LEBANON HOSPITAL UNDER QUARANTINE

State and City Health Officers Issue Order Because of Scarlet Fever

Special to The Telegraph
 Lebanon, Pa., April 17.—At the direction of State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon, the Good Samaritan hospital of this city was placed in quarantine to-day, because of the discovery of four cases of scarlet fever in the institution. Two nurses and two patients in the public ward were found to be afflicted with the disease. The case took on some additionally sensational aspects when Dr. E. H. Gingrich, the city health officer, said that he suspected a minister of having communicated the disease to the institution, and this charge was with the intimation that the minister had violated quarantine restrictions himself. While the name of the alleged offender was not given, it is stated that the clergyman is a resident of the rural district, and has a case of scarlet fever at home which is under quarantine. It was asserted that the minister not only visited a parishioner at the hospital a large number of times while the disease existed in his own home, but had officiated at a public service in the church. Health authorities of the city took the matter at once to Harrisburg, and Dr. Dixon's department now has an investigation in progress. The quarantine of the local hospital created a sensation, especially in view of the threat that prosecutions are to follow the incident.

Why Doctors No Longer Claim to "Cure" People
 A few years ago it was a common thing for the family doctor to say, "I will cure you in a few days." This cheerful prophecy often gave the patient new hope and courage, but it is no longer good form. Doctors still "cure" malaria and a few other troubles in which their medicines have a direct or "specific" action on the virus of the disease. In other cases they simply give supporting medicine and keep up the strength of the patient until nature effects a cure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure chills and other trouble due to thin blood because they have a specific action on the blood, building it up, purifying and enriching it. This direct action on the blood also makes them the best supporting and strengthening medicine. If you are thin and weak, breathless after slight exertion, if you have palpitation of the heart, gas on the stomach, cold hands and feet, if you are nervous and easily irritated, and show other signs of weakened vitality, try these strengthening pills at once and let the rich, red blood cure you. Get a box to-day at the nearest drug store and begin at once to build up your health. Write now to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for the free booklet, "Building Up the Blood."—Advertisement.
