up last Fall? My bathing suit isn't here and there were some things belonging to Mr. Curtis."

"No, I remember now. All right, Nora, I'll call you again if I need you."

In the wardrobe drawer Helen found Warren's bathing suit and her own and a couple of white linen skirts that she had forgotten.

One she had particularly fond of and she pulled it out eagerly. The style was good, in fact she had seen one very much like it in one of the windows downtown. There were large glass buttons down the front in which was a very smart appearance to the entire skirt; all that was needed was a good laundering, unless it was too short for her.

She had held it up to her fearfully; no, the length was splendid, that was one thing, anyway, of her mind; the other skirt was a rattle that buttoned up the front. She had never liked that, so what was the use of wearing it? Nora might as well have it; no doubt she could put it to good use.

Nothing was left to go over but the bathing suits. Warren was in splendid condition, she knew that almost without looking, and she seized eagerly on her own. She remembered the day last year when she had bought the suit. It was a great deal of money for it at the time, for the simple reason that she had never had a bathing suit that suited her.

Somehow she had always considered them things of extravagance, and had paid as little as possible for them until last season, when she had bought a satin one with all the fixings that she had always wanted and never wanted to spend the money for with a birthday check that Warren had given her.

Helen could not help laughing to herself as she remembered showing Warren her purchases. He had admired the things until she told him that she had bought them with his check, then he wanted to give her more money.

"If I don't want you to pay for things you wear with money I give you for a present," he had growled when she had protested. "Go downtown and get something in jewelry."

"But dear," she had remonstrated. "I wish you would let me do things in my own way. I never would have been so extravagant if it hadn't been for the check, really."

She thinks him generous. And then he had turned back to his paper with a muttered remark about having her own way. What a dear Warren was; not many men were as generous as he was.

Now that she had gone through everything, nothing remained but to make a list of what she needed and go down and get them as soon as possible. Nothing but what was necessary would go down on the list, but she must have more to take away with her than she had just at present.

With a pencil and a writing tablet on her knee, Helen began to think up the things she absolutely needed. One must have a couple of shirt-waists, thin ones, and another white skirt. They were wearing corduroy so much this season—perhaps she could get a corduroy skirt without paying too much. At any rate, she could try. Then she must have at least two more shirts, a vest, a collar or an organdy and a smart white linen.

Her new white coat she had worn only once, that would be just the thing—and her hair would do. Perhaps she could squeeze enough out of her allowance to get three dresses. There were plenty of places where things could be had at great reductions this time of year. That was all then, excepting for that one evening dress. She must take that around to Miss Graves at once to see what was needed for the making over; there would be trimming, more fabric to talk over, too, and she had such a short time to do everything.

WAR MAP FOR EVERY TELEGRAPH READER

Official Guide for Use of Those Who Would Follow Great Events in Europe

What do you know about the war? Do you believe that 11,000,000 men will have any chance against 17,000,000? What information have you of the exact situation and conditions in Europe? The Telegraph herewith presents an offer that will be eagerly grasped by every reader, as it is designed to prepare you to answer all of the foregoing questions as you follow the daily reports. It consists of an official map in five colors covering every point of the great war of European nations. This map was originally made in Europe by the expensive wax process and is as clear and smooth as a steel engraving. It is reproduced on copper plate. The colors are distinctive and all rivers and mountain ranges are clearly outlined. The type is large and distinct and every city and town of importance is plainly indicated. Cheaply drawn maps do not possibly give the details shown on this authentic map. It is sufficiently large to include all the war area and besides it contains a wealth of interesting information pertaining to the big war centers.

The Telegraph has succeeded in getting a limited edition of these handily guides to the great war of nations and they will be passed out to our readers until further notice at the bare cost of the distribution. Every day in another column will be printed a war map coupon and one of these will be required in addition to the expense fee.

As the cannon roar and the shells drop from the great aerial fleets you will want to know where all of these movements take place and this official map will give you exactly the information you are looking for, as everything is fully covered, from the Rock of Gibraltar to the Ural Mountains.

Educational charts are attached to the map proper and these show the fortified towns, naval area, big battle ground plans, and all of the great war centers in detail. Besides these are portraits of the European rulers, tables showing the strength of the armies and navies as well as the aerial fleets, and a wealth of information such as has never before been shown in a map of this character. All you need to do to get one of these wonderful maps is to clip the coupon and present it with the money—no more than 10 cents, or it will be sent by mail either in town or out of town for 12 cents in coin, stamps or money order.

The distribution begins to-day and readers should lose no time in taking advantage of this great offer.

LONG CIRCULAR CAPE IS MOST PRACTICAL

Heavy Cloths or Soft Satins Are Used For Various Occasions

8339 Circular Cape, One Size. PERFORATED FOR SHORTER CURVED FRONTS

The long circular cape has become an exceedingly fashionable garment, utilized for many occasions and made from many materials. This one can be made just as illustrated or with the fronts shorter and curved, giving a cutaway effect, and it is appropriate for silk and satin, for cloth and rayon, and also for the sturdier and heavier materials of harder usage, for it is material and color that determine the character of the garment, since the shaping of the practical one and of the one of dressy occasions is the same. In the picture, broadcloth is unfined. If a slightly more dressy effect were wanted, chambray satin could be used with lining of the same or of other silk and, for a very sturdy, practical garment, tweed or some similar material would be appropriate. In any case, the neck is finished with a rolling, flaring collar and ribbon is passed around the neck under the collar which is tacked to position, crossed at the front and tied at the back to hold the cape in place. The only fitting required is accomplished by means of short darts, so that there is almost no labor required for the making.

The cape will require 4 yds. of material 36 or 44, 2 1/2 yds. 50 in. wide, with 2 1/2 yds. of ribbon 5 in. wide.

The pattern of the cape 8339 is cut in one size. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

CHILDREN HAD SCALP ERUPTION

Like Blisters. Very Itchy and Irritating. Caused Hair to Fall Out Gradually. Restless at Night. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Eruption Disappeared.

1027 Albright Ave., Reas. Scranton, Pa.—"Our two children had some kind of a scalp disease which gave them annoyance on account of the itching. There was an eruption on their scalps in the form of blisters. These were very itchy and irritating. It caused their hair to fall out gradually. Both of the children were restless at night.

"For a week I tried remedies which did not give relief. Then I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and after a week's time noticed a marked improvement in both cases. In the space of three weeks the eruption had completely disappeared from both of the children's heads." (Signed) Mrs. J. Kearney, Apr. 4, 1914.

White Grubs Likely to Cause Great Losses in Penna.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 19.—The destructive Maybeetles, or so-called June grubs, as was previously predicted by the United States Department of Agriculture, were extremely abundant in the past spring in northeastern Ohio, southern Wisconsin, and northern Illinois, parts of Minnesota, the southern part of Michigan and northern Ohio; also in northeastern Pennsylvania, southeastern New York, parts of Connecticut and New Jersey. This is indicative of a great abundance of white grubs in 1914, and, judging from the greater abundance of beetles in most of these sections this Spring than three years ago, the grub injury will be even greater than in 1912 when it caused many millions of dollars damage.

It is of greatest importance, the department's specialists say, that farmers properly handle their fields this Fall and next Spring to prevent a repetition of the enormous losses occasioned in 1912. The reader is referred to Farmers' Bulletin No. 543, of this department, for further particulars on the white grub.

Brewers and Cigar Makers Are Disturbed Over Proposed Tax

The cigar manufacturers of Harrisburg and vicinity are much disturbed over the announcement of the Washington Administration that an extra tax is likely to be placed on tobacco so as to make up part of the revenue lost by the absence of imports during the war in Europe. Brewers and manufacturers of chewing tobacco are also on the anxious seat over the situation.

The war tax imposed during the Spanish-American War was 60 cents per thousand on cigars, $1 per barrel on beer and $6 per hundred pounds of tobacco, increasing the charges for the stamps to $3.60, $2 and $12 respectively, and which were in force for a period of almost four years, when the old prices were restored. Since then the only one to advance was tobacco, which is now $8.

Joyful Anticipation of Motherhood

There is apt to be a latent apprehension of distress to mar the complete joy of expectation. But this is quite overcome by the advice of so many women to use "Mother's Friend." This is an external application designed to soothe the muscles and to relieve the pressure reacting on the nerve that the natural strain upon the cords and ligaments is not accompanied by those severe pains said to cause morning sickness and many local distresses. This splendid embrocation is known to a multitude of mothers.

Many people believe that those remedies which have stood the test of time, that have been put to every trial under the varying conditions of age, weight, general health, etc., may be safely relied upon. And judging by the fact that "Mother's Friend" has been in continual use since our grandmother's earlier years and is known throughout the United States it may be easily inferred that it is something that women talk about and gladly recommend to prospective mothers.

"Mother's Friend" is prepared only in our own laboratory and is sold by druggists everywhere. Ask for a bottle to-day and write for a special book for expectant mothers. Address Bradford Regulator Co., 407 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Madame Ise'bell. Opens Her Letter Box and Gives Advice as to Toxin of Fatigue, Bags Under the Eyes and Kindred Subjects.

Letters to Correspondents.

My attention is of great interest to me, and, although the personality of my pupils is always held strictly confidential, the subject matter of the letters is often of great general interest. For that reason I am publishing some of the communications I receive and the answers to them in cases where the questions asked are similar to those I receive daily from many readers.

A correspondent writes me of loose flesh forming below the eyes, just over the cheek bone, and asks for a remedy. This trouble in a young woman is apt to indicate some disturbance of the kidney or bladder; this may not be serious but it is advisable to find out if such a condition exists and remedy it. I advise drinking pure water freely between meals. This alone will sometimes cure a simple bladder irritation.

Now for local treatment. Cover the skin around the eyes and below the eyes where this trouble is appearing with a good skin food. Lay the sides of the two forefingers flat against the sides of the face, parallel with the line of the nose and just back of the eyes. Now open and close the eyes vigorously, letting the fingers slip slowly backwards towards the hair line. It should take about eight winks for the fingers to reach the hair line. This exercise will strengthen the muscles about and under the eyes and, as the muscles grow stronger, the loose skin will disappear. Do this two minutes twice a day.

After you have finished wipe off the surplus cream and bathe about the eyes with an astringent or very cold water. This will aid in the skin contraction. Twice a week finish the treatment by rubbing the affected parts with a piece of ice wrapped in a clean piece of soft linen.

Toxin of Fatigue.

A correspondent writes me that she has been trying to reduce flesh by walking on her shopping trips instead of taking a car, and, in fact, walking everywhere she goes with most discouraging results; she is so tired that every few days she has to remain in bed, her face looks drawn and she has reduced her weight hardly at all.

There are two interesting points to be answered in this letter. The danger of over-fatigue and the fact that walking alone is not a good reduction exercise. Walking under proper conditions is a good general exercise; it promotes circulation, deep breathing, aids digestion and burns up sufficient energy to prevent accumulation of excess flesh. But walking is only a good exercise when it is done without nervous strain; walking in tight shoes, over cobble stones, in an uncomfortable skirt or with the arms full of Pimples and the Washcloth.

Mabel—A wash cloth of Turkish toweling is too rough for any skin and on a delicate skin will have the most annoying effect. Use a square of soft linen and pass it through boiling water daily. Soiled or soap-caked wash cloths are great pimple breeders. Never lose sight of the fact that the skin of the face is more delicate than that of any other part of the body, and that, at the same time, it is exposed to every change of temperature as well as dirt and dust. Be careful to use always a pure soap and rinse it well off the skin. If the skin is inclined to be dry and rough, or to inflame easily, dispense with soap entirely and cleanse the skin with a soothing cream or cold cream.

Grace P. T.—There are many causes for pimples. Dried soap left on the face will clog a sebaceous gland and finally so irritate it that a pimple is the result. Indigestion, which inflames the blood, impedes its even circulation, will cause red pimples. For the hard, red swellings you complain of, pain them with colorless salicylic acid as soon as they appear. This will generally remove the irritation and they will subside; but remember never to touch iodine to broken skin.

For the Eyebrows.

L. A. L. writes me that her eyebrows are both thin and pale in color and asks me to advise her as to a dye. At any drug store you can get a cake of L'Esclap Mascara, either in brown or black, and a small brush with which to apply it. This is not a permanent dye, but will come off with water and the eyebrows will grow again. It should not advise using a permanent dye on the eyebrows. At your age you can count on your eyebrows growing darker with time. Apply yellow vaseline night and morning and brush them with an eyebrow brush. If you cannot obtain this ask your druggist for a baby's tooth brush.

Beauty Sleep.

An anxious mother writes that her eighteen-year-old daughter, who has just finished school, has some social engagements and she is very nervous. She insists on the girl's present and she insists on breakfast, she is not getting enough "beauty sleep." If the girl is getting to bed at one in the morning and getting up at seven in the morning, she is not getting enough sleep of any sort, for beauty or for health. A girl of eighteen should have at least eight hours sound sleep and it is better that the eight hours should commence before midnight. I sympathize with the head of the family in this matter; a man who has to take his breakfast alone or without the younger members of the family about him seems a sadly neglected individual. The girl should be willing to give up some of her social life in order to be a rested and willful companion to her father in the morning; on the other hand, if the matter was properly put before the father, he would probably be willing to forego the pleasure of her company for two mornings a week. Remember that at eighteen a girl has not accomplished her growth and should not be allowed either to work or play up to the full measure of her strength.

The unrestricted use of soap on the face, the lack or scarcity of good face creams and the large amount of beef and heavy food eaten are the reasons, I believe, for the red and weather-beaten appearance of many English matrons. Those who have skins inclined to flush and redden easily should take warning from this; protect the face from the weather, be sparing in the use of soap and eat light, easily digested food.
