

Miss Kellermann Says Acting Under Water Deserves Big Pay

Celebrated Diving Girl Features in "Neptune's Daughter," at the Majestic This Week

Speaking of "Neptune's Daughter" the seven reel motion picture in which she appears as a mermaid Annette Kellermann says: "Any moving picture actress who has to work in water ought to draw double pay as an actress and a swimmer and where one must have the extreme pleasure of close acquaintance with turtles, fish, lobsters, those of the many antaemna variety, should have an extra gratuity for this added feature of the contribution to art, as displayed on the screen."

Bermuda is a beautiful spot, full of sunshine and flowers and likewise strange creatures inhabit these waters which are anything but enjoyable positions in the divertimento provided for Miss Kellermann in making the picture, "Neptune's Daughter," which comes to the Majestic Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

HOUSING BUREAU BILL IS READY

[Continued from First Page.] auspices of Dr. Dixon's department. This show was under the direction of Dr. John T. Mullooney, assistant chief medical inspector of the department, and the interest in it was widespread. Special lectures on diseases among children and rules of prevention were delivered during the week and experts in children's diseases were present to aid the dissemination of advice regarding the proper treatment and care of infants. This exhibition was absolutely free and all of the Johnstown newspapers are enthusiastic in referring to what was accomplished. One incident was illustrative of the results of the baby show. After Dr. Mullooney's evening lecture on "housing" a nine-year-old

"little mother," the only caretaker of a six-months-old baby, declared that the backyard is no place for our children. She said that her father must move. Bad Housing Expensive Dr. Mullooney declared that bad housing was an economical blunder and that many nuisances and unsanitary conditions that are allowed to exist within the confines of a city or town cost each citizen some risk of moral or physical health and every taxpayer some money. With science proving the close relationship between dirt and disease, said he, it is obvious that bad housing constitutes a burden as well as a menace which should enlist the active support of the general public. He declared further that small as well as large cities are beginning to understand that bad housing is the root of many evils, and that it is not confined to rows of tall tenement houses, but may exist, as far as living conditions are concerned, in districts containing only small detached houses.

Figures showing the result of the sanitary dwellings erected in Liverpool indicate that after sanitary dwellings had been provided the death rate decreased from 50 per 1,000 to 27; that tuberculosis decline from 4 per cent to 1.9 per cent that in 1896 there were 1,300 cases of typhoid fever and in 1911 there were 200; that the cash saving to the city was at least $325,000 per year or double the cost of rehousing work.

Bureau of Housing These figures and the results of the work of the department in all parts of the state have inspired Dr. Dixon to push forward for the housing proposition and to be ready to present to the next Legislature a clear statement, under the act of 1913, approved by Governor Tener, providing for a bureau of housing which will have to do with the sanitary oversight of boarding, tenement and lodging houses.

This is only one feature of the great work that the bureau of housing is doing which has been going forward under Republican administration which the Democratic candidate for Governor has utterly failed to appreciate.

Richard B. Watrous, secretary of the American Civic Association spent last summer in Europe and has just issued a booklet of his personal observations of housing developments abroad. He illustrates in his pamphlet the garden cities of Europe and the great improvement in the housing conditions of the large industrial centers of the old world.

AT THE COLONIAL Time and again fine moving picture features have been exhibited in the local theaters, but seldom have they come protected by a bodyguard as strong and ferocious as a fighting Indian. Whether this is an indication of the merits of the picture remains to be seen, but it is known that the picture that Standing Eagle, chief of the Indian tribe seen in the "movie" entitled "The Call of the North" travels with the picture in each town it appears.

Standing Eagle is chief of a tribe of American Indians, who play an important part in "The Call of the North," the Jesse L. Lasky feature that comes to the Colonial to-day. This is no less than the same Mr. Lasky who sent the many girl musical comedy attractions of Orpheum in the past and who is now directing a good deal of his attention to "screen" plays. "The Call of the North" is his first feature to appear in Harrisburg. It is in five parts, and calls in the efforts of Robert Edeson, the well-known romantic actor, who is not only popular locally, but who won many friends in this same play in Harrisburg some years ago, when the Orpheum Theater was still called the Lyceum.

"ANNETTE KELLERMANN" The attraction at the Majestic Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 27, 28 and 29, will be Annette Kellermann in a seven-reel feature motion picture play, entitled "Neptune's Daughter." Miss Kellermann, who heretofore has been known as a swimmer and a diver, has recently spent three months on the island of Bermuda making the picture. The picture is directed by Captain Leslie T. Peacocke. This play was written especially to exploit Miss Kellermann and gives her ample scope, not alone to show her genius as an aquatic marvel, but also to display her ability as an actress. The services of 200 actors were required under the stage direction of Herbert Brennen.—Advertisement.

Shooting Corn Pains Fade In An Hour.

Think of the marvel of it, that stinging, burning pain made to go like magic. That's how Putnam's Extractor works. It's made to go right for corns, to root them out, to destroy their pain, to keep callouses, sore foot lumps and the like off the human foot. No remedy quicker, safer, or so painless and dependable. You can absolutely rely on Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, about 50 years in use, sold everywhere in 2c bottles, and by C. M. Forney.—Advertisement.

Adgie Costello's Group of Lions at Paxtang This Week

The fact that Adgie Costello's troupe of ten trained lions will be the feature attraction at Paxtang Park this week calls to mind the terrible tragedy connected with this act and that only a few weeks ago. While Adgie was playing in Chicago, Emerson Detrich, her trainer and accepted suitor, was literally torn to pieces by this same den of savage beasts.

The story of Detrich's fatal romance forms one of the most gruesome tragedies of the stage. The man was an adventurer and fearless. He became a lion trainer with the full knowledge of the danger connected with the job. Detrich fell in love with Miss Costello and took every opportunity to display fearlessness when around the lions. Although it was no part of Detrich's duty to enter the cages, he made pets of the animals and frequently entered their den. Of all the lions which Miss Adgie owned, Teddy, a powerful young beast, just grown from cubhood, was the fiercest and the one she loved best. She was anxious for Emerson to love him, too, and the lad spent much time ingratiating himself with the beast. In addition to Teddy, Tribby, an old lioness, received considerable attention at Detrich's hands. A few weeks ago, while the lions were encaged in a special animal car in the yards of the Santa Fe Railroad in Chicago, where they were to be shown at a Chicago theater, the great paw with claws unsheathed ed the side of the fallen man from scalp to thigh.

Blood spatter from the frightful wounds and the smell of it called the atavistic cry of the "kill" from the throats of the quintet of "tamed" lions caged with the prey, and set in quick motion the heart of George McCord, a trainer residing at the steps of the car, who had heard the cry in the jungle and knew what it meant.

When McCord reached the door of the arena, cage armed with a pitchfork he had picked up, he found it locked against him. Tribby, the old lioness, her hide striped with blood and her jaws agape, stood beside the bleeding form of Detrich trying to get off the determined attack of the blood mad beasts. Detrich was lying on his side, huddled up to ward off as long as possible the impending fate.

So quickly did the bloodthirsty animals paw their victim to death, says McCord, that it had seemed to him but a moment between the time Detrich had been heard saying: "Here Teddy, get down Teddy; lie down Mutt," and then the last cry for help from the overpowered man.

"My God, McCord, my God, get the fork! I'm gone, I'm gone! Teddy, Teddy, Mutt, Mutt!" he finally uttered faintly.

When help arrived the lions were snarling over their prey. One nibbled with blood-moistened fangs at the foot of the victim; another was tugging at an arm; a third was ripping asunder the left breast of Detrich, while the others were sparring for better positions to find their share of the meal. Young Detrich's romance was over.

ANOTHER BIG COMEDY WEEK Since it has been moved and seconded that the weather man's efforts don't count much with Orpheum fans, another big comedy show is now on. It's a good weather or no weather. Anyway, who cares, so long as we have the cool and comfort of the Orpheum and good vaudeville show to make us forget our troubles? Speaking of the people who can't make you forget worries, it's good to think of Joe Welch, the champion smile winner. Joe is a Hebrew comedian of the first water, without any real imitators and a style and originality that is infectious. In fact, the management is so sure that he is going to be one of the biggest foilers that they have offered a reward to anybody who can sit through his act without smiling. Joe Welch comes before the footlights the left breast of Detrich, while the others were sparring for better positions to find their share of the meal. Young Detrich's romance was over.

WOMAN SEES HUSBAND SHOT London, Aug. 24, via London Aug. 24, 12.12 P. M. Belgian refugees are arriving here in large numbers. Their conditions are pitiable. Many have lost all their possessions and their homes have been burned down. One woman and her two small children had been forced to look on while her husband was shot to death by German cavalrymen.

HIS ITCHING ECZEMA GONE RESINOL DID IT

Davenport, Iowa, May 2, 1914: "I had a severe, torturing case of eczema on my feet, hands, arms and body for about four months, and I suffered untold misery. The itching was something awful. In a couple of days it spread all over me with small blisters and then formed a raw mass of sores. I tried —, and many other remedies and prescriptions, but I only grew worse. Finally I read of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and commenced using it. I got relief from the first treatment — Resinol STOPPED THE ITCHING INSTANTLY, and I could sleep the first night. I used four or five jars of Resinol Ointment and Soap also, and I am entirely cured of that disease—eczema, and I can cheerfully boast Resinol." (Signed) G. W. Fuller, 712 E. 10th St.
