SALE OF YULETIDE SEALS IN SCHOOLS

[Continued From First Page] of the tiny Yuletide stamps sold will not be known, but Dr. C. R. Phillips, who is chairman of the subcommittee for school sales, said he believed last year's record was broken. In 1913, 50,000 seals were distributed in the schools; early this week the 1914 allotment of 60,000 were taken around to the different buildings.

Cameroon Likely to Head School buildings, rooms and pupils settling little rivalries as to which could sell the most seals. From all appearances however the Cameroon building will lead again as last year and a peculiar coincidence is that the star room in a star building thus far.

STOUGH WORKERS TO GATHER IN SQUARE

[Continued From First Page] of the Sunday school and children's work committee, will be the chief marshal of the parade.

Tons of Supplies For Poor Tons of groceries and supplies of all kinds for the poor—flour, potatoes, sugar, salt and coffee, canned goods of all varieties, tea, apples, lard, pumpkins, cabbages and dried beans, as well as articles of clothing, shoes and one or two old hats—were donated by the generous Christians of Harrisburg and vicinity at last evening's "Night of Rejoicing," when practically every person entering the tabernacle gave a "pound" package.

The occasion was a success in every way even to making the ushers perjure themselves by delivering in wagons. Some of them took their coats and all were dusty as millers or grocer boys as they handled the thousands of articles given at the doors.

Procession Lasts All Day The procession of supplies began early in the afternoon and continued until the preaching began last night. Lots of things were delivered in wagons and an entire truck load arrived from Steelton. Many more things from the Steelton campaigners were left at McCurdy's store for immediate distribution in the city.

To Distribute Food Carefully Miss Hazel Clark, general secretary of the Associated Charities of this city, has taken in charge of the several tons of food donated for the poor. All people at the tabernacle services. All of the contributions were removed and stored for use as they are needed.

Each call for help at the charities office, at 5 North Market Square, will be looked up to see if the family or person is really in need before the help is given. This must be done, Miss Clark said this morning, as many were not done many people would ask for help that were not in absolute need of it.

Announcement was also made that the donations received at the tabernacle will not be given out in Christmas baskets on Christmas day, but that other contributions will be used for that purpose. Scores of appeals for aid were made this morning, but the charities secretary will investigate each case thoroughly to avoid fraud.

Dr. Stough announced that the contemplated collection for the sufferers in Belgium had been called off by the suggestion of the executive committee, who, he said, considered that enough of a burden has already been imposed on the supporters of the cause, and that local charities should come first. He said the executive committee felt that the Belgians have already been well considered by people of the city and will receive the attention throughout the winter from other sources.

$2 a Head For Stough Suggested The Rev. W. H. Dellman, of the Market Street Baptist Church, made a plea for a munificent offering to the Stough party next Sunday and said that no matter how large it might be, it would not be commensurate to the vast amount of good done in the city through the efforts of the evangelistic party. He said that a price of $2 a head for the souls saved would not be too much.

The sermon last night was from the text, "Remember Lot's Wife," and Dr. Stough emphasized the tragedy of worldly living and the certainty of death. He said that the angels who have not hit the trail are a little nearer heaven as a result of the campaign and some are only one step from the brink of conversion, but they are nevertheless examples of the tragedy of the unsaved.

"I do not want to harp on the awfulness of death and its terror, but I want to impress that it is a good thing to consider the problem of death and the inevitable day. Remember, it is possible to be almost saved and yet to be lost. Many men have said to me, 'How can I imagine, Dr. Stough, the amount of good you have done for me, and my great fear for this campaign is that it has brought them only to the brink of decision.'"

Describes Building of the Ark He described in his inimitable style the building of Noah's ark and the skepticism of the carpenters who worked on it and laughed at the "old fool who was building a boat on dry land." He told how the farmers of that day went into their kitchens and made popovers and fudge and said "shucks" when the forty days' rain started.

He then went on to tell of Lot setting up his home in the best quarters of Sodom and he gave an amusing description of Mrs. Lot and her "high society" aspirations. He impersonated Ma and Pa Lot at the coming-out party of their daughters, Mary and Anna, how they retired early and allowed the young folks to carry on their high jinks without watching.

"Mrs. Lot is a synonym for many society women of Harrisburg to-day who sacrifice their daughters' good names and character in order to usher them into the world of prestige and power that society offers. Like her, they damn their daughters by sacrificing their home to worldly and Godless living."

Pet Sins in the Way of Many He spoke of the folly of trying to save the people whose hearts are in worldly possessions and pleasures and said that most people remain unconverted because some pet sin is in the way that they are unwilling to give up.
