EMPLOYEES MUST HAVE MEDICAL TEST

All Handling Foodstuffs on Pennsy Are Examined Every 30 Days

Persons traveling over the Philadelphia Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and being served on the dining cars of passenger trains, seldom realize the large number of persons served in the dining cars and restaurants over the entire Pennsylvania system. Last year food was served to 8,775,000 persons. At the present time 10,000 persons patronize the dining cars and restaurants in one day. For the protection of these people the management takes every precaution against the possibility of anyone with any communicable disease having anything to do with the preparation or serving of food, or having anything to do with the linen, china and silver used in the serving of meals.

Only Small Stretch on Pennsy Is Now Without Automatic Signal Service

The stretch of the Middle Division between Mill Creek and Vineyard is the only portion of the Pennsylvania Railroad, east of Pittsburgh and Erie, that is not equipped with automatic block signals. Orders were posted at the Middle Division headquarters at Altoona yesterday stating that the portion of the division between Longfellow and Vineyard will be governed entirely by automatic block signals starting with Saturday, July 18.

NOT C. D. STEWART

The name of Gilbert Stewart, arrested at Annyville, on the charge of manslaughter, as the result of an automobile accident, has been confused with that of C. D. Stewart, formerly local agent in Harrisburg for the Abbott Motor Car Company and now general sales agent for that company. The man arrested at Annyville is a colored chauffeur.

Wilson Tariff is Running Business

So Declares A. R. Ferriday in Address at Convention

In an address before the Central Paper Box Manufacturers' Association at Reading yesterday, A. Reeder Ferriday, who manufactures boxes at 101-7 Cameron street, and is vice-president of the association, blamed legislation recently passed in Congress for the falling off in business. He declared the tariff is one of the chief causes of the weakening of the paper box market.

Hundreds at Work to Clear Wash Out That Sweeps "Low Grade"

Up to noon today only the west-bound track of the low-grade freight line is open. The east-bound track is still closed after a side hill washout that occurred yesterday evening at 6:30, 200 feet long and fifteen feet deep on the tracks two miles west of Creswell, eight miles south of Columbia. Laborers were rushed down from points all over the company and extra men are still being rounded up. Work is being done all night long to get the main line near the Conewago, which overflowed its banks.

MIDDLETOWN

EXPECT FAST RACES That the Middletown fair races this year will be faster and more exciting than in former years is indicated from the entrants listed so far by W. W. Conklin, secretary of the races. Conklin returned yesterday from Sunbury, where he induced many of the best wealthy racehorse owners to send a string of fast animals here. Packer's string will arrive in Middletown next week and will give several matinee races prior to the fair.

Dr. Kalbfus Will Ask Legislature to Make Provision for Stocking Closed District

The Cumberland Valley, it is understood, is awaiting the official sanction from the War Department, not wishing to proceed without its sanction even if later proceedings do not justify the ruling. Sustain Moore's Contentions The dispatch from Washington says that the War Department has sustained the contention made by Representative J. Hampton Moore some time ago that the Susquehanna river and its tributaries above the Maryland line are navigable waters subject to the supervision of the army engineers. Mr. Moore is so well satisfied with a recent opinion by Judge Advocate General E. T. Crowder, which Secretary Garrison has confirmed, that it would be unnecessary for him to further insist upon the passage of his resolution, revoking the Taft order of 1904, declaring the Susquehanna above the Maryland line a stream involving "no interstate navigation such as was in the mind of Congress" when it made a distinction between Federal and State jurisdiction.

Pigeon Hatches Out Bantam Peeps When Chickens Wouldn't

Which Goes to Prove That There's Still Another Way For the Poultryman to Get What He Wants

Martin Houser, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. William Houser, Race street, Middletown, has wanted a brood of bantam chicks for a long time. He had eggs but none of his hens would "sit." He asked a neighbor, who is a chicken fancier, to allow him to place his eggs in his incubator. The neighbor couldn't grant his request. Martin wanted those peeps and wanted 'em bad. He has a flock of pigeons and this gave him an idea. One of the birds wanted to "sit," so young Houser placed three of the bantam eggs under the pigeon. Then he set back to work on the chickens. Yesterday egg shells cracked and three fluffy yellow bantam peeps came forth. The pigeon is a proud mother and flutters about the pen tenderly looking after the interests of her small brood.

IRON MARKET SLUMP WILL TRANSFER ON THE OBERLIN LINE

So Predicts Iron Age; Several Suspensions of Furnaces Are Expected Soon

In its weekly summary of the iron and steel trades, the Iron Age this morning predicts that the slump in the iron market will continue for some time yet and asserts that a number of furnaces in Pennsylvania are about to suspend. It says: "The decline in merchant pig-iron output has not yet been checked. A Cleveland furnace and one at Erie, Pa., are about to go out; and several suspensions in the Hanging Rock district near one in Eastern Pennsylvania will follow soon after. The great foundry industry still lags, and the pig-iron market moves with it. Concessions are still made when any good sized business appears. Buffalo furnaces, for example, dropped down to $12.50 for No. 2 iron lately, but for the present most of them are back at the $13 level. For Southern foundry iron $10 is common, though a good many $10.25 sales are reported. Sales include 5,000 tons to Harrisburg, 6,000 tons at Pittsburgh and 15,000 tons to a St. Louis district steel foundry. This last iron was sold by a Chicago steel company and the price was close to the $13 furnace basis of similar sales three months ago. A Kokomo, Ind., inquiry calls for 15,000 tons. "In finished steel, which it is not unusual to find out of line with the merchant pig iron trade, varying degrees of encouragement are noted. There is no expectation of more than slow progress, nor are there signs of the near resumption of free contract buying. The mills are following the same policy as in January in limiting the amount of contract orders. At the same time buyers will not make contracts at more than to-day's prices and are not in fear of paying more later. "Structural items of special moment are the Metropolis bridge near Paducah, Ky., 19,000 tons, which is soon to be awarded, and the Kansas City terminal, 18,000 tons, on which there is active figuring."
