Miss Elinor Copelin and her house up several persons, members of the Jockey Club, would refuse to meet the man in question. As he was one of the guests invited to Derby day dinner, it was suggested to the king that an invitation be withdrawn or that an intimation be sent to the undesirable guest that he would be well advised to make some excuse for not appearing.

This King George flatly refused unless absolute proof that the charge of cheating was true was produced. The result was that every single royalty asked to the Derby dinner, including Prince Arthur of Connaught, the Duke of Teck and nearly every prominent member of the Jockey Club, remained away from the dinner.

CARD SCANDAL IN MAJESTY'S COURT

London Agog Over Affair Which Kept Many Guests From Derby Day Dinner

London, June 5.—London is agog with a story of card scandal that may have as sensational developments as the Gordon Cutting case at Cranby Croft, when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, appeared as a witness in court.

The new affair has already had remarkable consequences, among them the abstention of some of the guests at the king's dinner on Derby night and the decision of the king to remain in town over the Whitnitsund holiday in order to confer with various people concerned in the matter.

King George is doing his utmost to keep the affair quiet and to prevent anything in the nature of a public scandal, but so far only a compromise has been reached, which certain parties interested refuse to accept as a final solution.

The person against whom the charges of cheating at cards were made is a member of the royal household. He latterly has been winning considerable sums at poker at the St. James and Marlborough Clubs. His chief accusers are two well-known men.

It was in order to hear their charges that the king remained in town Whit Sunday and on Monday last his Majesty had a long interview with them in Buckingham Palace.

The first reports of the affair reached the royal ears on the first day of the Epsom race meeting and it was intimated that until the matter cleared up several persons, members of the Jockey Club, would refuse to meet the man in question. As he was one of the guests invited to Derby day dinner, it was suggested to the king that an invitation be withdrawn or that an intimation be sent to the undesirable guest that he would be well advised to make some excuse for not appearing.

"If Pennsylvania Democrats will turn to the dictionary and discover the exact meaning of the word 'oligarchy,' they will understand at once the type of men who have taken over the control of the party; and if they will carefully study the proceedings of yesterday's committee-convention they will have not the slightest difficulty in acquiring a working knowledge of just what an oligarchy signifies and represents."

GRAMMAR ATHLETES BATTLE ON ISLAND

after the annual grammar school contest.

Schools and Colors

In the seventh annual contest to-day fourteen grammar schools participated. Each school marched from their respective buildings with flags and pennants. All along the route, from the schools to Municipal Field, students sang and cheered. Of course the big noise was at Island Park when the various teams came on the field. As in the past, each school had a special section, and each school tried to outdo the others in display of flags and decorations. The schools entered and their colors are as follows: Cameron, orange and black; Camp Curtin, blue and white; Foose, blue and white; Forney, blue and gold; Hamilton, black and gold; Lincoln, red and blue; Maclay, turquoise and gold; Melrose, black and gold; Webster, green and white; Willard, maroon and gold; Woodward, slate and corn; Harris, orange and black; Rely, garnet and white.

The champion team thus far has been the Forney school. Athletes from this school have four legs on the championship shield, and win or lose to-day they get the trophy permanently. Maclay had the shield two years ago. The school winning the shield to-day, providing it is not the Forney team, will hold the trophy one year, and then turn it over to the Forney school.

No Winner Picked

No winner has been picked for the big event to-day. It looked like anybody's race until the finish, Forney has not shown any unusual speed this year but offered several classy boys.

The schools that have heretofore had winners in a few events this year, offered a larger bunch of contestants and promised interesting work. On to-day's card ten events were scheduled as follows:

One hundred yard dash, two hundred and twenty yard dash, four hundred and forty yard dash, half mile run, half mile relay, one mile relay, broad jump, high jump, one hundred and twenty yard hurdles, shot put. A new event this year was the one-half mile relay. This was added for the little fellows who wanted a chance to win something.

In each event there were five point winners. This helped the schools that had trouble in developing large teams. Winners of each event received five points; second, four; third, three; fourth, two; fifth, one. Three medals were awarded in each event, gold for the winner, silver for second, and bronze for the third. New records were expected, as many of the young athletes have shown speed in practice. The officials to-day were:

Referee—R. G. Cox, Princeton.
