FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE NOT INCREASING

State Officials Say That All Damages Are to Be Ascertained by Agents of the Stock Board

State Livestock Sanitary Board officials to-day reported that no new cases of foot and mouth disease had been reported in the last twenty-four hours and that a systematic effort was being made to ascertain the exact value of all cattle that had to be killed to prevent spread of the disease, so that steps for full remuneration would be facilitated if taken up by the Legislature.

William Hallman and David Fulmer, of Lancaster, have been arrested on complaint of an agent of the board. They are charged with violating the State quarantine regulations against foot and mouth disease by driving cattle over the roads without a permit. Hallman and Fulmer held a public sale at the Conestoga Inn on November 6; they were warned against moving the cattle, but it is charged, disregarding the warning and delivered some of the cattle during the night. Foot and mouth disease subsequently developed in several herds to which the cattle had been delivered and the sale cattle are suspected of conveying the contagion. The herd owners are indignant because of the disregard of the quarantine precautions and threaten civil action against Hallman and Fulmer.

STORM SWEEPS OVER ATLANTIC SEABOARD

relayed messages by way of Baltimore, Reading and Allentown to Philadelphia.

New Jersey Coast Hit By Wind and Rain Storm

Atlantic City, Dec. 7. — The north-east storm which has been raging for two days was still lashing the New Jersey coast to-day though with less fury than yesterday. The terrific pounding of the sea has caused considerable damage but in no one place was it very serious except at the steel pier in this city where the music pavilion on the ocean end of that structure is threatened with destruction. The piling under the hall has been weakened and if the storm does not soon abate the big auditorium may be wrecked. The high water piled up by the storm flooded parts of Longport and Ventnor south of Atlantic City and washed away a number of bulkheads protecting the summer residences. The high water also invaded the ocean end of several Atlantic City streets, but no serious damage was done.

Sea Bright Under Water; Communication Is Cut Off

Sea Bright, N. J., Dec. 7. — The turning of the ebb tide here to-day found Sea Bright's streets under water, the railroad tracks covered by the ocean for two miles and a storm-lashed sea sweeping through breaks in the sea walls constructed after the floods of last year. With high tide to come the situation was alarming and residents practically abandoned hope of preventing the water from coming in. The tide was sweeping over the ground floors of houses and there appeared to stretch unbroken stretches of water between Normandie and the highlands, several miles. A loss estimated at $100,000 was caused by the storm during the night. The first National Bank vaults were flooded to their tops. The unknown warship reported ashore off the Delaware coast is believed by Navy Department officials here to be one of a foreign fleet. The safe arrival of two American destroyers at Norfolk and a report from the captain of the battleship Kansas that he was riding out the storm off the Delaware Capes disposed safely of all the American war craft in the vicinity. No American warship answering the description of the fighter reported ashore—four funnels and a lighting top—is anywhere near that vicinity.

Storm Moves Northward With Greater Intensity

Washington, D. C., Dec. 7. — Steadily increasing in its intensity and moving slowly northward, the sixty-mile gale which has been whipping the Atlantic coast since Saturday night was central to-day off the Virginia Capes. Storm warnings were a-flutter from Hatteras, N. C., to Eastport, Maine, advising mariners to seek safe harbors. The unknown warship reported ashore off the Delaware coast is believed by Navy Department officials here to be one of a foreign fleet. The safe arrival of two American destroyers at Norfolk and a report from the captain of the battleship Kansas that he was riding out the storm off the Delaware Capes disposed safely of all the American war craft in the vicinity. No American warship answering the description of the fighter reported ashore—four funnels and a lighting top—is anywhere near that vicinity.

Ship Not Using Wireless

To-day no word had come from the revenue cutter Itasca, which put out yesterday from Norfolk and had a stranger. Navy officials say that if the ship is one of the foreign belligerents, she probably is not using her wireless for fear of informing her enemies of her position. The velocity of the gale last night touched the high records in some instances. At midnight the wind was blowing 72 miles an hour at Block Island, 60 at Nantucket, 60 at Sandy Hook, 36 at Atlantic City, 60 at Delaware Breakwater, 36 at Norfolk and 36 at Cape Hatteras. When the storm became central off the Virginia Capes to-day, however, the wind velocity in that vicinity increased. The following message was received to-day from the keeper of the life saving station at Ocean City, Md., in answer to an inquiry by Secretary Daniels: "Unable ascertain nationality of kind of ship; has four funnels, fighting top on each as far as possible to see. Weather thick, blowing for assistance." Although the Kansas had reported she was waiting for the gale to abate, Secretary Daniels early to-day sent instructions for her to report again.

is lost sight of frequently for no more logical reason than the town's political status. Being the State capital it is a storm center of political activities and is rarely associated in the average mind with anything else. "And yet Harrisburg, with its adjacent towns, which are merely geographical continuations separated from the main division by imaginary lines, is one of the leading cities of its size in the United States, from a purely commercial viewpoint. "It is one of the first to feel the stringency when there is a stringency, and it is one of the last to deceive itself with an artificially stimulated optimism at the first sign of a revival of trade. The business world of Harrisburg is essentially a conservative business world, and the business men of Harrisburg insist upon something more tangible in the way of prosperity than mere prophesy of better times to come.

"It means a great deal, therefore, when virtually all the men of affairs in the town agree that 'the worst is over,' that the further point of caution has been reached, and that the Harrisburg business is in a position of safety in all lines. From steel, cigars, silks and the hundred other branches of industry upon which the workpeople of Harrisburg depend, the thousands of the thriving political fortunes of Capitol Hill. "Harrisburg is shaking off the lethargy of a year, and every day since the storm has been a day of revival of some dormant factor in the community's industrial life. Gilbert's Views

"Henderson Gilbert, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, who is a member of the largest wholesale and retail mercantile business in this section, is young and enthusiastic and all that, but he believes in the steady methods of the older generation. Mr. Gilbert is optimistic, however. He noted a dose or more proofs that the time for taking a step forward has arrived. "The Pipe Bending Works, a large Harrisburg corporation, is putting in new machinery, and was learned that it is about to begin the manufacture of a large order of shrapnel for the United States government, in addition to its other activities. "The Pennsylvania Steel Company, at Steelton, which is actually a part of Harrisburg, is engaged in the construction of betterments to cost $5,000,000. "In a few Pennsylvania cities the silk industry sagged after the war began for reasons already given in the public prints, but there was no depression in Harrisburg. Indeed, the firm of Polgar and Moore, which also owns silk mills at Paterson, N. J., have found their facilities inadequate and have just completed the installation of forty new machines.

"The Woolen Mills, across the river in New Cumberland, are running full time, and the same is true of the Moorhead Knitting Company in the city proper. The Moorhead Knitting Company markets its product direct to the retailers instead of through the medium of jobbers, has not as a matter of fact felt the pinch of the war as do the manufacturers of the benefit, that are bound to follow the commercial dislocation in Europe. As an evidence of this, attention was called to the fact that the company had been asked if it could knit a certain type of women's hosiery or 'half hosiery' to be more precise, known as the 'ladies' Chinese stocking.' Bales of these goods have been manufactured heretofore in Germany, but the works there are no longer running. The fact that the concern here can do the work was cited as a fair illustration of the perfect equipment of American plants.

"It was also learned that the Harrisburg Boiler and Manufacturing Company has taken a large number of orders recently for fire apparatus and other products. "Another evidence of prosperity is the steady increase in the business of the Light and Power Company. When trade revives businessmen resume the use of its power. "Mr. Herman an Optimist

"Edward S. Herman, head of John C. Herman & Co., cigar manufacturers and distributors of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes, is one of the active factors in the business revival. He is a director in nearly every bank in town, in the Public Service Company, in the Moorhead Knitting Company, in the Pennsylvania Dyeing and Bleaching Company and in a number of other corporations. He is also principal owner of the New Cumberland National Bank, where the bleaching plant stands. "I do not believe there is a doubt," said Mr. Herman, "that we are on the eve of a business revival; indeed, I believe the revival is already here, although the winter may be a little tight. There is some disposition of wait until Spring for the greatest activity, but I find at directors' tables and elsewhere that the tone is almost unreservedly optimistic. I have factories, and they may be cited as examples of what causes a sag in business. Manufacturers do not buy raw material on a falling market; they wait and wait for a further decline, and merchants do not stock up when there is even a slight doubt about the future. Merchants have been going light, and many of them are in a new attitude. I should say, are pretty well sold out, and must replenish. This will create a demand that will stimulate manufacturing at once."

"One Norfolk with our textile trade is the uncertainty as to cotton. A manufacturer hesitates to buy cotton when his rival may be able to get it a little cheaper by waiting, and that he is able at a later date to undersell him in the market, but at that I believe the cotton situation is clearing. Indeed, I feel confident of the future, and in my own varied enterprises I am acting on that principle. I am only one of thousands. "Of course it all depends in the last analysis upon the buying capacity of the public. The market is the reservoir. He orders the goods and when he sells the reservoir has to be refilled. If he does not sell he does not order, and the factory shuts down, runs on part time. "Other Harrisburg firms that seem to be on the crest of an advancing wave of prosperity, from what your correspondent could learn, are the Breisford Packing Company, which is running to capacity; the Harrisburg Baking Company, the Johnston Harvesting Company, the B. M. Manufacturing Company, and the C. E. Bear Company.

Railroads Take on Men

"The railroads, which laid off men early in the year and last summer, are taking scores of them back as business increases. And the railroad is an important factor in the industrial life of Harrisburg, quite apart from the fact that it is needed as a common carrier. About one-fifth of the people of the United States live within a radius of 300 miles of the city and its railroads radiate in seven different directions. "As a distributing center it is in advance, the correspondent was told, of any other city of its size in the United States. "Extensive freight classification yards, with through and frequent car service for shipments large and small, are a lure to manufacturers, and the growth of the city along manufacturing lines has been steady and continuous."

Harrisburg Will Suffer; Produce Supplies Cut Off

Harrisburg was hit by the storm in many ways. While there was sleet and rain yesterday, and more rain to-day, the results of this storm will be felt to-morrow with the arrival of produce shipments from the East. "Call of these supplies. Local dealers to get in communication with their Eastern commission houses to-day is taken as an indication that there will be a shortage in supplies to-morrow. Local dealers usually place their orders for fish, fruit and oyster supplies early in the week. Tuesday and Friday are the big days for the arrival of these supplies. Local dealers report few oysters and fish in Harrisburg to-day. The storms will prevent oyster and fishboats from doing business along the Jersey coast, so no supply is expected to-morrow. "The storm was too far East to seriously affect the running of trains over the Pennsylvania and Reading Railroads. Whenever wire trouble occurs, orders are given to run under cautionary signals. Between Paoli and Philadelphia it was reported that there was considerable wire trouble. Signalmen were out in force yesterday and early to-day. "Rain fell in Harrisburg to the depth of more than an inch up to noon to-day. The rain was still falling. Weather bulletins were delayed to-day because of wire trouble, and it was uncertain as to how long the rain would continue to fall, and when the storm was likely to cease. Indications were that no weather map would be issued to-day.
