MISS ALICE WALLIS MAKES HER DEBUT

Formally Introduced at Tea This Afternoon at the Meredith Home

The first debutante party of the season was held this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Taliaferro Meredith, 1605 North Front street, when Miss Alice Tenckle Wallis, a daughter of Mr. Meredith's sister, Mrs. John Mather Wallis, of 1717 North Second street, was presented to society, at a tea from 4 to 6 o'clock, by her mother, and Mrs. Meredith. Miss Wallis has been a resident of this city for only a short time having recently returned after a year of foreign travel.

A color scheme of yellow prevailed in the house decorations, with masses of chrysanthemums, ferns and lovely blossoms. Present at the young debutante, Yellow chrysanthemums formed the center piece of the refreshment table, where Mrs. Frank Payne poured tea and Mrs. Walter P. Maguire presided over the chocolate service. In the receiving line were Mrs. Philip T. Meredith, wearing an exquisite gown of rose colored panne velvet; Mrs. Wallis in pink satin and old lace and Miss Wallis in a girlish frock of white chiffon with touches of rose pink carrying various bouquets from her floral gifts. Miss Dora Wickersham Coe, in white tulle and white broad gridle of gold brocade; Miss Eleanor Neale Clark, in white chiffon; Miss Edith Bailey, in white tulle; Miss Louise Carney, in white tulle and white chiffon, with pink and red velvet roses; Miss Mary Meyers wearing white lace over pink chiffon, with bodice of pink velvet brocade; Miss Katharine Etter in yellow chermuse with gold lace and touches of fur.

Something About John Drew's New Leading Woman, Martha Hedman, an Interesting Personality

Miss Hedman, at the Majestic Theater for one performance only, Tuesday evening, November 10, is of Swedish birth and in her speech there still remains a slight accent, and charming as it is unexpected. Coming from Stockholm, where she was born, Miss Hedman visited friends in London about three years ago. Miss Hedman's training in Stockholm had been as thorough as it had been remarkable. Her preparation was remarkable for no less a reason than that her teacher was the distinguished Swedish playwright, August Strindberg. Her training was arduous and thorough, the climax of her schooling coming when she played Countess Julia, of all Stringberg roles the most exacting, to the satisfaction of the dramatist himself. The rudiments of her art, Miss Hedman next acted in the Swedish capital with Mrs. Carin Swanstrom, an important figure in Stockholm theatricals since she has maintained her own repertory theater there for the past nine years. Miss Hedman and Mrs. Swanstrom alternated the principal roles in such plays as Maurice Donnay's "The Second Danger," Hauptmann's "Rosebrand" and Faber's "Mrs. Lily." Later Miss Hedman was seen in Edmund's "Father and Son," Henri Lavendard's "Catherine," played here in America some seasons ago by Annie Russell, J. M. Barrie's "Quality Street," in which Maude Adams was seen here, and Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell," the American introduction of which we owe to Arnold Daly.

Then came the time when Charles Frohman, then in London, was looking about for a leading woman for Bernstein's "The Attack." In his mind he had pictured the "type" for the role of Renee and interviewed full of a score of London's most prominent leading women without encountering one meeting his requirements. It was then that Miss Hedman, armed with a letter of introduction, called on Mr. Frohman at his London offices in the Globe Theater. The entire interview lasted about nine minutes. At its close Mr. Frohman said, "You will sail for America next Saturday—you are to be leading woman for John Mason."

Her American success will be readily recalled. Her new role in Mr. Drew's play is said to suit her charmingly.—Advertisement.

DINNER FOR LEBANON POOR

Special to The Telegraph
Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 7.—The Rev. J. W. Snader, pastor of the United Disciples of Christ Church, announced to-day that his congregation will furnish a Thanksgiving Day dinner to the poor people of Lebanon and environs on Thanksgiving Day.

STRICT CATTLE QUARANTINE

Special to The Telegraph
Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 7.—This county, together with two other counties, Frederick and Allegany, in this state, have been placed under the strictest quarantine owing to the outbreak of the dreaded foot and mouth disease among cattle. The quarantine is so rigid that no cloven-footed animal can be driven on a public highway. All shipments of cattle have been stopped. Those purchased by butchers have to be hauled to the slaughterhouses and immediately killed.

CATTLE YARD QUARANTINED

Special to The Telegraph
Marysville, Pa., Nov. 7.—On account of the recent outbreak of the foot and mouth disease, which is affecting the cattle all over the country, the stock yards at the east end of the local yards have been placed under quarantine. These yards are used to feed and water stock which must be kept here before being shipped to their destination.

FIRE UNDER CONTROL

Special to The Telegraph
Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 7.—The big fire which broke out in the mountains Thursday afternoon near Pen-Mar and which threatened the destruction of many cottages at outcrops at the park was gotten under control early Friday morning and back-fred across the range south of the park. The destruction of timber will amount to at least $50,000. A small one-story structure owned by Lewis Kohler, the pioneer resident of Pen-Mar Park, and a large chicken house belonging to Mrs. Ella Finch, of Baltimore, and on the Washington Cliff House property, were destroyed.

WHAT THE SHOPS ARE SHOWING

Every day something new! Now we no longer have to buy cases of carbonated water, for a single bottle, shown at the Gorgas Drug Store with a special attachment, carbonates ordinary drinking water at almost no expense, and makes it possible to have carbonated water in the most convenient manner at any and all times. These bottles are regular siphon bottles of large size and attractive appearance and would make most desirable Christmas gifts. They show also a variety of sizes and styles in Thermos bottles at lowest prices, as well as the leather cases to carry these bottles when traveling.

Salad Dressing
"Dinner without a salad is like a woman without a smile," and indeed salads with oil dressing should be frequently served, not only on account of their tastiness, but also because pure olive oil is extremely wholesome. Of course it is necessary that the oil be strictly pure and it should be bought only from firms whose reputation is a guarantee of excellence. The Studebaker Grocery Store, Second street at State, makes a specialty of pure Tuscan olive oil, with the delicate smoothness and tastiness which only imported olive oil has, and although the importers have been forced to advance the price of this oil, the Studebaker store is cutting down their individual profits and selling this excellent oil at the usual price.

Old Hymns and New
For many people the old hymns never grow tiresome, but strange indeed in the person who does not enjoy the new hymns included in the Stough Campaign hymnals, for these sacred songs are especially melodious and pleasing. These hymnals are offered for sale by the Central Book Store, 329 Market street, a store which specializes in religious literature of all kinds. They are showing these hymnals, "Make Christ King" in three different bindings, as well as a complete line of Bibles, prayer books, etc. Their prices are always very moderate, and only first class merchandise is sold.

Dainty Luncheon Sets
For a dainty in the breakfast room, or for a dainty informal luncheon, the charming luncheon sets shown at the Woman's Exchange, Third street at Herr, are most attractive. These sets of thirteen pieces, stamped ready for embroidery are sold for just $1.50, and the stitch used in embroidering them is so simple that anyone can do it with excellent results. Done in blue they are most effective when used with blue and white china, although any desired color scheme may be carried out. They make very attractive Christmas gifts. This shop is also showing some beautiful designs in the more elaborate luncheon sets for formal use.

For the Drawing Room
New decorations for the drawing room are naturally suggested by the beginning of the winter season, for it is at this time of the year that the drawing room is most used, for formal entertaining which is naturally centered there, and this room must be decorated so that the background sets off to advantage the costumes of the guests who assemble there. Wall coverings for the drawing room are shown at the A. B. Tack Wall Paper Shop, 1216 North Third street. This model has designs of unusual beauty, and there valuable advice may be obtained as to appropriate color schemes and decorative harmonies, taking into consideration the little details that less experienced decorators might neglect.

For Good Style and Good Sense
Excellence of workmanship and beauty of line characterize the new models shown at the Walk-Over Boot Shop, 226 Market street, one of which is a smart custom-made boot, distinctly a dress model, yet well-adapted for walking and street wear, with the tall, graceful, dainty heel, while the combination of patent leather and soft French kid make it an excellent style for dress wear. This same model is shown in three qualities, selling for $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00.

ASK YOUR WIFE What She Thinks About Our Proposition
Ask her what the washing is costing her now—in money, in time—her time and the maid's time in addition to the cost of gas that the laundress burns so freely. You and she must understand that we use SOFT water for washing purposes, that your clothes washed by modern methods, in which centrifugal motion is substituted for the old "rub it hard" way, last longer and are actually cleaner.
If your wife prefers to do the ironing at home we will return it ROUGH DRIED. Our equipment includes the very latest machinery which enables us to iron in less time than it can be done at home.
