Burgess Wigfield Urges Steelton Mummies to Parade at Harrisburg

Burgess Fred Wigfield to-day heartily endorsed the Mummies' parade to be held in Harrisburg, Friday, and strongly urged Steelton people to take some part in the celebration. His statement follows:

"The Mummies' Association of Harrisburg has requested me to issue a proclamation inviting to participate in the parade, New Year's Day, as has been done in a number of surrounding towns.

"Inasmuch as the business depression has made it impossible for Steelton to have a New Year's celebration of our own; and inasmuch as the Mummies' Association of Harrisburg, our neighbors, have been so untrusting and energetically to give a parade that will surpass anything of its kind in this section of the State, and has further extended the people of Steelton a cordial invitation to participate and to come to Harrisburg and enjoy the parade, I heartily commend the association and strongly urge our citizens to accept the invitation and go to the Mummies' parade in Harrisburg.

"I have been advised that the Baldwin Hose Company, the Triangle Club and the Loyd order of Moose, of Steelton, will all be well represented in the parade. Now let the Steelton delegation be large and you will advertise the town.—Fred Wigfield, Burgess."

State Inspectors Say That Belgium Is Furnishing an Immense Part of Stock

Although war has been raging for over 150 days in Belgium, the center of the district exporting nursery stock to the United States, State nursery inspectors say that imports of Belgian stock have never been as large as this fall. Immense shipments have been received at the port of Philadelphia, most of them bearing manifests from Ghent. Many came from Rotterdam by steamers, although a few were shipped by way of England.

It is believed that these shipments are the result of the war, it is declared by inspectors. The stock is all being carefully inspected for traces of pests and none worth mentioning have been found.

State Zoologist H. A. Surface, who directs inspection of stock, says that there is no greater complaint than of azaleas and reports that the moth has come in on nursery stock from foreign countries or other States are not correct.

1914 Was a Cross-Roads in World's Religious Affairs

The War Created a Spiritual Crisis and an Ecclesiastical Upheaval; All Faiths on the Battle Line

(By The Religious Rambler.)

A BACKWARD look across 1914 shows one overshadowing event, the great war, which dominated the year's religious history, to the obscuring of all else. Perhaps, when men get to the point of being able rightly to appraise the significance of recent events, it will be found that the effect of the war upon religion has been its most important result. Assuredly, epochal results, religiously, have already followed the outbreak of the war, with greater to come.

Long-prepared and carefully laid plans of international ecclesiastical congresses, devastated by the outbreak of hostilities. The dramatic break-up of the Church Peace Conference at Constance by the declaration of war, which sent the delegates scurrying without their baggage to points of possible embarkation for home, was symbolic.

Even greater was the complete severance of the carefully-knit relations between the religious leaders of Germany and Britain. So bitter a spirit has been shown in subsequent manifestoes by churchmen and laymen alike, that the possibility of a resumption of relations after the war, it is significant that the work of mediation is being done by Americans.

International religious organizations, like the continuation committee of the Edinburgh Conference, the Christian Endeavor movement, the Young Men's Christian Association, etc., have seen the brotherly work of years laid in ruins.

Foreign mission work has been tremendously disorganized. American societies are undertaking to carry on, or to revive, the work of the German missions; and Britain is helping the French societies. Even so, because of the rules of war, many missionaries have had to abandon their fields; and practically all missionaries, even the American, have been so straits because of the break-down of international banking.

Far-reaching as the collapse of organized religious work has been, it is of trifling import in comparison with the upheaval in the world's thought of the Supreme Being. Nothing else in the universe is so important as what people think about God. In the very beginning of the war, and during its continuance, all the rulers concerned called confidently upon Jehovah to espouse their cause and to fight their battles. Kaiser, czar, emperor, king, president and sultan, all have shown utmost assurance that God is fighting under the banner of each and that people think about God. History has no parallel for this dramatic clashing of claims upon the Most High.

Profound results have followed. The thinking people everywhere, even in the remote centers of what Christians loosely call "heathendom," have been set to asking fundamental questions concerning God and Christian civilization. Is God a monopoly of any race or nation? Why has he permitted this most devastating cataclysm that humanity has ever undergone? The two largest nations that are
