesting company, and after a short, but notable business session, enjoyed a buffet luncheon and heard a lecture, illustrated with slides and motion pictures, by Ralph Bradford, from Chicago. They numbered 175. The lecture portrayed the great advance in harvesting methods that have taken place in recent years, notably since the invention of the harvester, which has made possible the opening of the vast fields of the West.

Every morning the world wakes up hungry. The history of the world is the record of man's struggle for food. The ancients died like flies as the result of famine. The ancients sought empire, fame and genius, but failed to realize the simple truth that the basis of civilization is bread. They lived on poorer rations than the average tramp who calls at our kitchen doors. They were poor farmers, bound to the land tools of slaves. A few centuries ago it required five days of drudgery to raise a bushel of wheat, to-day it takes only ten minutes' labor to produce the same results. At the beginning of the nineteenth century nine-tenths of the people were still on the farm. To-day two-thirds of these people are doing other useful work—transporting and manufacturing the comforts of life. The most important business in the world is farming. Every sunset sees the wide and fertile fields of America bring forth harvests worth $24,000,000.

"I was requested to bring this gentleman here by a young woman who is employed at a Market street store," said Patrolman Carson. "She is on her way here to make a complaint. I know nothing about the case." Accompanied by two friends, a few minutes later Miss Ruth Crawford, of West Fairview, walked into the office of Clarence E. Backenstoss, secretary to the Mayor. "What is the charge you have against this gentleman?" asked Secretary Backenstoss of Miss Crawford.

SCHRADER FOR READING

Philadelphia, March 25.—William A. Schrader, last year the mainstay in the box for the Willow Grove nine, was to-day signed as a pitcher by Izzy Hoffman, manager of the Reading club of the Tri-State League. Schrader is a little fellow, although a good pitcher. He was recommended to Otto Knabe, manager of the Baltimore Federals, but Knabe would not give him work because he was too small. Schrader pitched good ball for Willow Grove last season.

Annual Call to Amateur Managers

Future events are warming up for the coming baseball season, and will soon be in the field for honors. The Harrisburg Telegraph desires to keep in close touch with all amateur teams and games. Managers are requested to send in at once the names of their team, manager and captain, with their addresses. SPORTING EDITOR OF THE TELEGRAPH.

HECKERT GETS A TWIRLER

Special to The Telegraph. York, Pa., March 25.—Manager George W. Heckert, of York Tri-State baseball club, is home from Philadelphia, where he conferred with President George M. Graham. Heckert announces that Connie Mack has promised him several young pitchers from his squad of yanigans. One of the men is O. Baker, who is said to be an experienced twirler. Heckert has offered the Trenton club Pitcher Williams in exchange for Bill Clay.
