Ignore Misunderstandings

By Beatrice Fairfax

S. J. R. writes me: "I was keeping company with a young lady until two months ago, when we parted over some foolish ideas. Last week I met and offered to escort her to a wedding. She did not hesitate to accept. On our way home I caught a suggestion that she would like to resume our friendship. Now what is worrying me is that she was the whole cause of our separation, and I think that it is up to her to ask me to make up. But I am wondering if it is my place to make up, as I am the man. I love her very much and want to do what is right."

Don't demand explanations after a quarrel. Misunderstandings may arise—try to ignore them. Recognize that two human beings look at one situation from totally different angles. And so what hurts or angers you may have been meant to give you joy.

Whatever the quarrel, it is always the larger, finer, more generous soul that dares be the first to seek reconciliation. This soul knows a joy a more petty nature must always miss.

Don't Be Meek I do not advocate being so meek in the face of mistreatment or deceit or neglect as to invite abuse from a nature that is ready to take advantage of simple honesty. In the average lovers' quarrel this is not the situation. Most lovers' quarrels are matters of hurt pride, inflamed vanity, temper, or a desire to tease that grew into a real wound.

What do you value, your love or your self esteem? Do you love yourself with selfish pride or your sweetheart with generous kindness?

The privilege of being the first to seek a reconciliation is a beautiful one. Go and generously offer to forget the past and see how generously you will be met.

Two lovers once drifted apart. They met to explain and accuse each other of selfishness and temper. Then they wrote to explain, and because so involved that explanations were more bitter than the original quarrel. And at last after months of silence that hurt both the one who loved most (the man in this case), went to his sweetheart and said: "I love you. Forgive me for hurting you. Can you love me again?"

"I loved you all the time, dear. I was wrong. Forgive me," said the girl, and fell sobbing in his arms.

And his generosity has made her so sweet and loving that now their quarrels are made up before they start! Never hesitate to be the one to offer to "make up." You will be met half way, and win new and added love by your generosity.

What Matters It? What does it matter who is right and who is wrong in a misunderstanding? The very fact that one is right gives a certain dignity to being also the one to seek the reconciliation.

The impulse that leads S. J. R. to invite the girl he loved to go with him to the wedding of which he speaks was the generous and manly one. No explanation was asked or given. His affections prompted him wisely. Instinct said: "Here is the girl I love. I will take her with me and try to give her a pleasant evening."

That was the impulse of a large soul. Follow it up. Say to the girl: "I love you. We have hurt each other. Shall we forget it and start over?"

SPIRAL TRIMMINGS MAKE DRESSY SKIRT

$2.60 Two-Piece Skirt, 22 to 30 waist.

PERFECTED FOR SPIRAL TRIMMING, WITH HIGH OR NATURAL WAIST LINE.

Here is a skirt that can be made available for morning, afternoon or evening occasions. In the picture it is made of taffeta and the flounce is of chiffon so that the skirt is suited to dances and occasions of the kind. In place of the silk and chiffon, if serge and gathered ruffles of taffeta were used, it would become appropriate for the street costume with coat to match. If the spiral trimming were omitted and plain skirt only used, it would become adapted to the morning hours and to every day occasions. It can be finished at either the high or the natural waist line.

For the medium size will be needed for the skirt 2 1/2 yards of material 27 inches wide, 2 1/2 yards 36 or 44, with 1 1/2 yards 27, 1 yard 36, 3/4 yard 44 for the gathered ruffle, 3 yards 27, 2 yards 36, or 1 1/2 yards 44 for the plaited ruffle. The width at the lower edge is 1 yard 28 inches.

Kline, who is a member of the State examining board in session at West Chester Normal this week. A feature of the program was the class song, composed by Professor Ira S. CHILDREN DRINK LYE

Special to The Telegraph White Oak, Pa., June 4.—The twin children of John Ressel are in a serious condition from drinking a large quantity of lye. The mother prepared a solution to do some washing the floors, and the children getting hold of it drank a large quantity, terribly burning their throats and mouths. Milk was given in large doses until the family physician arrived, which was more than an hour later, and this is what saved them. Blanton Ramsey, of Craleyville, aged 3 years, while visiting his grandparents at Bridgeville, got hold of a box of banner lye and ate some of the contents. Here the condition is critical, as he was found several hours after the accident occurred.

The Pleasure of Eating—Yes—but far more important is the effect of food on body and brain. Grape-Nuts is not only a delightfully appetizing food, but is remarkably rich in nutritive values. Made from whole wheat and barley, Grape-Nuts retains all the nutrition of these grains, including the mineral salts—phosphate of potash, etc.—so necessary for growth and repair of the delicate brain and nerve tissues, but which are so often lacking in ordinary food. Ready to eat from the package, with cream or milk and a sprinkle of sugar. A ration of Grape-Nuts along with other food helps wonderfully to provide a well-balanced dietary.
