Miss Ruth Crane and Victor Ibach Slip Quietly Away For Marriage

MR. AND MRS. VICTOR IBACH

George Crane, of 1845 Herr street, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Ruth Crane to Victor A. Ibach, of this city.

Miss Crane and Mr. Ibach slipped quietly away from their relatives, who knew nothing of the marriage until they returned home Saturday and announced the event.

The bride has a host of friends throughout the city, and Mr. Ibach, who is a night messenger for the Pennsylvania Railroad, is well known as a ball player.

Miss Crane and Mr. Ibach were married at Hagerstown, Md., Saturday, August 22, by the Rev. E. K. Thomas, pastor of the Baptist Church, of that city.

DIABETIC LEG AMPUTATED

Physicians know that operations in Diabetes are nearly always fatal, commonly making centers for gangrene, which often appears in this disease.

The patient, a San Francisco business man, was taken to the St. Winifred Hospital with a gangrened leg. It was an old case of Diabetes and the gangrene had extended so far that the severance was between the knee and the thigh.

The physician did not attempt the operation till he had eliminated the sugar with FULTON'S Diabetic Compound. The consulting physicians felt it would be fatal, but the operating physician knew what he could do after he had eliminated the sugar, and proceeded with the operation.

The fourteenth day the stitches were removed, the wound showing beautiful pink color. The patient left the hospital the fourth week.

The ability of FULTON'S Diabetic Compound to oppose Hepatic degenerations and reduce sugar in many cases of Diabetes in people aged fifty and upwards is not a matter of opinion, but a FACT IN PHYSICS, and we will mail formula that will show the percentage of sugar from week to week.

As the sugar disappears improvement commonly follows, recoveries having been reported in many cases. Formula and literature mailed on request. John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco, J. H. Boher, Druggist, 209 Market street, is local agent. Ask for pamphlet.—Advertisement.

Start From Glasgow For Home on the Cameronia, Anchor Line

Letters were received this morning by Daniel C. Herr from Edward Bailey, president of the Harrisburg Trust Company, who is in Scotland with his family.

Mr. Bailey writes from the Highland Hotel, Strathpeffer, which ordinarily is the regular banking office with three hundred or more guests, that owing to the war there are not more than twenty-five guests at the hotel, including the five members of Mr. Bailey's family.

The Bridgmans Return The Rev. O. H. Bridgman and Mrs. Bridgman, of New York, returned home after a three months' visit in England and the Isle of Man.

Mr. Bridgman, who is rector of the Camp Hill and New Market Episcopal Churches, says he obtained passage back to this country only through good fortune.

Our boat took the extreme northern route for safety. We went 300 miles north of the regular channel. Every precaution was taken by the ship's officers to avoid capture and at night all lights were blanketed.

Soon after leaving Liverpool the ship was repainted as a precautionary measure.

Hear From Miss Boone Dr. and Mrs. Henry L. Orth have received word from their niece, Miss Theodosia Boone, the Seller School faculty, who spent the summer in France.

LIGHTHOUSES SET UP BY EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Darlington of this city, in mining sections of the state. The lighthouse of the mining sections are not stone structures that rear their flames to guide wandering ships at sea.

"It was in the small towns, where there was no beacon to hold the young men true to their course, that the whirlpool, spinning round and round in the gambling rooms and saloons, sucked in its dirty toll. Then Bishop Darlington set up his lighthouses."

"Here the miners may have enjoyment without danger; they may cruise far from shore peacefully and joyfully without fearing the wrecking shoals. There is no telling how many lives these institutions have saved nor how many barks they have steered safe into the harbor."

Mr. Bailey's family banker are known as Bishop Darlington's Lighthouses, for he was the one who conceived the idea of having a place of refuge for the breaker boys and their sires, where they could gather and have a good time after their hard day's work in the dark underground.

Moreover, the Bishop presented his plan before a religious community and urged the erection of structures in the most isolated sections with such good effect that to-day a chain of Lighthouses stretches from one end of the diocese to the other.

"Before the bishop was called to Harrisburg there were many vicious resorts in the isolated towns, with no other attractions than the gambling houses or social centers to counteract their influence. To-day it is a different story, and it was the reclaiming of one wayward youth that was responsible for the change."

Bishop Darlington's story "I had only been in this diocese a short time when I started on a tour of the various towns and parishes to get acquainted with the conditions and needs. I was passing through one of the small towns when a woman called me into her home."

"The poor woman said that she had been watching and praying for several weeks for a clergyman, in the hopes that he would have some influence with her son, and she thought that her prayers had been answered."

"The change in a boy "When the boy came the mother took him into the room where I was sitting and told him that I wanted to see him for a few minutes."

"I was talking the boy changed, tears came into his eyes and I saw that I had touched the right spot and that there were some good in him after all."

"I called his mother into the room and asked her if she was willing to go with me to Philadelphia."

"I soon saw that I was right; that it wasn't more preaching that these folks needed, but a more practical remedy set as a social force."

"I started with one or two as an experiment, and they proved so successful that they were soon followed by others."
