BRITAIN'S WAR LORD DOES SMILE

They say in Great Britain that Lord Kitchener, the biggest Englishman connected with the war, never smiles. It is a tradition among the people that he is ever stern. Yet here in proof that he can and does smile. His friends who see him when he is off duty have insisted that he does smile occasionally, and they have offered their word to prove it. The photographer who took this picture has proved it for everyone. He may not smile often, but he does smile. Incidentally, this is one of the best pictures and one of the most recent ever taken of the war lord. He has fought shy of photographers more than any important character in the war. The Kaiser of Germany will pose for them, and has posed hundreds of times, but Kitchener seldom stops long enough for a photographer to catch him.

CREW OF U.S. SUBMARINE F-4 IS LOST

Vessel Was Submerged Yesterday Morning Near Honolulu and Has Not Yet Reappeared; Oil Covers Surface of Water, Indicating Damage to Little Warrior; Under-sea Craft Is Down So Far That Authorities Believe 26 Men on Board Lost; Diver Who Tried to Locate Submarine Is Drawn Up Unconscious

Trapped at the bottom of Honolulu harbor under at least 35 fathoms of water—probably more—the United States submarine F-4 lies helpless with her commander and at least 18 men, in what is feared to be one of the worst submarine boat disasters in the world's naval history.

While hope for the men has not been given up the gravest fears are entertained that they may have been lost in the first submarine boat disaster of the United States navy.

F-4 MAY HAVE SLIPPED INTO POCKET OF ROCK

On the face of meager official reports from the Honolulu naval station which said the F-4 disappeared at 9:15 o'clock yesterday morning after making a dive during maneuvers and that constant grappling and diving has failed to locate her definitely, naval officers fear the boat may have slipped over a ledge on the volcanic rockbottom of the harbor into some deep pocket out of reach of help.

The diving record of a man is 240 feet; the world's diving record of a submarine, made by an American boat, the F-1, a sister ship of the F-4, is 283 feet. If the F-4, by accident or otherwise has gone deeper, it is feared the tremendous pressure of the waters had crushed her shell.

Although fitted with the latest device in safety at locks, through which a man can be shot to safety at as great a depth as 35 fathoms, the men on the F-4 apparently have been unable to use them and that fact coupled with the fact that they have not released their marker buoy makes officials fear something terrible has happened in the dark.

fathoms of water, it is beyond the reach of divers and it is feared will only work deeper to the dropping off point.

Divers yesterday descended to a depth of 196 feet, which is a local record, and were drawn up unconscious. Relatives of members of the crews are frantic for news. James M. Hogg, electrician of Macedonia, Mo., who was on shore leave, is the only member of the crew known to have stepped ashore.
