A Pointer to Merchants

A certain store which is being re-established by new owners has specialized on famous trade-marked lines in many of its departments.

The figures of the store-sales show that the departments which have been able to secure such goods and push them are growing far ahead of those which have no famous brands to help them.

Responses to the advertising of this store evidence the fact that the public is more eager for well-known, trade-marked goods than it is for articles whose names mean nothing.

In several instances there is direct co-operative advertising in the local newspapers between the manufacturer and the store—and this has brought splendid results in dollars and cents.
