DR. BRUMBAUGH IS GREETED IN UPPER END HOW I CURED MY EYES

[Continued From First Page] child, one of the best known Republicans in the upper end, presided and introduced Dr. Brumbaugh as the first speaker. His appearance on the platform was the signal for a great outburst of cheering from the audience that surrounded the stand and filled the square.

Dr. Brumbaugh's Speech. Dr. Brumbaugh's speech at Millersburg was typical of those all along the line of yesterday's trip: "It is with a peculiar feeling of pleasure that I stand in this beautiful town of Millersburg, thirty years ago my baby uncle, then a young man starting upon his educational career, came to Millersburg and taught here in your schools. You understand, therefore, that in a kind of a heart-like way I come into your community to greet you to-night.

"A few years ago there was a great agitation over this country about party caucuses, and that good men could not seek office because they would not come to the party caucuses for the nomination. The Republican party gave to the state of Pennsylvania an open primary law. Under the operation of that law I became a candidate before you for the office of Governor. Two hundred and fifty-three thousand legally qualified voters of Pennsylvania supported me at that primary election upon a platform which I myself framed, and which I express here now to those of you who participated in that splendid and cordial support my sincere gratitude, and to ask you and your fellow-citizens to stand steadfastly by until we win a splendid, triumphant election in November next.

"In this platform, among other things I took occasion to voice some of the fundamental issues which I believed to lie at the present time in the foreground of our obligation to the people of this state. Among those, first of all, as I view the problem, is the obligation to take care of the people of Pennsylvania, for, after all, the one sacred trust in our commonwealth is our human asset in men and women and children, and without entering into a detailed discussion of the meaning of that matter I wish to assure you that we stand pledged and we feel ourselves capable of legislating and administering for you such a series of laws as will guarantee to every man and woman and child in Pennsylvania that full and equal right before the law, and serve the welfare of the life of this commonwealth.

"I have committed myself absolutely to the policy of favoring the submission to the people of Pennsylvania in its different counties the question of local option because I believe firmly that the people of every county in this state are intelligent enough and fair enough and capable enough to settle that question for themselves, and they ought to have the right to do it if they want to do it.

Good Roads. "There is another thing I will say here (and I think you will agree with me), and that is perhaps one of the most important of immediate needs of this valley—a decent public road, which will carry the products of your farms and factories, at a minimum cost, to the markets of the world. It is no idle boast, but it is the solemn truth, that if you elect me to the office of Governor of Pennsylvania I will see to it that you get good roads in Pennsylvania, and furthermore, I assure you that for every dollar expended in roads in Pennsylvania you will get 100 cents' worth of good, substantial roads. This will be done just as soon as I have the power to do it. And therefore, you see me advocating then, as I do here, the proper supervision of those roads, and that they shall be constructed so that they can be kept for all time to come in as good condition as the day they are completed and turned over for use to our people. Your railroad companies and your transportation companies keep their trucks constantly in good condition so they may haul a maximum load of products at a minimum cost to the markets of the world. Your highways should be in exactly this same condition. When we went to the island of Porto Rico in 1900 we found a public highway running from San Juan to the other side of the island, and although that road had been in constant use for fifty years, it was as good a road the day Americans took possession of the island as it was fifty years before. Why? Because about every seven kilometers there was a roadmaster's house and a section of that road was handled daily and kept up by that means, and whenever the smallest depression showed itself it was immediately repaired. So it ought to be in Pennsylvania. We should maintain it in a sensible and thorough way for all time to come. Now that is only a good, sensible business proposition. We can build good roads, well crowned, on which we may with some degree of comfort get to some places in Pennsylvania without using a flying machine or renting a balloon.

His Platform. "May I ask for a few minutes of your attention to another phase of this campaign. It has come to my mind that you want to know something about the men whom you will cast your ballots for and be assured that they will deal honestly with you in office and serve you faithfully. In that respect I can point to my entire life, and ask you to remember what I have said before and what I now say to you. My own platform is my pledge to you to-night. You live here at the foot of a beautiful valley, on the banks of a wonderful river, surrounded by the most marvelous mountain in the history of geology. There was a time long ago when this great world of ours was a boundless sea of water, and then in His own time God spake the word and out of the mighty pulseless deep there lifted this great, splendid Blue Mountain into the sunlight of heaven. It is the oldest mountain in all America. Many of you who have looked out on its wonderful ranges have heard people say what a tremendous waste this old mountain was and what a tremendous waste this old mountain is. It has no mineral or lumber upon it. What good is it? If we could get rid of it what additional farm land there would be where it stands. They are foolish people when they say that of this great, splendid mountain of ours, for the prevailing winds of the Atlantic ocean are here on the face of the highest strata of air and their moisture is precipitated into rain in Eastern Pennsylvania. These old Blue Mountains are worth $40,000,000 a year in farm products to the people of Eastern Pennsylvania.

"I ask you to give us your support because I believe you will find it to be to your interest and to our glory and advance of the old commonwealth of Pennsylvania." Lafean and Kreider Speak. Daniel Lafean, candidate for Congress-at-large, was the next speaker and he discussed national issues, dwelling particularly on the failure of the Democratic administration to make good its promise to reduce the high cost of living. He was well received and was followed by Congressman Aaron S. Kreider, candidate for re-election, who talked mainly on the Underwood tariff and its evil effects on American business. He said the "war tax" proposed by President Wilson is not a war tax in reality, but a
