J. P. MORGAN RESIGNS FROM BANK BOARDS

Complies Early With Requirements of Federal Reserve Law; Action Sanctioned

Special to The Telegraph
New York, July 1.—J. P. Morgan resigned as a director of the National City Bank and of the National Bank of Commerce, a course that was made necessary by the Federal reserve act. However, he might have deferred his resignation until the Federal reserve system begins operations. His resignation was accepted in each case.

These are the only national banks in which Mr. Morgan was a director, but similar directorships are held by other members of the firm and these will be surrendered. The same action will be taken by members of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and other private banking firms.

Mr. Morgan was a director of the National Bank of Commerce, but that was because of his appointment as a member of the Federal Reserve Board. The Commerce has thus lost two directors and eventually will lose several others for the same reason. Their places will not be filled, because of the growing sentiment to recede years that the directorates of banks, as well as of many other corporations, are too large for the highest degree of effectiveness.

Of the Morgan partners, H. P. Davidson is a director of the Chemical Bank & Co. of this city, and National Bank of Commerce; T. W. Lamont of the First National; William H. Porter of the National Liberty and National Bank of Commerce; also has on its board, C. Ledyard Paris is 49 years old, a son of James E. Morrow, for many years principal of the high school at Allegheny, Pa.

He is on the executive committee of the Bar Association of New York, and a member of the State and national associations. He was married in 1903 to Miss Elizabeth Reeve Custer, of Cleveland. Mr. Morrow aided actively in furthering the legislation in Philadelphia in the workmen's compensation law of New Jersey, and has been serving as one of the counsel defending the constitutionality of that law.

Progressives Plan an Ultimatum For Perkins

Special to The Telegraph
Washington, D. C., July 1.—Progressives in Congress have decided to send a letter to Colonel Roosevelt and to George W. Perkins intimating in pointed terms that Mr. Perkins must either cease to be chairman of the national executive committee of the Progressive party or must sever his connections with the International Harvester Company, which he organized. This communication was described in Progressive quarters yesterday as an ultimatum intended to answer Colonel Roosevelt's statement that he would stand or fall with Mr. Perkins.

There is no doubt that many influential Progressive members of Congress have believed for a long time that Mr. Perkins' activities were embarrassing.

There was talk of trying to cut out the Sunday newspapers, but it is not yet known whether the Church Federation will try that or not. People who are opposed to the enforcement of the Blue Law say that if the above articles are not allowed to be sold on the Sabbath that they will make a fight to stop the moving of trolley cars, etc.
