COLORED CITIZENS OF COLORGE

of the federal preparedness in Tampico are skeptical of the predictions of an early rebel success. They point out that three federal gunboats have thus far easily repelled the attacks.

The situation of the town is such that the colored citizens are without exposing itself to the risk of four-inch quick-firing guns except from one direction. That point is defended by a triple line of trenches and many machine guns and field artillery.

Unless guns have reached them from the northern rebels, it is believed impossible for them to drive out the federal forces.

The fall of Tampico into rebel hands might help solve the food situation in Vera Cruz. In that event it is presumed that the colored citizens of Vera Cruz and Tampico would be assured of food.

Just now the only supplies reaching Vera Cruz are coming from the small ranches near enough to the city for owners to feel assured of American protection.

The order not to extend the American flag to the rebels is giving protection desired and the only ranches which the authorities can count upon are those within the narrow boundaries of the outskirts of the city.

The money situation is also peculiar. The banks have been virtually at a standstill for all except small exchange business.

It is getting almost impossible to find Mexican change and every $5 bill presented to pay for a small purchase is refused.

Some men who are doing business on a double standard in the United States or abroad are sold only on a gold basis, while goods imported from Mexico City are sold for silver.

The bodies of the Americans killed in the fighting with the Mexicans are being buried in the city.

General Funston, a cousin of the United States attorney General, who became identified with the Department of Justice here, is expected to have been determined.

The bodies of the Americans killed in the fighting with the Mexicans are being buried in the city.

Bull fighting will be barred in Vera Cruz if the suggestion of the native city council is approved by Civil Governor Kerr.

It is not the intention of the civil government to interfere with the customs of the people any more than is necessary and when the aldermen in session last night, proposed depriving their own people of their most popular form of sport there was much surprise.

That there will be little, if any, opposition to the aldermen's suggestion is practically certain. Bull fighting has been indulged in so much in this state as in most of the others and for many years it was prohibited.

Big Legal Battle Takes Place in Keller Murder Trial at Chambersburg

Chambersburg, Pa., May 2.—One of the big battles in the trial of Zelda Keller Gerhold for murder of her husband, Floyd, took place this morning.

Defense resisted and authorities were quoted. Law books from the State Library in Harrisburg were hurriedly sent for and the problem left until Monday for settlement.

Zelda and her mother, Mrs. Rieker, smiled and even laughed at every opportunity. Zeld's husband, young Gerhold, was not in court to-day.

When Heckman went back after Floyd died and suggested going to the grocery for provisions, Zeld said she had attended to that before. Dantel Heckman testified that the night they were together he was with Isaac Heckman, brother of the witness, and remained outside twenty minutes, until Floyd called loudly for her three times.

Johnson swore that on the night of Keller's death the wife's mother said to her: "Now you can marry again."

STEELTON MIDDLETOWN ENHSAURE ROYALTON OBERLIN ENHAUT

P. S. CO. DIVIDEND IS EXPLAINED IN REPORT

Only $629,644 Earned Above All Expenses, Equivalent of 3 Per Cent; Work Proposed

Ample explanation why the dividend on the preferred stock of the Pennsylvania Steel Company was passed along together in the annual report for 1913, issued yesterday.

The year 1913 was the most unfavorable in the company's history. In 1913, which was considered a poor year, 5.1 per cent was earned on the preferred stock, and in 1911, up to that time the poorest year, a trifle more than 4 per cent was shown.

In 1912 the company's net income from operations, prior to other deductions, was $2,764,441, as compared with $3,118,818 in 1912, and $2,729,499 in 1911.

The company received an extra profit during the year, credited on the surplus account as $95,709. This, it is explained, is the excess received from the sale to the Pennsylvania Railroad of the stocks of the Cornwall and Lebanon, and Baltimore and Sparrows Point Railroads, above the amounts at which they were carried on the Pennsylvania Steel's books.

One dividend was paid during 1913 of 2 1/2 per cent, amounting to $514,020. The profit and loss balance on December 31 was increased to $5,746,507, compared with $4,733,902 at the end of the previous year, largely due to the extra credit from the sale of the railroad stocks.

In referring to the company's extensive improvement plans, President Edgar C. Felton states that arrangements have been made for the sale at par of $5,500,000 out of the $10,000,000 5 per cent collateral trust bonds authorized. The steelmaking plant at Sparrows Point and many other additions will be made.
