JUNIORS NAIL CLASS PENNANT TO POLE

Members of Carlisle High School Class Had Battle on Previous Night

Special to The Telegraph Carlisle, Pa., May 15.—In direct violation of the authority of the school board, which at the same hour was in session to take action on a previous case of a similar breach of discipline, members of the junior class of the Carlisle high school last night broke into the Franklin building here and, ascending to the tower, nailed their class pennant to the flagpole.

The previous night the seniors had placed their flag on the pole, but the lower classmen tore it down. A battle between the two classes occurred when this action was learned. The board has ordered an investigation of the troubles and the members, if found, will probably be suspended. Last year a similar case occurred, when five members of the class were barred from participating in the annual class day exercises.

AGED WOMAN BURNED

Special to The Telegraph Marietta, Pa., May 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Shank, 92 years old, had a narrow escape from burning to death last evening. Mrs. Shank helps her daughter, Mrs. Sargent, with whom she lives, to do some work and in the morning filled the lamps. The lamp was made too full and when the aged woman attempted to light it in the bedroom the lamp caught fire and burned her about the face, hair and hands and the woodwork and curtains in the room were badly damaged.

FARCE COMEDY BY CLASS

Special to The Telegraph Sunbury, Pa., May 15.—A farce comedy, called "A Pair of Gloves," will be given by the senior class of the Sunbury high school, under the direction of F. A. Neff, resident manager of the Bell Telephone Company, who is an expert amateur thespian. The proceeds will be used as a nucleus for a high school athletic field here.

Special to The Telegraph Sunbury, Pa., May 15.—While sorting through some books at his home in Sunbury John K. Fulton, a Pennsylvania Railroad locomotive engineer, unearthed a leather volume of the life of Washington, published by the P. Potter Publishing House, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. in 1812.

MEXICAN MISSIONARY HOME

Special to The Telegraph Sunbury, Pa., May 15.—Miss Jessie Seasholtz, of Sunbury, a returned Mexican missionary, who has been in Mexico City for years, says the scenes around the missions were turbulent and cries of "Kill the Americans" were common. When they got out of Mexico last week the missionaries dressed as Mexican peasant women and escaped any attack, she said.

RECEPTION TO SENIORS

Special to The Telegraph Anville, Pa., May 15.—Last evening the Kalozetan Literary Society of Lebanon Valley College gave a reception to the outgoing senior class of the school. A literary program was held the first part of the evening, followed with a social time and refreshments. The prophecies for the members of the class that are connected with the society were very funny. Frank Van Schaak, a Harrisburg boy, read an original essay on "Travel."

CO-EDS IN MAY DAY EVENT AT COLLEGE

700 Pretty Girl Students Take Part in Beautiful Dances at Dickinson

MISS MARGARET MORGAN Queen of May.

Special to The Telegraph Carlisle, Pa., May 15.—While grave faculty adviser and irresponsible undergraduate both looked on in amazement the 700 co-eds at Dickinson College this afternoon went through the elaborate and artistic evolutions of the various folk and costume dances of the first annual May day.

The event was held on the campus of Metzger Hall, the women's dormitory, formerly Metzger College, and was witnessed by over 600 persons. In elaborateness and minuteness of detail the affair surpassed anything of the kind ever held here. Costume dances by the members of the various classes with the procession and crowning of the May queen, the whole culminating in a grand dance about a May pole, constituted the program. It is one of the features of the day that not until the procession issues from the building and advances toward the big pavilion where the throne is erected does the spectator know who has been chosen queen of the May. A vote was taken recently at the college assembly, but the name of the person chosen was kept secret, she herself being uninformed until this morning. The choice fell upon a member of the senior class, Miss Margaret Morgan, a daughter of Dean James H. Morgan, of the college.

Young Girl Comes From Brazil to Be Educated

Special to The Telegraph Blain, Pa., May 15.—From Wagner, Brazil, State of Bahal, South America, Miss Atalia Bixler, came to Perry county to reside with her uncle, J. A. Bixler, of Echol. The young lady is fourteen years of age and came to this country for the purpose of finishing a course in the English language.

In Brazil the Portuguese language is spoken. She was accompanied on her trip, traveling by steamer, railroad and for over a day horseback, by a woman missionary of the same district in South America. They arrived in New York nearly two weeks ago. Miss Bixler is a daughter of the Rev. C. Edwin Bixler, who for eighteen years has been serving as a Presbyterian missionary in South America. He is now a teacher in the mission school at Wagner, having relinquished his ministerial duties in the mission field. Miss Bixler will attend the public schools for several years in perfecting her English. She was to this country on a visit seven years ago.

York Salesman Stricken With Apoplexy in Buggy

Special to The Telegraph Blain, Pa., May 15.—L. L. Eberly, a traveling salesman, of York, met a sudden death while on his trip through this country, yesterday. He stopped at the New Germantown Hotel over night and in the early morning came to Blain and then drove on his way on the back road toward Ickesburg. When within about three miles of that town he was stricken with apoplexy while alone in his buggy. The horse turned into the lane at Mr. Baughman's farm, and when discovered the unfortunate man was in an unconscious condition, and died shortly after. He was about 53 years old.

CIVIC CLUB MOVES TO IMPROVE STREET Progressive Women of Camp Hill Petition Borough Council to Abate Dust Nuisance

WANT HIGHWAY SPRINKLED Paper Presented to Council Signed by Nearly All Residents of Thriving Borough

Special to The Telegraph Camp Hill, Pa., May 15.—At the regular monthly meeting of Camp Hill borough council last evening the chairman of a committee representing the Civic Club of this place, presented in person the following petition: "To the Burgess and Town Council of Camp Hill, Pennsylvania: "Whereas, at a regular meeting of the Camp Hill Civic Club, held on Thursday, May 7, the deplorable dusty condition of Market street in the borough was commented upon, numerous complaints relative thereto having been received by the officers of the club, and

"Whereas, after discussion and consideration of the matter by the members of the club, it was decided that, to meet the demands made upon the society, a petition should be circulated and presented to council for the purpose of indicating clearly to council the sentiment of the residents of the borough is towards the intolerable dust nuisance endured by all residents in Market street, as well as all users of the street cars or street:

"Now, therefore, we, the undersigned residents of the borough of Camp Hill, hereby present our protest to the borough council against the continuance of what we think is a public nuisance, as well as a detriment to the health of the community at large, marring as it does the beauty of the village, and respectfully request that effective action be taken immediately looking to its abatement. Until such time as permanent relief shall be obtained, we request that the street be adequately water sprinkled, as heretofore."

This petition was signed by a large majority of the residents of Camp Hill. Market street, in Camp Hill, linking, as it does, two portions of State road, has long been anathematized by automobilists and residents on account of its poor condition.

SAID MRS. CORA MOELLER AT KENNEDY'S THIS MORNING

When the Quaker Health Teacher was in the city he met Mrs. Cora Moeller, of North Third street. She had called purposely at Kennedy's to tell the Health Teacher that she had been cured of a chronic case of stomach trouble by Quaker Extract and Oil of Balm. She expressed herself as follows: "I called and obtained a treatment of the Quaker remedies. At that time I was indeed a sick and miserable woman. My stomach was in a wretched condition. I could not eat or drink anything unless gas would form. I would bloat, the gas would seem to press against my heart, causing much worry and annoyance. My liver was in bad shape, because I would have severe bilious attacks; my tongue was always coated and my complexion getting as yellow as gold. I seemed to have a headache every day. I read of the case of Mrs. Johnson, who was cured by Quaker Balm. These remedies can be obtained at W. H. Kennedy's, 30 South Third street—Advertisement.
