NAGLE ST. PASTOR RESIGNS CHARGE

Before Eldership on Charges of Immoral Conduct; Details Are Not Made Public

Following trial on charges of immoral conduct before the judicial committee of the East Pennsylvania Eldership of the Church of God, now in session at Lancaster, the Rev. G. W. Danner, pastor of the Nagle Street Church of God, this city, resigned yesterday. His resignation was tendered after the committee had recommended his suspension from the ministry for a year.

The sessions yesterday were taken up with the trial of the Rev. Mr. Danner on the immorality charge and the Rev. I. A. McDonald, of Shippensburg, who is charged with slander and hypocrisy. There are forty-three counts of slander and fourteen of hypocrisy, against him.

Details of the charges against the Rev. Mr. Danner have not been issued, as the eldership disagreed on the question of newspaper publicity.

The trouble involving the Rev. Mr. McDonald dates back several years when it is charged he repeatedly wrote letters denouncing Dr. C. H. Forney, of this city, to the secretary of the Board of General Eldership. This relates to the slander charge.

Two years ago, at the Shippensburg convention, the Rev. Mr. McDonald presented charges of electioneering against a number of ministers. It is because of these actions that he is arraigned for hypocrisy.

The Rev. Mr. McDonald, it is alleged, signed a basis of settlement admitting implication in slander and hypocrisy. This was accepted by the judicial committee and the eldership to-day discussed the advisability of approving it.

INDIANA COUNTY CHEERS NOMINEES

Republican Candidates Receive a Tremendous Greeting From Thousands of People

Blairsville, on the southern line of Indiana county, and across the Kiskiminetas from Westmoreland county, gave the Republican State candidates a rousing reception last night, over 3,000 men gathering to hear them, while the people of the town, which used to be a hotbed of insurgency, decorated their homes and turned out in force to greet the candidates. Dr. Brumbaugh aroused tremendous enthusiasm by a vigorous declaration of his platform and Senator Penrose's denunciation of the Democratic war tax to hide the deficiencies of the Democratic tariff had many a sympathetic listener.

Some of the most independent men in the two counties turned out for the demonstration and prospects for the Republicans rolling up great majorities are excellent, especially as the Democrats are split wide open. The Republican meeting in Blairsville was in striking contrast to the Democratic meetings in Greensburg, the county seat of Westmoreland, where a small audience greeted Palmer and McCormick and where the air resounds with the diatribes of James M. Laird and other Democrats against the arrogant bosses of their divided party.

Firm for Local Option

Dr. Brumbaugh reiterated his stand for local option, saying he had been for it for years and that he was being misrepresented in the most outrageous way. Said he: "The teachers in this Commonwealth who have heard me for a generation lecturing throughout the State, and the army of children who have passed under my supervision in their training in this State, and the people in a thousand churches where I have spoken, know that any attempt such as now being made to misrepresent me on this issue is a slander and the besmirching of a record which they cannot even approach, much less equal. Let the people know the truth, and let the righteous and decent issue follow."

"I deplore the attempt being made to spread throughout this nation the slanderous implication that Pennsylvania is a corrupted and a badly managed Commonwealth. I am proud of my State, proud of the godly ancestry from which I have sprung in this State, proud of the great, splendid people of this Commonwealth. I am glad to be one of them, and I ask them to join with me in holding up the fair name of Pennsylvania to the world, and saying even to her traducers, 'Pennsylvania is too clean and too splendid a Commonwealth ever to surrender its government to men who would besmirch its fair name and traduce its splendid institutions for the sake of holding office and exploiting the Commonwealth for their personal and selfish ends.'

For Children and Labor

"Better than your forges and furnaces, your mills and mines, your farms and factories, valuable as these are, are the children who are to be the men and women of to-morrow, and who are to-day our most important asset and our first concern. Under the school code it is possible in Pennsylvania now, without further legislation save increased appropriations, to carry on the work to establish here in Pennsylvania the finest school system in the world.

"We need in Pennsylvania also an advanced employers' liability act, which, exclusive of domestic service and employment on the farm, will guarantee to our people in full proper reward and suitable compensation for any injuries received while at work."

"It is unfortunate that in this great, generous Commonwealth women are obliged to toil for their daily bread, but if in our economic conditions this at any time is necessary, as it seems to be, I wish to assure you that I stand absolutely committed to any legislation that will make easy the tasks of our women in toil, and that will protect them and safeguard their health while they work."

"I have also given for many years earnest thought and consideration to the child labor legislation of this Commonwealth and of other States, and I love the State well enough to have given so largely of my time to its children that I wish unequivocally to take the stand for the child labor legislation that any community can possibly enjoy. I believe there are possibilities in this direction that we have not yet touched. If in some vital and practical way we can link the toll of our children with their education, and make the transition from school to work a gradual and not a sudden one, with proper restrictions as to hours in the day and limits in age, we can render to the childhood of to-day a service of the greatest moment. Their lives must be conserved, their energy husbanded, their strength developed, their skill directed and their intelligence converted into the highest possible forms of utility."

"In the open primaries of May I won the nomination for the office of Governor with a vote of more than a quarter of a million of qualified electors of this Commonwealth. In their name and in their behalf I am making the fight in Pennsylvania for a clean and capable and intelligent administration of our public affairs. There is no other influence in the world that controls me, no so-called 'boss' or 'bosses' have ever for one moment undertaken to dictate to me whether or not I should be a candidate or what I should do if elected to the office of Governor, and I wish distinctly to declare that if chosen to that office I shall be hand-free and heart-free to do absolutely the things which in my own conscience I believe to be right, and I shall allow no man in this wide world to dictate to me what I shall or shall not do."

Senator Penrose assailed the war tax. "Why," he asked, "is this extraordinary proposal to increase the federal taxes by $105,000,000 at a time when, because of business stress, all private manufacturing and mercantile enterprises, and the people in their homes are economizing in their expenditures as they have not done for many years?"

"The answer is that the money is needed not because of any war, not because of any external emergency, but to cover up the extravagance of the political party which, though it represents only a minority of the voters, is now in power in this nation and the utter breakdown of its fiscal policy of tariff for revenue only which has failed to produce the necessary revenue."

"The Democratic tariff has failed to justify the one consideration urged for its existence, that it was a tariff for revenue only. That tariff has undetermined American industries, demoralized the country's business, ruined many a manufacturer and merchant, and driven thousands of American wage-earners to idleness and want. Its pathway is marked by silent machinery and cheerless homes; its monuments are the smokeless chimneys of the factories.

"The free silver agitation, the free trade agitation, the radical and vindictive assaults on business, for no other reason, apparently, than it was prosperous, year by year, have been driving out of the Democratic party in the Northern States those business and professional men who were once the best element of its membership.

"One blunder after another, one unsound propaganda after another, has caused men of this type to abandon the Democratic party. Therefore, when the chance of politics has brought that party into control of the national government, these men are not available for Democratic councils. The party leaders are handicapped without them. No such tariff law as the law now on the statute books would ever have been framed if the business men of the country who used to be in the Democratic party had remained with that party."

Thousands of destitute inhabitants have taken refuge in neighboring villages.

Letters to the Editor

WILDMAN AND LYBARGER

To the Editor of the Telegraph:

During the firemen's parade on Thursday last while Augustus Wildman, one of the candidates for member of the House of Representatives on the Republican ticket, displayed his civic interest and patriotism by marching in the ranks with his men, his opponent on the Democratic ticket, Jesse J. Lybarger, exposed his callousness by following the parade in an automobile decorated with his political advertisement and distributing his political card with bombast and egotism on its face and vilification of his opponent on its back.

As a fireman I have not forgotten the strenuous fight Wildman made during the closing hours of the last session of the Legislature to save the State appropriation to our fire companies after the same had been stricken from the general appropriation bill on account of its illegality. Such conduct, Jesse, gets you no votes. Better cut it out.

Gets Spark Plugs and $6 in Cash For Bad Check

Signing his name as James McCughy, a motorcyclist, passed a forged check last evening on the Excelsior Cycle Company, 1007-9 North Third street. McCughy told a hard luck story to Harry Feldstein, manager of the company, saying that his motorcycle was out of commission and that he needed two spark plugs to enable him to run his machine. He gave a check for $5 to manager Feldstein and was given $5 in change.

It was discovered this morning that the check was void.
