"LONG BLACK JOHN," FAMOUS BUCK, SHOT

Magnificent Animal Was Target For South Mountain Hunters For Many Years

Special to The Telegraph. Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 13.—Christian Calmer, Glen Furney, in this section because he succeeded in killing the Blue Ridge deer for many years. The deer was called "Long Black John" and he was very dark in color, in fact he was black; he was wily, and it was believed his thick coat of hair was to him as armor plate was to a warship and capable of turning aside bullets.

Many hunters have espied him and some have spent an entire season in an effort to bring "Long Black John" down, but their desired aim could not be accomplished, although they have had several shots at the fleet-footed animal. Christian Calmer came across him yesterday near the Old Forge. He shot twice at "Long John," the first bullet breaking a front and a hind leg, and the second penetrated the deer's heart. The deer weighed 200 pounds and had ten prongs.

Glenn Wallace, of Wayne avenue shot a deer and cut off the foot of the animal's hind leg, but did not succeed in getting it. It was growing dark and the deer was lost in the bushes. Leaves along the path of the deer were covered with blood and it is thought that the animal will succumb to its wounds.

The Arendtsville club got two big bucks, Francis Cole getting one that weighed 203 pounds and Cornman Crum shooting the other.

The Kane club, in Buchanan Valley, brought down one.

John DeGroot, of Cashtown, killed a ten-prong buck. William Bowman, near Cashtown, also had good luck and shot a nine-prong buck. Car. Sheppard, of Cashtown, killed one of the largest deer seen in the neighborhood. It had ten prongs and weighed 200 pounds. Albert Irwin, Buchanan Valley, killed a two-prong buck.

John A. Martin, of Waynesboro, shot a 165-pound ten-prong buck and a few minutes later another buck fell to the ground mortally wounded. The credit for shooting this deer is divided between Sharon Mentzer, of Waynesboro, and William Hollinger, of Shady Grove.

C. B. Steops, of New Bloomfield, killed a nine-prong buck that weighed 142 pounds on Shriver's Mountain, east of Vineyard Hollow.

James Fogue, of Chambersburg, conductor on the Chambersburg and Gettysburg trolley, shot a seven-prong buck at Murder Gap, near Stump Run, that weighed 165 pounds.

A. M. Duncan, Stewartstown, killed a four-prong 160-pound deer near Caledonia.

MONT AITO CONTRIBUTIONS. Mechanicsburg People Responding Liberally to Appeals for Clothing. Special to The Telegraph. Mechanicsburg, Pa., Nov. 13.—Members of the committee in charge of the Mont Aito relief contributions in Mechanicsburg are very grateful for the response to their appeal. There has been some clothing, shoes and money contributed, but not enough. At the Daily Journal office boxes have been placed for anyone desiring to put their mite in. While answering this appeal the good people upon whom the bulk of charity work falls should remember that the Mont Aito sanatorium is now a deficiency institution and it is right and proper that its needs be supplied by Pennsylvanians. The appropriation by the Legislature does not provide any clothing. Up to this time enough used clothing has been supplied, but this year more children have been sent to the sanatorium and there should be petitioned to increase the appropriation. An extra $2,000 or $3,000 would be sufficient. This action belongs to all church societies, charitable clubs, women's clubs, and assemblies should be petitioned to do so. All money contributions should be sent to Henry D. Speakman, at Mont Aito.

DEATH OF DAVID R. MILLER. Special to The Telegraph. Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 13.—David R. Miller, a prominent and widely-known farmer of the Marsh district, near Waynesboro, died at his home near Union schoolhouse on Wednesday night, following a severe paralytic stroke that prostrated him four weeks ago. He was 78 years old and was born and spent his entire life on the farm on which he died, it being the old ancestral home of the Miller family. He is survived by his four sons, Edward, Walter E. K., Wayne, and David; and a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Lecon, of Rock Forge. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning.

BRIDE OF MISSIONARY. Miss Edith Shoop, Marries Fred LeRoy Coleman at Lebanon. Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 13.—One of the most interesting and notable weddings of the Fall season was solemnized here yesterday morning in Salem Lutheran Memorial Chapel when Miss Edith M. Shoop, of Philadelphia, became the bride of Fred LeRoy Coleman, a theological student, who was recently commissioned as a foreign missionary and who will leave for his post in India in a few days with his bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Theodore E. Schmauk, senior pastor of the church, in the presence of the members of the families of the contracting parties and a very few friends. The Rev. H. D. Whittaker, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Derry, a former classmate of the bridegroom at Muhleberg College and at the Lutheran Seminary at Mount Airy, officiated as best man, and Mrs. Walter Shoop, a sister-in-law of the bride, of Philadelphia, was the matron of honor. The only witnesses to the ceremony were the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shoop, of Philadelphia; Arthur Shoop, Miss Lillian Smith and Mrs. Mary Dohner, of Lebanon, and Levi Barnhart and Walter Wentz, of this city, who were classmates of the bridegroom at the Lebanon high school. The bride is a daughter of the late Monroe F. Shoop, of Colebrook, Pa. She had been teaching in the public schools of Philadelphia for several years. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Dawson Coleman.

"IMPEGO" IN LEBANON SCHOOLS. Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 13.—School directors of this city are much troubled over the appearance among school children of a skin disease known as "impego." The disease is extremely contagious and adults are not immune, so the school board has directed Dr. J. DeWitt Kerr, the school physician, to direct his energies toward combatting the disease.

FINDS WIFE IS MARRIED. Sunbury, Pa., Nov. 13.—Twenty years ago George K. Weirick, formerly of Lower Augusta township, left his home to go West. He located in Oakland, Cal., and wrote frequently to his wife. The letters ceased, and after six years the woman married George B. Coleman, and later moved away. To-day Weirick turned up with a large sum of money. He inquired of Samuel H. Bowers, railroad station-master, whom he knew during his boyhood, for his wife. Bowers told him the story. Weirick declared he would not hunt further and left on a night train for the West.

JEWELRY THIEF SENTENCED. Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 13.—John Lebo, well known to pawnbrokers at Harrisburg, Philadelphia and elsewhere, on Thursday afternoon pleaded guilty before Judge Henry to a charge of robbing the Joseph Considine jewelry store here several months ago and he was sentenced to a term of not more than four years nor less than two years in the Eastern Penitentiary. The local police found a considerable amount of the stolen jewelry at Harrisburg.
