CENTRAL PENNS. LIFE UNDERWRITERS DIVISION

Forty Members of Association Attend Annual Banquet at Engineers' Club

PROMINENT MEN PRESENT

Tax on Gross Incomes of Widows and Orphans

Forty members of the Central Pennsylvania Association of Life Underwriters, including some of the most prominent men in Harrisburg and vicinity, attended the annual banquet of the organization last evening at the Engineers' Club. Dick Oiler, president of the association, was toastmaster and there were addresses by Edward A. Woods, vice-president of the National Life Underwriters' Association, and E. J. Clark, of Baltimore, president of the National Life Underwriters' Association.

The scope of the organization has been enlarged to take in all of the central Pennsylvania territory, and as such will constitute one of the most representative bodies of life insurance men in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Woods in his address condemned the State tax on the gross incomes of insurance companies, saying that "Pennsylvania is furnishing itself with inmates of reformatories, orphanages and sweatshops thereby."

"On every $1,000 paid in death claims," said Mr. Woods, "the State levies a tax amounting to $70, which would otherwise be distributed among widows and orphans. The United States charges life insurance companies $13,000,000 every year for the privilege of protecting the destitute from want. It is because of this that our reformatories and orphanages are filled. Widows are forced to work in factories to provide for children who would be otherwise cared for by the distribution of this sum among policyholders."

Mr. Woods urged the Central Pennsylvania association to use its utmost endeavors to prevent any further legislation of this character.

Reading Directors Postpone Election; Tribute to Mr. Baer

Special to The Telegraph Philadelphia, May 1. — The question of a successor to George F. Baer as the head of the Reading system of anthracite coal and railroad properties was everywhere discussed with deep interest in railroad and financial circles yesterday, but the greatest confusion of views prevailed.

The question of personal beliefs or wishes counted for the most were caught absolutely unprepared by the suddenness of Mr. Baer's death, and remained silent. The directors met yesterday, but took no action on a successor to the late president. A minute was adopted on the death of Mr. Baer.

It was said more than once, however, that Mr. Baer would have to not only be taken literally, and not as a mere figurative reference to the difficulty of duplicating his exceptional ability. According to this opinion, which was credited where good information should be available, he never again would be vested with the tremendous power which the late president had wielded so effectively.

Probably there will be a division of power and separate executive heads for the Reading subsidiaries.

It was even said that the two great divisions of the Reading system, anthracite and coal, and the Reading and the Reading system, might be placed under separate management, and that a third person might be chosen to head the Reading Company, the holding corps Reading Company, management, it was pointed out, would

IRREGULAR TENDENCY OF TRADING OVERCOME

Missouri Pacific Recovered Strongly After an Early Setback in Wall Street; Bonds Were Steady

By Associated Press Chicago, Ill., May 1. — The irregular tendency of the early trading was overcome by the gradual development of strength, and prices were raised one to two and one-half points. Missouri Pacific recovered strongly after an early setback. The demand, while varied, was most insistent for the stocks of Eastern roads, which will benefit by the increase in freight rates. The proposed consolidation, rising to 32, was most insistent for the Federal stock of the courts upholding the general dividend on Union Pacific caused a quick upturn of two and one-half points in that stock.

Bonds were steady.

THE MAN OF THE HOUR AT VERA CRUZ

Admiral Frank Friday Fletcher, commanding the forces in Vera Cruz, in co-operation with Admiral C. S. Bagder, Fletcher's conduct during the recent operations of the city by the American forces has won the admiration and respect of Mexicans there. The nation of the Southern Republic seem invariably inclined to ward a man who rules them with an iron hand, and this is the policy that has been pursued by Fletcher in Vera Cruz. Upon the refusal of the municipal officials of Vera Cruz to continue their duties in the administration of the city's government, Fletcher declared martial law, and now the Mexican seaport has all the appearances of a city thousands of miles from the scene of impending war.

bring about an organization more in harmony with modern views on the corporate distinction of the Federal system. The suggestion also was made that the position of the Reading system in the Federal system now pending might be strengthened by such a decentralization of power.
